Lilienthal Hails Recent Tryout As Milestone in Atom Developmentt

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman announced yesterday the successful test of three atomic weapons—"each of improved design" over the A-bomb which blasted two Japanese cities nearly three years ago.

Few details were given in the carefully worded White House announcement, but Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal hailed the tests as "a milestone in atomic development."

They were held in recent weeks at Eniwetok, America's atomic weapon proving ground in the mid-Pacific.

Commissioners Report

Mr. Truman's revelation of the developments came after Lilienthal ond other commission members gave him an oral report.

The White House termed the tests "successful in all respects" and said the results "indicate very substantial progress." The President, it was said, gave general approval to AEC plans for further atomic development, based upon information learned in the experiments.

Lilienthal and the White House declined, "for security reasons" to divulge either the nature of the weapons tested or the dates the tests were held.

There was speculation that one of them might be a more powerful bomb than those dropped on Hiroshima, Nagaski and Bikini. It was also suggested that a smaller, more compact bomb might have been developed which could be transported by a smaller warplane, one which might be flown from an aircraft carrier.

Other Speculations

Possibly, they included A-bombs which can be manufactured more easily and efficiently. Other speculation was that one of the new weapons might involve "radioactive clouds" or "dust."

Glenn L. Martin, aircraft builder, declared a year ago that such a destructive, which might be spread by aircraft, was under experimentation It would create results similar to the after-effects of an A-bomb explosion.

A joint task force of 10,000 Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel and civilians conducted the Eniwetok tests. Civilian representatives of AEC were in charge of the scientific phases, and Lieut. Gen. John E. Hull headed the actual operations.

Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands was closed to all unau-

Stock Averages Finish Highest Since August, 1946

New York, May 17 (AP).—The bull market in stocks recovered from an early stumble today to make a strong finish.

Early cashing of profits depressed leading shares until new buying orders poured in during the final hour.

This late support turned many losses into narrow gains and sent average prices to their highest since August, 1946.

Of the day's total of 3,050,000 shares traded, 960,000 shares changed hands in the last 60 minutes. The market was the broadest on record, transfers in 1161 issues exceeding the high of 1151 set last Friday.

Some of the railroad stocks joined in the last upsurge, following news that wage negotiations in the dispute that led to Government seizure would be resumed Tuesday.

Gains of $1 to $2 a share were made by Southern Pacific at $60, Lockheed at 23, Owens Illinois at $64, Philip Morris at $29.50, and U. S. Gypsum at $106.

Could Vandenberg Beat Truman Today?

Gambling Grand Jury Sworn; Activities to Be Safeguarded

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Washington's first special grand jury to investigate gambling was sworn in yesterday by District Court Justice David A. Pine.

Twelve men and 11 women—including Government clerks, housewives, engineers, a broker, a telephone operator, a messenger, a teacher of religion, a dental technician and a saleswoman—were named to conduct the unprecedented inquiry.

Justice Pine told the jurors that United States Attorney George Morris Fay has charged that a 100-million-dollar-a-year gambling racket is flourishing here. He instructed them to make a thorough study of "gambling and other unlawful activity that stems from gambling."

He named as grand jury foreman J. Donald Halsted, 53, a buyer of municipal bonds, employed by B. J. Van Ingen & Co. of New York City. A wartime employe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Halsted lives with his wife at the Shoreham Hotel. He has offices in the Union Trust Building.

Appointed deputy foreman was Lionel V. Murphy, 43, of 5406 Carolina pl. nw., a division chief in the Navy Department's personnel office. Murphy, who is married and has two small children, served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy during the war.

Immediately after the grand jury of 23 members was sworn, at 2:30 p.m., steps were taken to guard their activities from the public eye as much as possible.

JACOB D. HALSTED
Grand Jury Head

After the jurors were closeted briefly to name their own clerk and secretary, Halsted and Murphy conferred with Fay in his office. When the jurors were ready to leave the District Court Building for the day, they departed in pairs, by different exits.

It appeared likely that efforts will be made to have the jury meet

D. C. May Need No New Taxes, Without Pay Rises, Bates Says

Trade Board Group Favors 12½ Million Amount for Building

Possibility Held Out Through Use of Funds For General Purposes

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.)) said last night there may be no need for new District taxes this year.

"If no pay raises go through for Federal or District employes, and by using all municipal funds available for general purposes, there is a possibility that no additional taxes need be raised," Bates said. He made the statement after a conference in his office with District budget and engineering officials. He is chairman of the House District Subcommittee working on District tax matters.

The main idea behind Bates' announcement is that no money should be appropriated in the fiscal year beginning July 1 that the District will not actually have to pay out until the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1950.

Between three and four million dollars is now included in the general fund construction budget for the next fiscal year that would not actually have to be paid out to builders until the following fiscal year, Bates said.

The city can also tap a total of about $4,200,000 still remaining in the city's war-accumulated building investment fund for postwar construction. The 101-million-dollar city budget is now set up with the idea that about $2,400,000 of the city's building reserve will be used next year, leaving $1,800,000 for the following fiscal year.

If all the reserve building fund is used in the coming fiscal year for building revenue, city officials have estimated the District deficit would be about $3,800,000. If need for another 3 to 4 million could be postponed until the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1950, in line with Bates' idea, the deficit would be cut to the vanishing point.

If a small deficit were left—not counting the big one that would be caused by a pay boost for city employes—there was a suggestion that it might be covered by a small increase in the city property tax rate.

Still leaving out the results of a pay boost, Bates' plan is calculated to defer action this year on the proposed 2 per cent general retail sales tax for the District. Further

The executive committee of the Board of Trade yesterday recommended that the District borrow $12,559,440 from the Federal Government for a five-year school construction program.

While the 12 million dollar figure will be the official view of the board on school needs, wide differences of opinion were revealed in reports to the executive committee from the board's education and municipal finance committees.

The education committee recommended a loan of $44,452,459. The municipal finance committee reviewed the education committee report and recommended an expenditure of $10,418,790.

An additional two million dollars was restored by the executive committee, which said that it was basing its report primarily on the need for new elementary schools.

It recommended that the Board of Trade "consider at some future time the necessity for financing additional needs of the junior and senior high school program."

Commenting on the executive committee report, Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), chairman of the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, said "that's what I've been preaching, to get us over the hump and perhaps reach a more normal period for school construction."

Declaring the 12-million-dollar program "urgent," the executive committee said the money to finance it should be borrowed "preferably from the United States" and that it be repaid in annual installments over a period of 15 years beginning with the fiscal year 1950.

"All frills, nonessential and costly features" should be eliminated, "holding the cost to absolute minimum consistent with efficient use," the report said.

The two million dollars added by the executive committee to the finance committee recommendation is for a replacement for the Negro Terrell Junior High School.

17 Other Projects

The executive committee went along with the finance committee in approving 17 other projects.

The education committee in its report submitted to the executive committee March 15 recommended 47 projects. A month later, after

100 Patients Studied

Psychiatrists Hear New Drug, Mesantoin, Aids Epileptics

Mesantoin, described optimistically as the insulin for epileptics, has proven itself "a highly valuable anticonvulsant drug," psychiatrists assembled here were told yesterday.

And when combined with its predecessor, dilatin sodium, the combination has freed epileptics from recurrence of convulsive fits better than any previous medication in use.

Report on a two-year study of the drug was made at scientific session of the American Psychiaric Association by Drs. Joseph L. Fetterman and Victor M. Victoroff of Cleveland. The drug, in tablet form, has been on the public market for one year now after 10 years testing by its makers, the Sandoz Chemical Works, Inc., of New York.

The Cleveland researchists reported that in their study 100 patients were kept under close scrutiny.

Of these they said, ten were epileptics who previously received no medication for their disorders. It was among these that the most striking benefits from mesantoin were noted.

Fed from two to eight tablets daily, seven of the ten suffered less than one seizure in six months, although their premedication average had been one convulsive fit a month. Two others showed "considerable improvement" and the tenth only "slight improvement."

The remaining 90 patients, who

Atom Board Compromise Bill Voted

Joint Committee Backs Measure for 23-Month Term in Reappointments

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Legislation by-passing the President's reappointment of all five members of the Atomic Energy commission by extending their terms for a flat 23 months yesterday was approved by the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

The vote was 11 to 5, with only one Democrat—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Colo.)—voting with 10 Republicans for the so-called compromise.

Senator Brien McMahon (Conn.), one of the five dissenting Democrats, charged the bill is a Republican leadership device for ousting Chairman David E. Lilienthal at the end of the 23 months.

Condemned by McMahon

"This effort, for the good of the country, ought to be met and defeated," McMahon told a press conference following the vote. "It is an attempt to do indirectly what they know they cannot do directly."

The President had renominated the members of the commission for staggered terms of one to five years, as the basic law provides.

The bill reported yesterday continues the commission on its present basis from August 1, 1948, to June 30, 1950, when the staggered terms would begin.

One effect would be to give a Republican President the privilege of appointing the full membership of the commission if a Republican is elected in November.

Sponsors of the plan said they wanted to avoid a session's end "political dogfight" similar to the confirmation battle over Lilienthal's original appointment.

McMahon at his press conference challenged that reasoning. He said no one has questioned competence or performance of the present commission and asked "What would the fight be about?"

Republicans Accused

He charged Republicans "want to make sure that within two years they will get a chance to throw out Mr. Lilienthal," and added. "This might be about the time when industrial power (from the atom) is coming along."

A party-line floor battle appeared to be shaping up with a veto awaiting the bill if it passes. Should the President kill the bill, and Congress fail to override, Mr. Truman may have to resort to recess appointments to keep the commissioners in office until Congress meets again.

Another atomic energy showdown between the President and the Republican Congress meanwhile is nearing a vote. On Saturday Mr. Truman vetoed a bill permitting the Senate to call on the FBI to investigate future appointees to the Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Truman questioned the constitutionality of the FBI or any other executive agency working for the Senate.

The veto message was read to the Senate yesterday. Senator William S. Knowland (R., Calif.), author of the measure, predicted Congress will override the veto within the next few days.

The 23-month Atomic Energy Commission term was jointly sponsored by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) and Senator Johnson (D., Colo.). It has the backing of Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.).

Here is how the Congressional

Subject to FCC Approval

The Washington Post and CBS Plan Company to Run WTOP

The Washington Post and the Columbia Broadcasting System last night announced plans for cooperation in developing expanded radio and television services in Washington.

The carrying out of these plans is contingent upon approval of the Federal Communications Commission. Appropriate applications are being prepared for prompt submission to the FCC.

A new corporation, to be owned 55 per cent by The Post and 45 per cent by CBS, would operate Station WTOP, CBS's present 50,000-watt AM station in Washington, and WTOP-FM, CBS's new FM station now under construction.

Authority also will be sought for the construction and operation in the Nation's Capital of a television station on television Channel No. 12.

WTOP and the new FM station would become affiliated with the Columbia Broadcasting System, as would the television station if it is authorized.

In commenting upon the announcement, Philip L. Graham, president and publisher of The Washington Post, said:

"We are pleased to become associated with the Columbia Broadcasting System in providing an expanded broadcast service in Washington. With Columbia's long and enviable record in radio, we look forward to the rapid development of an outstanding public service in these fields."

Frank Stanton, president of CBS, stated:

"The entry of The Washington Post into large-scale radio operations in the Nation's Capital constitutes an outstanding contribution to sound expansion of radio broadcasting. The management of The Post is universally recognized for its outstanding position of leadership in the newspaper field and, with its prior experience in radio, will bring exceptional talents in the all-important developmental years immediately ahead."

It is contemplated that, upon completion of the transaction, The Washington Post will dispose of its presently owned radio stations, WINX and WINX-FM in Washington.

The Columbia Broadcasting System will continue to maintain a Washington office and news staff for the service of the network.

U. S., Soviet Urge U. N. Order For End of War in Palestine; Tel Aviv Dock Area Bombed

Jews Deny Arabs' Claim of Capture Of Walled City In Jerusalem

Cairo, Egypt, May 17 (U.P.). Egyptian bombing planes, in their heaviest attacks of the Jewish-Arab War, hit the port area and airport of Tel Aviv today and damaged other targets, a communique of the national defense ministry said tonight.

Direct hits were made on docks, oil tanks and refineries in the Tel Aviv port area and fires were started, the communique said. In a second attack this afternoon, Egyptian planes destroyed six grounded planes at the city's airport and did heavy damage to airdrome installations, it added.

In a third attack, on a fortified Jewish settlement, Egyptian planes hit oil tanks, ammunition depots and armored car concentrations with high explosive and incendiary bombs, the communique said.

All planes returned safely from the attacks, it was added.

Driving up Coast

Dispatches from Arab capitals reported the Arabs had captured all of the old city area of Jerusalem and that the Egyptian army was driving up the Palestine coast toward Tel Aviv.

A Beirut dispatch quoted usually well-informed quarters as saying that troops of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion, who had reached positions north of Jerusalem, entered the city today.

A special Jewish army communique from Tel Aviv denied reports of the fall of the old city and charged the Arabs opened their attack despite truce negotiations.

It was announced that the Israel government intended to protest to international authorities against an aerial attack today on a Tel Aviv hospital in which, it was said, a doctor, a nurse and a patient were killed and a number of patients wounded.

According to Arab accounts, Jews were shelling the walled city area of Jerusalem after the Jews remaining in it surrendered to the Arabs.

Sam Souki, United Press staff correspondent, watched with King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan while Iraq artillery shelled the Jewish town of Gesher below the Sea of Galilee.

The next Arab objective in this area, Souki said, is the Jewish-held town of Beisan to the south.

Claim Control of Roads

A dispatch from Amman, Trans-Jordan, asserted the Arabs now controlled all roads leading to Jerusalem and that water supplies had been cut off for five days. Food was getting low.

Jews control the western part of the city, the modern area. But Arab forces are operating both north and south of the city and dispatches indicated they hoped to starve it out.

Amman dispatches reported heavy fighting continuing in the Bab el Wad area west of Jerusalem, on the main highway to Tel Aviv. They said tribesmen from Trans-Jordan had reinforced the Arab irregulars there. Arab reports said six Jewish armored cars and large quantities of ammunition were captured when the Jews tried to break through the road to Jerusalem.

Russia Prepared to Negotiate Differences With U. S. on Basis Of Wallace Letter, Stalin Says

Moscow, May 17 (AP).—Prime Minister Stalin said tonight Russia is prepared, if the United States is willing, to use Henry A. Wallace's recent "open letter" to him as the basis for two-power agreement aimed at ending strained relations between the two nations.

Stalin's statement was dated today and issued by the Soviet press department. It replied to Wallace's proposals, made at a political rally in New York's Madison Square Garden May 11 and addressed to the Russian leader.

Stalin said his government considers that "despite the difference in the economic system and the ideologies, the coexistence of these systems and a peaceful settlement of differences between the USSR and the United States are not only possible, but also necessary in the interests of a general peace."

"I do not know," Stalin said, "whether the United States Government approves of Mr. Wallace's program as a basis for agreement between the USSR and the United States.

"As far as the government of the USSR is concerned, it considers that Mr. Wallace's program could serve as a good and fruitful basis for such an agreement and for the development of international cooperation."

Stalin gave a concise and factual summary of the points Wallace addressed to him and the United States Government at the New York rally. He said these proposals "are known to everybody," and listed them as:

1. A general armaments reduction and the prohibition of atomic weapons.
2. Conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan and the question of evacuating troops from these countries.
3. Evacuation of troops from China and Korea.
4. Respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and non-interference in their domestic affairs.
5. The inadmissibility of military bases in member countries of the United Nations.
6. World development of international trade. No discrimination within the United Nations framework in assistance to, and economic restoration of, countries which suffered in the war.
7. The defense of democracy and ensuring the civil rights in all countries, "and so on," Stalin concluded.

"It is possible to agree or to disagree with the program of Mr. Wallace," Stalin said, "but one

Security Council Debates Cease-Fire Plea for an Hour, Fails to Reach Vote

Lake Success, May 17 (AP). The United States and Russia joined today in a demand that the United Nations order the war stopped in Palestine.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin, with last-minute instructions from Washington, told the Security Council the situation was a threat to world peace.

The U. N. should invoke its most potent article to stop the fighting in Palestine, he said.

Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko then jumped on the bandwagon with this statement to the Council:

"There is a war in Palestine and the Security Council must react. The Security Council must take a decision to stop the war."

The Council wrangled for more than an hour over submitting a list of questions to the Arabs and Jews and adjourned until 10:30 a. m. (EDT) Tuesday without voting.

Gromyko made no direct comment on the terms of the American plan.

There was feeling here among some delegations that the United States had again beaten Russia to the punch by getting a stop-war resolution on the table first.

The same group had felt that Washington outmaneuvered Moscow with President Truman's immediate recognition of the new Jewish state of Israel last Friday.

Austin demanded the Council vote an order to "all governments and authorities" to cease fighting and issue cease-fire and stand-still orders to their forces within 36 hours after passage of the resolution.

The United States moved under Chapter 7 of the Charter which contains the U. N.'s only big stick — the use of international force. If under the American plan, peaceful efforts at settlement failed the Council could move ahead to

Moscow Recognizes New State of Israel

London, May 17 (AP). — The Soviet Union has officially recognized the new Jewish state of Israel, the Moscow radio reported tonight.

The Soviet recognition came in response to a request from Moshe Shertok, Israel's Foreign Minister, it was reported in the broadcast heard in London by the Soviet monitor.

No Red Ban In Mundt Bill, Dewey Says

Portland, Oreg., May 17 (AP).—Republican presidential aspirants Thomas E. Dewey and Harold Stassen took sharp issue tonight on whether the Mundt bill would outlaw the Communist Party.

Dewey, a foe of legislation to outlaw Communist organizations, claimed the bill would not make the Communist Party illegal.

The bill is now before Congress.

Stassen avowed his support of the bill and said it would "outlaw the Communist Party.

He qualified his stand for the legislation by saying that certain provisions go "beyond what I have advocated."

Coast-to-Coast Hookup

The two contenders for the Republican presidential nomination debated their stands on communism over a coast-to-coast radio hookup.

Dewey said that William Z. Foster, head of the American Communist Party, and Stassen say the Mundt bill would outlaw the Communists.

He then quoted from the report of the House Un-American Activities Committee in purported refutation of Stassen's claim.

He said the House committee had been doing "a fine, solid American job. It has been doing a fine job of exposing the Communits."

The report of the committee, Dewey continued, rejected the idea of outlawing the Communist Party.

He Cites Reasons

He said the report gave these reasons:

1. It would drive the Communists further underground. We need to expose them.
2. Outlawing has not been effective in other countries.
3. We could not criticize other totalitarian nations for their actions if we adopt similar measures.

"We must keep the Communists in the open, so that we can defeat

Buddies Tell Of McMillin Enchantress

Two Ex-Roommates Of Cryptographer Saw Him 'Smitten'

By Sam Stavisky
Copyright by The Washington Post

Sergt. James M. McMillin, the young GI who deserted his Moscow post for the love of a beauteous Russian agent, was victim of a highly-efficient Soviet system of enticing American embassy men with fascinating women.

Furthermore, McMillin was a cryptographer and as such of particular interest to the bewitching operative.

That's the explanation of the bizarre romance given to The Washington Post by two former embassy aides and GI buddies of the 21-year-old McMillin, who vanished with a Soviet enchantress last Thursday on the eve of his transfer back to this country.

Everybody at the embassy knows about the systematic snare and its seductive sirens, the former aides said. They added that it's virtually "common practice" for Americans at the embassy—military and civilian, high-ranking and clerical alike—to go for the bait.

Stories Corroborating

The State Department, in disclosing the McMillin episode at a special Sunday night press conference, indicated the GI's entrancement was part of an organized scheme by declaring it to be "obviously seduction and exploitation by an experienced Soviet agent of a young, inexperienced American in a strategic spot."

More direct and to the point, however, were the mutually corroborating stories of Paul F. Beatley, 21, of Landover Hills, Md., and Alex Timm, 23, of Passaic, N. J., both former Army sergeants stationed at the Moscow embassy.

Beatley, a State Department employe here and roommate of McMillin in Moscow, said that on the day he arrived in Moscow—in September, 1946—three different Russian girls phoned him by name to let him know they were eager to welcome and entertain him. He

New NLRB Ruling

Boss Can Force Anti-Union Speech Upon His Employes

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that an employer now may force his employes to listen while he delivers an "antiunion" speech.

The far-reaching decision reversed a previous ruling of August 1946. The 1946 decision was based on the Wagner Act of 1935. The Taft-Hartley law, passed last year, amended the Wagner Act and inserted a provision on "free speech."

Yesterday's was the first ruling under that clause of the Taft-Hartley law. It involved a complaint brought against a nonunion Augusta, Ga., company and a CIO union that was trying to win a collective bargaining election in the plant.

In overturning the old doctrine, a three-member NLRB panel ruled unanimously that, under the law today, it is not an unfair labor practice for an employer to convene a compulsory audience of employes on company time and property, and deliver an antiunion speech, provided the speech itself does not contain threats of reprisals.

The old ruling, "Clark Bros. doctrine," barred employers from making such speeches, regardless of whether they contained "threats." The NLRB said then that it was not depriving the employer of free speech, but rather of the freedom to "coerce" his employes.

It noted that a compulsory audience of employes did not have the right not to listen to the speech and it said the whole atmosphere

Baltimore Police Hold Two Men in Reuther Shooting

Baltimore, May 17 (AP).—Two Detroit automobile workers were arrested here today for questioning in connection with last month's shooting of Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union. Police took the men in on a "tip."

Both men gave Baltimore addresses. They were docketed as being "held for investigation; suspected of assault and shooting."

Reuther was wounded April 20 by a gunman who fired through the kitchen window of the union chief's home. More than $120,000 in rewards have been offered in the case.

Police said one of the men told them he was an automobile factory worker, the other that he was a machinist. The suspects reportedly arrived in Baltimore April 22.

Phone Contract Signed Without Pay Rises Now

Washington's 3000 telephone operators signed a new labor contract yesterday—without immediate pay increases—that may set a pattern for the remainder of the telephone industry.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and Washington Traffic Division 50 of the Communications Workers of America (Independent) concluded a 3-year agreement a few hours before expiration of the old contract.

The new agreement includes provisions for two wage reopenings later and an improved grievance procedure and "holiday eve differential" clause, the union said. Story on Page B-1.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Jakob A. Malik Is New Man of Mystery, On Way to Head Soviet U. N. Delegation

Lake Success, May 17 (AP).—Another mystery man soon is taking the helm of the Russian delegation to the United Nations.

He is Jakob A. Malik, deputy minister for foreign affairs of the USSR.

There are some sketchy facts on record about Malik, but like virtually all of Russia's assistant leaders he is little known outside the ruling class of the Kremlin.

Even members of the Soviet delegation here say they know nothing about him beyond what has appeared in the American press.

Malik is aboard the liner Queen Mary en route to New York to take over from Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister.

Gromyko Remains Aloof

Gromyko has become known to Americans in his two years at the U. N. But he still remains aloof and cool and guards his private life carefully from public notice.

Malik and Gromyko both achieved high rank in the foreign ministry of the Soviet Union at early ages—in their thirties. Malik so far has been one step ahead.

Malik first became well known outside Russia when he went to Japan as Ambassador in 1942. He held that post until 1945.

Malik presented Russia's declaration of war on Japan to the Tokyo government on August 9, 1945. The next day he received Foreign Minister Togo's surrender offer.

He was on hand in Tokyo when Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived. For a while he was a Russian representative on the staff of the Allied Control Commission in Tokyo.

Ahead of Gromyko

Malik was advanced to deputy foreign minister on Aug. 23, 1946, four months before Gromyko was promoted to that level.

Just how long Malik will be here is a mystery too.

Some informed quarters speculate that Gromyko wil lnot return, but he made two references to a vacation in a letter informing Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, of his impending departure.

Gromyko said Malik would represent Russia on the Security Council, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Commission for Conventional Armaments.

Persons familiar with Russian moves said that particular stress was placed in the letter on the temporary nature of Gromyko's absence.

Atom Control Effort Halted By U. N. Group

Lake Success, May 17 (AP).—The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission suspended today all attempts to agree on world atomic control.

It was the first major U. N. organ to acknowledge failure because of the Russian-western power impasse.

The vote to stop work now was 9 to 2.

The United States, France, China, Britain, Argentina, Belgium, Syria, Canada, and Colombia voted for the suspension. They want fresh orders from the 58-nation Assembly this fall.

Russia and the Soviet Ukraine opposed suspension. They want the commission to continue negotiations.

The vote today meant the commission will cease all work on atomic control until the Assembly or the commission's six permanent members find the overall political situation is favorable to an atomic pact.

The permanent members are the five great powers plus Canada. Canada is included because of her role in developing the atomic bomb.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy Foreign Minister, blasted again at the United States just before the vote. He said the United States Government does not want atomic control.

The commission decision goes to the Security Council for approval.

It was reported that Gromyko said he can veto the commission decision in the Security Council.

If that happens, informed sources said, the United States is ready to put the situation before the Assembly and demand full debate.

The General Assembly by unanimous vote created the Atomic Commission on January 24, 1946. The commission and its committees have held 222 meetings.

The first session was held in New York City on June 14, 1946. Bernard M. Baruch, then United States atomic delegate, proposed an atomic development authority which would control all atomic energy around the world. He said the United States was ready to dispose of its existing bombs and not make any more if the nations agreed to effective and safe control.

He demanded full inspection powers for the authority and no veto on the punishment by the U. N. of nations violating the code. The commission majority approved those principles on December 30, 1946.

Navy Replacing 14-Ship Squadron In Mediterranean

The Navy announced last night that it was relieving its 14-ship squadron in the Mediterranean and replacing it with 12 other ships.

Some 1100 Marines serving aboard the major fighting ships also will come back to the United States. Their successors will also be from the Second Marine Division at Camp Lejeune.

The relief ships, which will leave from east coast ports about May 31, are the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Kearsage, the light cruisers Fargo, Huntington and Juneau; the destroyers Putnam, Henley, W. Keith, J. C. Owens, Zellers, Massey and Stormes; and the attack cargo ship Marquette.

The returning ships are the carrier Philippine Sea; the light cruisers Manchester, Dayton, Rochester and Fresno; the destroyers Brownson, R. H. McCard, S. B. Roberts, C. H. Roan, J. P. Kennedy, W. R. Rush, Johnston and Fiske; and the attack cargo ship Vermilion.

Board Completes Oak Ridge Strike Threat Inquiry

A Presidential Board yesterday ended its inquiry into the threatened strike at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic energy plant and prepared to submit its recommendations to the White House.

The board finished its hearings by taking down statements from the AFL Atomic Trades Council and the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp., which operates the Oak Ridge plant for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The council is demanding pay raises of 15 cents an hour for the 600 Oak Ridge workers it represents, plus sick leave, vacation and insurance benefits they had been getting from Monsanto Chemical Co., which formerly operated the plant.

Carbide & Carbon has offered what it says is an average pay raise of 10 cents an hour, but which the union says would amount to only 7.6 cents.

An 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction issued by the Knoxville, Tenn., Federal Court on March 19 will expire at Midnight June 7.

Army Reveals World's Largest Firing Chamber

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., May 17 (U.P.).—The Army today took the secret lid off a huge new firing chamber used to test aircraft guns and ammunition under stratospheric conditions.

Top-ranking military men and scientists attended the dedication of the new device, called the startospheric facility. It is the largest firing chamber in the world.

The equipment tests machines guns and light canon under conditions similar to those encountered in combat flight at 50,000 feet altitude, nearly 10 miles.

Special instruments record the speed of each bullet and cameras photograph it in flight.

Back of the firing chamber is a 25-foot thickness of sand weighing 180 tons. Behind this is a 3-inch armor plate which stops the high speed bullets.

Report to the President on Atomic Weapons

thorized visitors last February, along with a large surrounding sea area. It was announced that tests would be held. On April 19, it was diclosed officially that "an atomic weapon" had been tested.

President Truman also sent a letter of congratulation to Defense Secretary James Forrestal, asking him to commend the members of the task force and others participating.

He said the AEC joined him in such congratulations. Mr. Truman also praised the work of the AEC's Los Alamos laboratory.

Cooperation Praised

"The successful completion of this mission," said the President, "is an outstanding example of cooperation between the agencies responsible for the military defense of the Nation and those responsible for the scientific and technical development of an important means of defense."

The White House statement about the report follows:

"The President today received from the United States Atomic Energy Commission a report on tests of atomic weapons conducted at the commission's proving ground at Eniewetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands. The tests were held pursuant to approval of the President given in June, 1947. The first series of the tests are now completed.

"The commission reported that the tests involving three atomic weapons, each of improved design, was successful in all respects, and that the results indicate very substantial progress. The President gave general approval of commission plans for steps it proposed to initiate at once for further nuclear development, based upon information gained from the tests.

Information Secret

"As previously announced by the commission, the tests were conducted under the security provisions of the Atomic Energy Act, and information as to the scientific results and technical details of the tests cannot be made public at this time. The area of the proving ground, as previously defined, remains closed to unauthorized persons.

"The Secretary of National Defense and the Atomic Energy Commission have authorized statements of acknowledgment of services of the personnel engaged in the tests, for release by the military and scientific leaders of the project upon their return to Honolulu tomorrow."

Against—Senator McMahon and Representatives Durham (N. C.), Holifield (Carilf.), Price (Ill.) and Johnson (Tex.), all Democrats.

$124,000,000 Super-Carrier Gets House Group Approval

Construction of a giant aircraft carrier—capable of launching a long-range bomber bearing an atomic bomb—was approved yesterday by a House Armed Services Subcommittee.

The group voted unanimously to permit the Navy to lay down the super flattop—nearly half again as large as the present 45,000-ton Midway class.

Designed to displace 65,000 tons and cost 124 million dollars, the new type vessel is not being constructed for any particular type of plane. However, Admiral Louis Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations, told committeemen yesterday under questioning that he believed B-29 type bombers could be launched from its deck.

Catapulting Plane

Denfeld said a plane that large could not be landed on such a carrier, but could take off from it—presumably by being catapulted. The Navy chief declined to discuss publicly whether the bomber could carry an atomic bomb, but the A-bombs which devastated Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini Harbor were dropped by B-29s.

Actually, by the time the carrier would be finished—some four years from now—greatly improved heavy bombing planes may be ready. Jet bombers capable of carrying an A-bomb are in prospect, though none with a very long range are likely in the near future.

The big flat-top would be the largest warship ever built. It would measure 1090 feet from the forward end of the "flush" landing deck to the stern. Plans call for no "island" superstructure as on present carriers.

Indorsed by Truman

The subcommittee approved the project after receiving a letter from Defense Secretary James Forrestal declaring that the Nation's top defense chiefs all approve of it. Forrestal said also that Persident Truman and the Bureau of Ships have indorsed it.

There have been reports that many Air Force officers opposed building the carrier. They are said to feel that it is designed for strategic bombing—a field they regard as their own.

Navy officials deny this is the chief purpose of the new carrier. They say that it is aimed at handling the planes to be expected four years hence for traditional carrier duties. But they also concede that such a craft probably could carry a big bomber laden with the A-bomb—a mission that might be needed someday.

Admiral Denfeld told the committee that construction of the carrier had been approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Key West, Fla., conference in March.

Testimony given by naval officials disclosed that the craft would have these other characteristics:

1. Be capable of operating in Arctic waters, north of the Eurasian continent, during several months of the year.
2. Handle multiple planes with a radius of action of 1700 miles.
3. Span nearly 250 feet, when hinged catapults were in position.
4. Have a speed approximately that of the Midway class, but carry much greater loads of fuel for the gas-consuming jet aircraft.

Approval Due Today

The full House Armed Services Committee is expected to approve the bill today. It authorizes the Navy to discontinue work on 13 warships which were laid down before VJ-Day. Some 337 million dollars will be saved by not finishing the guided missile craft Kentucky and Hawaii. Of this, 220 millions would be spent on the new carrier, a sub "killer" ship and some submarines.

Meanwhile there were these other defense developments:

1. Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington wrote Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) protesting that Lodge had misquoted him in a Senate speech. Lodge had said that Symnigton had "estimated" that "Russia will go to war on us as soon as she has the atomic bomb."

Symington said he never gave such an estimate and that Lodge's statement put him "in the category of a warmonger." Lodge put the letter in the Congressional Record with a statement that "I regret my error."

Draft Bill Up Today

2. The House Rules Committee announced that hearings on the draft bill will open today. Floor consideration of the measure may begin in both houses of Congress early next week.

3. A Senate Interstate Commerce subcommitte held hearings on a bill to authorize the Maritime Committee to make a long-range study of dirigibles and blimps and heard Rear Admiral Charles E. Rosendahl (retired) back the measure.

Rosenthal, outstanding expert in lighter-than-air, said dirigibles had a defense future of carrying troops, cargo, and "parasite" jet fighter planes. They also could serve as radar screens for surface fleets, he said.

P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear Corp., backed his stand, and urged construction of six big dirigibles. Chairman W. W. Smith of the Maritime Commission, however, opposed the project, saying it didn't have qualified men to make such a study and cannot support the expenditures required.

Army Shifting Moore to D. C., Hoge to Trieste

The Army yesterday announced the transfer of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore from command of United States troops in Trieste to Washington. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks as chief of the Army public information division.

Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge, commanding the engineer school at Fort Belvoir, Va., will succeed Moore at Trieste. The changes will take place in June.

Parks will be given an overseas assignment. He has been in the information division 28 months.

The Air Force announced new assignments meanwhile for several generals.

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Harper becomes head of the air university at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Muir S. Fairchild, recently nominated by President Truman as vice chief of staff of the Air Force with a temporary grade as full general.

Brig. Gen. Robert W. Burns, on duty at Air Force Headquarters in Washington, was named chief of staff of the Eighth Air Force with headquarters at Carswell Air Force Base, Forft Worth, Tex.

Brig. Gen. Edward J. Timberlake, on duty at Air Force Headquarters, has been reassigned to Far East Air Force Headquarters.

Brig. Gen. William M. Morgan, chief of engineering operations, air materiel command engineering division, at Dayton, Ohio, will take command of the Ogden air materiel area on June 1. His headquarters will be at Hill Air Force Base, Ogden, Utah.

U. S. Planes Delivered To Turkey by Carrier

Istanbul, Turkey, May 17 (AP).—The United States escort carrier Siboney delivered an undisclosed number of two-engine bomber training planes to the Turkish air force today.

The carrier will participate Sunday in ceremonies incident to the delivery of four modern United States submarines to Turkey. This was the second carrier to arrive with planes

ECA Buys Polish Coal For Austria

The first United States-financed purchase in eastern Europe under the European recovery program was announced yesterday by the Economic Cooperative Administration. Poland will ship $405,000 worth of coal to Austria.

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, commenting on the purchase within the Russian sphere of influence, said the agency will "scrutinize closely each specific proposal for ECA assistance involving trade with eastern Europe."

"Today's action was based upon Austria's need for coal for her industries, as well as the need to conserve coal here for domestic consumption," he explained.

The purchase will be made through the Austrian government. It involves 20,662 long tons of coal.

Stalin Offers To Negotiate

thing is, nevertheless, beyond doubt: There is no statesman caring for peace and cooperation among the peoples who can ignore this program, since it reflects the hopes and strivings of the peoples toward consolidation of peace, and it doubtless will have the support of millions of ordinary people."

Stalin spoke of the "inadequacy" of the recent diplomatic exchange between the two governments. On May 4, United States Ambassador Walter B. Smith conferred with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

This talk and the exchange of notes between Smith and Molotov "go no further than declaring the desirability of settling the Soviet-American differences," Stalin said.

In a note May 9 to Smith, Molotov said the Soviet Union was "in agreement" with an American proposal for "discussion and settlement" of mutual differences.

(U. S. Government sources said later in Washington, however, that Smith had not issued and invitation to Russia for bilateral talks.)

Contrasting Wallace's "open letter" with the Smith-Molotov exchange, Stalin said the "important meaning" of the third party vice presidential candidate's letter "consists in the fact that it does not limit itself to a declaration, but goes further, makes a serious step forward and gives a concrete program for peaceful settlement of the differences between the USSR and the United States."

Tells of Life In Red Capital

PAUL T. BEATLEY
He Knew McMillin

2 Pals Tell Of McMillin

later learned, Beatley said, that this warm greeting was "routine" for all new embassy arrivals.

Contacted by phone in Passaic, Timm told of a similar cordial reception on his arriving at the embassy in 1944. "I was out on a date within eight hours after arrival," Timm said.

The young men said they were briefed from time to time by superiors to be discreet while in the company of Russian women, but were never forbidden to mix socially. In fact, they said, the Americans mixed so well and freely with the Russian hostesses that the American House, where most American personnel live, had at one time a reputation of ill-repute.

Only in their description of the girl in the case did the two ex-servicemen differ in relating their experiences with the Moscow embassy. They agreed that "Galya"—Mrs. Galina Danaeva Biconish—was "exceptionally beautiful," with a near-perfect figure.

Beatley described "Mac's girl" as follows: 21 years old, 5 feet 7 inches, 115 pounds, a beautifully moulded face, marred only by an operation scar under her chin, with light brown hair; "lovely, light, Russian complexion," a smart dresser particularly in American clothes, coquettish. Timm added she was also sexy-looking, and a smooth dancer.

But when it came to the question of brains—not mere beauty—the two observers split sharply.

"Galya" was "vain and ignorant," according to Beatley, even though she was an agent of the Russian secret police. This opinion, he said, was based on arguments with her over American-Russian issues." She didn't think for herself but repeated what she'd been trained to say," said Beatley. She spoke broken English.

On the other hand, Timm insists "Galya" was, to be precise, an enchantress whose sex appeal was but a cover for her cleverness.

When asked how he accounted for the discrepancy in the opinion of "Galya's" intelligence, Timm replied: "In the first place, I know Russian fluently, better than my friend Beatley. And secondly, I've known Galya for a longer time. I got to the embassy before McMillin did, and I've followed the romance right from the beginning."

According to the official State Department announcement, the gorgeous "Galya" was—and still is—married to another GI, Sergt. John Biconish of Binghamton, N. Y., now stationed at Fort Riley, Kans.

Biconish, also 21, left Moscow in the summer of 1946 on Army orders, and had tried to bring his Moscow bride with him, but Russian authorities had refused to grant the necessary visa. Biconish is reported to have started separation proceedings on the ground that his wife would never be permitted to leave Russia.

At Fort Riley, Kans., where Biconish is now a student in the Army Ground General School Center, he was quoted by the United Press as saying:

"I can't understand this," he said. "Galina never at any time asked me about the embassy or my duties there. She was just a sweet jolly girl and we got along fine."

"She wouldn't even talk politics with me because I would tell her about how superior the American government was and she was afraid I would be overheard," he added.

After Biconish left, Jimmy McMillin became infatuated with "Galya," according to Beatley. When McMillin broke up with his roommate in an argument over "Galya," Beatley moved in. This quarters-partnership lasted but nine months, the break-up again involved the siren-spy. Beatley moved out after that. "Galya" kept Jimmy constant company when he was not on duty, according to both Beatley and Timm, even cooking his meals.

The two former aides describe McMillin as a tall youth, about 5 ft. 11 in., weighing around 150 pounds, with a thin, handsome face; quiet, studious, introvertive, intelligent. He used to be an amiable fellow, but after meeting "Galya"—apparently his first and only girl friend—became antisocial, taciturn, and extremely jealous. "Sometimes he didn't talk to me for days," said his former roommate Beatley. McMillin has been in Moscow for 25 months, Beatley said.

Young McMillin was not pro-Communist in his views, as was the case of Miss Annabel Bucar, a young Pennsylvanian who quit the embassy last winter after announcing she had married a handsome Russian. Roommate Beatley vouches that McMillin disliked the Russian system and the Russian way of life. "But he was infatuated with the girl," Beatley explains. Beatley believes Miss Bucar's defection to Russia influenced McMillin to take the same drastic step.

[The McMillin case is an odd parallel to the Gouzenko case. Igor Gouzenko, a Russian code clerk, walked out of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa with secret Soviet files in September, 1945. His disclosure of a Soviet espionage network in the Western Hemisphere has been made the basis of the film, "The Iron Curtain," now showing in Washington.—Editor's note.]

To both the former associates of McMillin, the GI's desertion came as a jolt.

"After all," commented Beatley, "Jimmy had a girl in Denver—he'd shown me her pictures, and he'd been brought up in the best military tradition. His father is a colonel. Jimmy was a good soldier, too."

In Cambridge, Mass., McMillan's sister, Patricia, 19-year-old Radcliffe College sophomore, declared her brother had been thoroughly indoctrinated in the professional soldier's code of loyalty. He wanted to attend West Point, she said, but had failed to pass the physical exam because of high blood pressure. She refused to believe that her brother has taken off with a Soviet agent.

The boy's father, Col. James McMillin, on an official visit yesterday to the Pentagon from his post in Huntsville, Ala., would make no comment.

But Jimmy's two friends, both offered a clue to his strange behavior.

"Jimmy was very impressionable," believes Timm. "The higher-ups knew what was going on and took no steps to break it up."

"Life was hard in Moscow," says Beatley. "Several of the boys cracked up under the strain. We all lived in crowded quarters and got onto each other's nerves. We were being watched all the time by the Soviet police. No wonder some of the boys became psychos and alcoholics."

The State Department, in disclosing McMillin's desertion and disappearance, said there was no doubt that "Galya's" romance with McMillin was connected with her activities as a Russian agent. She continued the affair, it was pointed out, even when the Soviet government took a dim view of Russians having social contacts with foreigners stationed in Moscow.

It was reported by the embassy that "Galya" was with McMillin in his rooms, helped him pack, and vanished with him.

McMillin will face an Army court-martial for being AWOL or for desertion if he ever comes back.

The State Department described McMillin as a minor employe, insisting it did not know whether or not he had access to important information. But both friends, Beatley and Timm, say that Jimmy was highly thought of as a code clerk attached to the military attache's office.

The McMillin case was cited here yesterday by the National Council Against Conscription in supporting its opposition to a teen-age draft.

The council said:

"1. McMillin was a normal, American teen-age boy when he went into the Army. No American boy would prefer to live in Soviet Russia if he has had a real opportunity to understand what democracy means. Yet the Army proposes to draft young boys and pit them against experienced Communist agents abroad."

Text of Stalin's Reply

London, May 17 (AP).—Following is the text of a reply by Josef Stalin of Russia to Henry Wallace's open letter:

"I think that among the political documents of recent times which have the consolidation of peace as their aim, the setting up of international cooperation and the insuring of democracy, the open letter of Mr. Wallace, presidential candidate of the United States third party, is the most important document.

"Mr. Wallace's open letter cannot be considered a simple declaration on the desirability of improving the international situation and on the desirability of settling the differences between the USSR and the United States, on the desirability of finding ways for such a settlement.

"The inadequacy of the statement of the United States Government of May 4 and the reply of the USSR of May 9 consist in fact that they go no further than declaring the desirability of settling the Soviet-American differences.

"The important meaning of the open letter consists in the fact that it does not limit itself to a declaration, but goes further, makes a serious step forward and gives a concrete program for peaceful settlement of the differences between the USSR and the United States.

"It cannot be said that Mr. Wallace's open letter embraces all questions of difference without exceptions nor can it be said that certain formulations and comment in the open letter do not need to be improved, but that is not the most important thing at the present time. The main thing is that Mr. Wallace in his letter makes an open and honest attempt to give a concrete program for a peaceful settlement, concrete proposals on all basic questions of difference between the USSR and the United States.

"These proposals are known to everybody: a general reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons; conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan and the question of evacuation of troops from these countries; evacuation of troops from China and Korea; respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and noninterference in their domestic affairs; the inadmissibility of military bases in member countries of the United Nations; world development of international trade excluding any sort of discrimination; in the framework of the United Nations, assistance to and economic restoration of countries which suffered from the war; defense of democracy and insuring of civil rights in all countries; and so on."

"It is possible to agree or disagree with the program of Mr. Wallace, but one thing is, nevertheless, beyond doubt: There is no statesman caring for peace and cooperation among the peoples who can ignore this program, since it reflects the hopes and strivings of the peoples toward consolidation of peace, and it doubtless will have the support of many millions of ordinary people.

"I do not know whether the United States Government approves of Mr. Wallace's program as a basis for agreement between the U. S. S. R. and the United States. As far as the Government of the U. S. S. R. is concerned, it considers that Mr. Wallace's program could serve as a good and fruitful basis for such an agreement and for the development of international cooperation, since the U. S. S. R. government considers that, despite the difference in the economic system and ideologies, the coexistence of these systems and a peaceful settlment of differnces between the U. S. S. R. and the United States are not only possible but also doubtlessly necessary in the interests of a general peace."

Stalin Reply Viewed With Suspicion

The White House and State Department were silent last night on Premier Josef Stalin's offer to negotiate a settlement with the United States, and the capital generally kept its fingers crossed.

They were waiting to see whether Stalin's remarks represent:

1. An attempt to befuddle and confuse the United States and thereby weaken its hand, or

2. A genuine change in the Russian tactics which have led to one impasse after another in international gatherings called to straighten out a war-torn world.

The atmosphere here was full of suspicion, but there was a disposition to hold the door open to see what the future might bring.

For example, Senator Connally (D., Texas), ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told a reporter:

"If Premier Stalin's proposal is a renewal of an offer to negotiate in accordance with Ambassador Smith's conversations, I feel the United States wil lbe glad to enter into negotiations for a peaceful settlement of our differences."

He referred to Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, U. S. Ambassador to Moscow. Smith, in a recent statement to Foreign Minister Molotov, reviewed U. S. grievances against Russia and served notice that this country intends to pursue its European recovery program, but declared it has no hostile intentions toward Russia. He emphasized that there will be no surrender of American principle but said the door is always open to discussion of differences.

The Russians jumped on this as an invitation to negotiate and, with a great publicity play, accepted it. The State Department backed away, saying it wanted not two-power negotiations of general issues affecting other powers.

Wallace Surprised

San Francisco, May 17 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, third-party presidential candidate, was shown stories of Russian Premier Stalin's reply to Wallace's open letter and commented that:

"If I have done anything that moves the world further forward toward peace, I feel that my campaign will have been a success."

Declaring that he was "very much surprised" that Stalin had replied, he also remarked that perhaps world diplomats should examine his letter to Stalin.

He withheld further comment until receipt of the Stalin reply.

British Labor Party Expels 2 Rebel MPs

Scarborough, England, May 17 (AP).—The British Labor Party formally expelled two members of Parliament today. It then set to work to rebuild Socialist unity for the 1950 general election.

Without discussion, or a dissenting vote, the forty-seventh annual Labor Conference approved the expulsion of Alfred Edwards and Leftist John Platts-Mills for opposing party policies. Edwards has been critical of government plans to nationalize the iron and steel industry.

Platts-Mills was a signer of a telegram sent to the Communist-allied Socialists of Pietro Nenni, wishing them good luck in the April Italian elections.

Twenty-one other members of Parliament escaped expulsion by promising to follow Labor's anti-Communist line.

War Minister Emanuel Shinwell, Labor Party chairman, keynoted the conference with an appeal for harmony.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, giving top priority to the 1950 elections, called on the delegates to "prepare for a victory of consolidation."

"This next election will be a great fight—the greatest fight of our lives," he said. Morrison added that, meanwhile, the government will keep pressing Parliament to carry out Labor's program.

Greece Offers $25,000 Reward For Polk Killers

Salonika, Greece, May 17 (AP).—Constantin Rentis, Minister of Public Order, posted a reward of 25 million drachmae (about $2500) today for information leading to the arrest of the slayers of George Polk, American broadcaster for CBS.

Rentis arrived from Athens to take over personal direction of the investigation into the death of Polk, whose trussed-up body was found floating in the bay off Salonika yesterday. He had been shot in back of the head.

The police refused to divluge details of their investigation, but more than 20 Communists were reported under questioning.

Authoritative sources said the police were working on the theory Polk made contact with the Communist underground in Salonika and spent several hours in a Communist hideout before he was shot and dumped in the bay.

Guild Won't Aid Ousted Reds

William S. Pryor, president of the Washington Newspaper Guild said yesterday that the executive board had decided to take no action on the Washington Evening Star's recent dismissal of a news employe for holding membership in the Communist Party.

Pryor released the following text of the board's resolution:

"Resolved that, having considered the record of the discharge of Brother (Thomas) Buchanan by the Evening Star, for membership in the Communist Party, the board is of the opinion that this severance cannot successfully be resisted as a breach of the Star-WNG contract."

The Star case is the Washington Guild's first effort to deal with issues involved in private employment rights of Communist Party members.

The resolution was moved by Dillard Stokes of The Washington Post and seconded by Mary Jane Dempsey of the Times-Herald.

Informed of the board's decision, Buchanan said he thought the action "rather unusual, and rather peculiar, in view of the fact that the members voted, at the general membership meeting of April 28, to 'recommend that the executive board take up the discharge of Brother Buchanan and that the executive board pursue the matter to the fullest extent.'"

"I believe," said Buchanan, "the vote was about 6 to 1 in favor of the motion."

The former Star reporter, an avowed member of the Communist Party, asserted that the principles of the Guild have been that political affiliations do not enter into qualifications for membership in the Guild.

Buchanan said he is unemployed at present.

Jews Claim Flood Drowns 500 Arabs

Haifa, Palestine, May 17 (AP).—A Jewish source said tonight that up to 500 Arab soldiers were drowned when the Jews opened a hydoelectric dam and flooded a plain south of the Sea of Galilee.

The source said Arab troops with tanks and heavy equipment were trapped in a rush of swirling water unleashed from a dam near Deganya on the southern tip of the biblical sea.

Some of the Arab tanks were mired in the muddy torrents, the source said. The waters were reported to have swept over a plain which lies level in the Jordan Valley along the Palestine-Trans-Jordan frontier.

Haganah fighters drove into Acre today, the old Arab seaport city 12 miles north of Haifa. Their commander said an estimated 4000 Arabs were penned in the Ancient walled area.

The commander said his forces were in complete control of the highway through the city—a key to the Jewish communication by road to northern settlements. Acre is just outside of the territory of Israel as defined in the United Nations partition plan.

Earlier, Haganah reported successes against invading Arab forces in northeastern Israel.

Haganah said its fighters drove back Arab attacks in the Samakh area on the southern shores of the Sea of Galilee, and at Gesher, 6 miles south of Samakh.

Gesher was reported previously under enemy aid bombardment and artillery fire after its defenders refused a surrender ultimatum.

North of the Sea of Galilee Haganah claimed the capture of the police station of Nebu Yusha. This is 2 miles east of Malikya, the town on the Lebanese border which was attacked on the first day of the proclamation of the Jewish state.

Dock Area of Tel Aviv Bombed; Jews Deny Walled City's Fall

Jerusalem consular truce committee, said at Amman that Jews within the old city area of Jerusalem surrendered to Arab volunteers.

Cairo newspaper dispatches reported the Jews accepted a three-point Arab surrender demand:

1. That all arms be surrendered.
2. That Jewish men consider themselves prisoners of war.
3. That women and children be delivered to the International Red Cross.

Dispatches from the Egyptian frontier reported the Egyptian army after capturing El Majdal, 35 miles up the Palestine coast from the border, was driving on Ramle, only 11 miles southeast of Tel Aviv.

(Tel Aviv reported heavy fighting in Ramle between Arabs and members of the Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi organization.)

By reaching the Ramle vicinity, the Egyptians would link themselves with the Arab volunteers operating along the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem highway.

The volunteers linked Sunday with the Trans-Jordan Arab legion operating north of Jerusalem.

Hence an Egyptian advance to Ramle would provide a continuous Arab front from the Egyptian frontier to the Sea of Galilee.

Dan's Fall Reported

Beirut reported also that in the far north Syrians took Dan, which had been under attack for several days, and started pushing southward.

Heavy fighting was reported in progress on the seacoast at the Palestine-Lebanon border. Beirut dispatches said the Jewish army was dropping parachutists along the northern Palestine coast to insure communications between Acre and Haifa.

The Egyptian national defense ministry issued a warning that the government could not stand idly by while ships carried arms and ammunition to Palestine for "Zionist terrorist gangs."

It was understood that the government sent a note to foreign powers warning that any ship which approaches Palestine waters is liable to action which Egypt intends to take at once to prevent war material from reaching Israel by sea.

The defense ministry forbade all planes to fly over Egyptian territory between 7 p. m. and 5 a. m. daily, and warned that violators would be fired on.

Schedules Changed

Air lines at once changed their schedules to keep planes off the Egyptian air lanes during those hours.

Beirut reported that the Lebanese government had started a nation-wide roundup of Communists and had arrested 25 of them, mostly district chiefs.

Authoritative sources in Beirut reported that there were serious differences between Abdullah and Haj Amin el Husseini, mufti of Jerusalem.

These sources said the mufti cabled Abdullah, thanking him for the Arab legion's intervention in Palestine, and signing himself chairman of the Arab Higher Committee.

Abdullah replied, addressing Husseini as mufti and not chairman, and told him to keep his hands off both military and administrative affairs in Palestine, including the affairs of the higher committee. Abdullah said, it was added, that he himself would henceforth appoint administrative officials of the committee.

Clothing for the Fighters of Haganah

The Washington Post

COLLECTION CENTER—Donations for the Jewish cause are being taken at a store at 5756 Georgia ave. nw. At left, Hyman Posin, three years overseas with United States infantrymen, rips his division insignia from a blouse he has donated. Mike Bargtiel, also a former GI, is behind the counter. The customer is Cal Goldstein, 1720 Capital ave. ne.

Store Collects 3000 Pounds Of GI Clothing for Haganah

A peek into a Georgia Avenue housewife's shopping bag these days might reveal some strange items—a pair of GI shoes, a sailor suit that saw service in the Pacific, some khaki pants that an Army private wore in Germany.

If you followed the housewife into the Posins' Bakery & Delicatessen, 5756 Georgia ave. nw., you'd find duffle bags—at least 15 of them—and huge boxes to receive old GI clothes.

A sign above the meat counter, printed in black and red letters, would explain: "Haganan Needs Ex-GI Clothing. . . ."

A meat manager helped start the store as a clothes collection depot for Haganan—the Jewish militia in Palestine. He's Mike Bargtell, 36, of 1310 Emerson st. nw., a former U. S. Army officer who's heart is set on going to Palestine.

Bargteil and Hyman Posin, 32, of 1615 Kenyon st. nw., coowner of the store, got the drive going May 9. Yesterday they reported more than 3000 pounds of GI clothes on hand, virtually all donated by customers.

invoke economic and diplomatic sanctions and throw air, sea and land forces of U. N. members into action.

The firm tone of the new American proposal contrasted with previous Council resolutions which had merely appealed to the Jews and Arabs to stop fighting.

The surprise American plan caused a flurry of excitement in the corridors.

Commenting on the Russian recognition, a spokesman for the Jewish agency said:

"We are very pleased. It is extremely heartening to have the United States and the USSR once again in agreement on the question of Palestine."

The move for action to stop the Holy Land fighting brought the United States and Russia closer together in the U. N. than they have been for months. The two great powers originally supported the partition of Palestine last fall but fell apart when the United States sought to veer away to a U. N. trusteeship scheme, which failed to get any appreciable support.

Aside from Gromyko's statement, the American Palestine plan was slow in drawing reaction from members of the 11-nation Council. Several said they needed instructions from home governments.

The Big Five, meanwhile, was unable to reach immediate agreement on a U. N. mediator for Palestine. It was understood that Count Folke Bernadotte of the Swedish Red Cross and Paul van Zeeland, former Premier of Belgium, were under consideration.

Faris El Khoury of Syria suggested to the Council that the question of Israel's legal status should be referred to the International Court of Justice.

El Khoury gave the first Arab reaction to the American cease-fire demand when he said:

"We have had Security Council resolutions and they have done nothing. I do not believe the resolution before us would do any good."

T. F. Tsiang of China also moved for delay, saying parties should have 48 hours to reply to Council.

Martin Aid Asked On Education Bill

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

It's "utterly unrealistic" for Congress to spend billions for the armed services and billions more for defense against "invasion of ideology" without providing for adequate education of its youth, the National Education Association told House Speaker Joseph W. Martin yesterday.

In a letter to the Speaker, who has not yet given the green light to the Federal aid to education bill, the legislative commission of NEA cited World War II selective service figures to show the manpower waste of illiteracy.

"The official figures show that 659,392 men were rejected for educational deficiencies alone. This is twice as many men as were deployed in combat divisions in the entire Pacific theater.

Army Taught 302,838

"The need for men was so great after June 1, 1943, the letter continued, "that the Army accepted and attempted to teach 302,838 illiterates to read and write well enough to perform some of the simpler duties of technical and scientific warfare.

"The Federal Government was forced to spend $137,077,100 for the most elementary type of education for these men in schools that were often of no more than eight weeks duration.

"These camp schools were staffed by trained officers and men who might better have joined their comrades on the battle fronts than teach the alphabet to men whose lack of education was due to a long time national policy of neglect."

The same lack of preparation for citizenship whether in war or peace is present today, the educators asserted.

Two Million Not Enrolled

er was told.

"There are now two million children of elementary school age not enrolled in any school," the Speaker was told.

After listing proposed defense expenditures, the statement said

"The American economy which is strong enough to support these provisions for the weapons and machinery of war is also strong enough to provide adequate preparation for its manpower."

The legislative commission, now in session here, drew attention to the fact that the Senate has given overwhelming approval to a bill providing 300 million dollars in Federal aid to schools.

Martin, while approving the principle that the Nation must help educate its children, has said the bill will not get the green light until Congress has had time to survey the whole budget picture, including defense spending.

The educators said no measure before the House is of wider interest to the people than this bill. And yet, the letter continued, a companion bill is still held in the House Committee on Education and Labor, "awaiting the sanction of the policy makers of the House."

"We believe you are in a position to give it that sanction," NEA spokesmen declared. Our purpose in addressing you is to inquire when you intend to do so."

School Plans Country Fair

The Washington Post

BENEFIT AFFAIR—Children of Phoebe Apperson Hearst School 37th and Tilden sts. nw., will give a country fair next Saturday, 3 to 8 p. m., to raise funds for recreational activities. Preparing for it are (left to right) John Bresnahan, 11; Eng Chou Wang, 6; Brooks Goldman, 11, and Patricia Nash, also 11

School Building Loan Urged

it was ordered to scale down its estimates of need, it submitted an amended report, which gave priority to 25 projects.

Recommended by the education committee, but dropped from both the finance committee and executive committee reports, were replacements for the white Hine Junior High School, the Negro Shaw Junior High School and the Negro Armstrong and Cardozo High Schools.

The education committee said its six-month survey of schools "disclosed a serious accumulation of urgent needs that must be met within five years if our moral, social and educational standards are to be maintained."

It singled out Hine and Terrell and called them "disgraceful." Since submission of the report, auditoriums in both schools have been condemned by the Fire Department.

75 Over 55 Years Old

The survey showed that of 173 schools now in use, 109 are more than 25 years old and 75 are more than 55 years old.

"Practically every school built over 25 years ago is inadequate by modern standards of design," the report said.

"Toilet facilities are particularly bad. Nearly all of these schools are dingy in appearance and have poor lighting facilities. Many of the schools have small corridors which are fire hazards, while the majority have little or no recreational facilities," the education committee report said.

"As progressive businessmen, we doubt that very many of us would be successful in buildings so inadequate, nor would our employes be content working under conditions comparable to those existing in some of these buildings where our children are required to spend their formative years."

The report of the municipal finance committee showed that opposition to the 44-million-dollar loan was led by Maj. Gen. David E. McCoach, jr., former Engineer Commissioner and chairman of the committee.

"Status of District finances" make the program neither "necessary, wise or practical," his report said.

Below-Capacity Use Cited

Pointing out that senior and junior high schools are used below capacity, the McCoach report saw "no justification for borrowing money at this time" for replacements.

The education committee report was prepared by Louis F. Bohraus and Don P. McAdoo and submitted by John M. Howard, chairman.

The 17 projects in addition to the Terrell replacement approved by the executive committee are:

Replacement for Amidon, Fairbrother and Greenleaf Elementary Schools in the Southwest; elementary school at Oxon Run; elementary school at River Terrace; addition to Eliot Junior High; improvements to Macfarland Junior High; playroom for the Rudolph Elementary School; replacement of Seaton Elementary; replacement for Stanton Elementary; addition to Banneker; addition to Bruce; improvements to Dunbar; elementary school at Pomeroy and Stanton rds.; junior high school at Pomeroy and Stanton rds.; addition to Payne Elementary; complete Slowe Elementary; replace Stevens Elementary; addition Syphax Elementary.

Projects given priority by the education committee but dropped by the finance and executive committees:

Hine Junior High replacement; completion of Patterson Elementary; replacement Armstrong High; addition to Browne Junior High; replacement Cardozo High; replacement Shaw Junior High.

Hillyer Quits Court Bar on Pact Rulings

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Settled disapproval of the recent covenant rulings led William Lowe Hillyer to resign from the bar of the Supreme Court yesterday.

On Hillyer's own motion, his name was stricken from the roll of attorneys. He had been a member of the bar of the court for 56 years.

The slender, white-haired 82-year-old lawyer was plainly surprised by the public notice that came to him after this order was entered yesterday. He told The Washington Post:

"I took this action because of deep and sincere feeling, but not as a 'protest;' I was not undertaking a demonstration.

Sees "Judicial Legislation"

"For more than 10 years I have felt that the court was indulging in judicial legislation, that the justices were assuming the functions of the Congress and the State legislatures. And after careful consideration of the decisions handed down last year in the California tidelands case, and on May 4 in the convenant cases, I came to the conclusion that I did not want to further be associated with a court that was passing judgments of that character."

Hillyer discusses these rulings in the words of the craft, using "lawyer talk" to point out his reasons for feeling that the Supreme Court departed from principles that all his life he believed to be the established law. He acted to withdraw from the bar three days after the court outlawed "Jim Crow" real estate covenants, but not until a day or so ago did he speak of hus purpose to his wife, or his son, Curtis L. Hillyer, a member of the District Board of Assistant Assessors.

Hillyer's father was Curtis Justin Hillyer, an eminent San Francisco lawyer in the last century, who was a friend of Supreme Court Justices Miller and Field. Hillyer recalled that President Benjamin Harrison offered his father a seat on the high court, but the elder Hillyer preferred to stay at the bar, where he argued a dozen Supreme Court cases and lost only one. The elder Hillyer was a judge here for several years, however.

Hillyer was admitted to the Supreme Court bar in 1892, some years after he was graduated from Columbia College. He practiced law in Newport News, Va., until he retired after his father's death in 1906. He lives at 2151 California st. nw.

Other Court Actions

Beside striking Hillyer's name from its roll, the Supreme Court yesterday:

Split four-to-four on the appeal of Harrison Parker of Chicago, who was held in contempt of court for writing a letter offering evidence to a grand jury there. This means Parker must serve six months in jail;

Refused to hear the appeal of Carl F. Delano, who got three to five years for conspiring to bribe members of the Michigan Legislature, where he was a Senator;

Ordered a new trial of the overtime pay claims of workmen hired by cost-plus contractors during the war—an issue that may involve several hundred million dollars in all;

Granted a hearing to August Klapprott—former German-American Bund leader—who claims his American citizenship was wrongly taken away from him; and Refused to review a dispute between brakemen and porters on the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad over division of work.

There are about 40 cases, which have ben argued this term, awaiting decision by the justices. Only two more sessions, at which rulings will be announced, have been set. But the court is not expected to rise for the summer until about the middle of June.

World Bank Urged To Act Cautiously

The United States Government yesterday gave the indirect advice to the World Bank and Fund to move slowly and carefully in the next few months while the European recovery program gets under way.

The advice came in a special report to Congress by the National Advisory Council, the Government's supreme policy-making body on international financial problems. The report, a detailed account of the operations and policies of the Bank and Fund, was submitted in accordance with the Bretton Woods Act of Congress.

In general, the report gave high praise to the conduct of the two international financial institutions, but to each one it directed words of caution.

It suggested that this was no time for the Bank to be floating more issues of its securities in the New York investment market.

"As the economies of the war-torn nations tend to revive," the report said, "the risk factor on loans to many potential borrowers will decline. Under such conditions, the Bank would be in a better position than at the present time to expand its loan portfolio. . . .

"As the investing community becomes more familiar with the Bank's securities, the Council believes that the Bank will be in a position to borrow larger amounts in the United States market, and thus to make further loans of such sizes and types as private investors are unable or unwilling to undertake."

As for the Monetary Fund, the report conceded that "some adjustments in exchange rates may have to be made in the near future."

"Any action in Europe must, however, be related to the provision of American assistance under the European recovery program," the report said, "and in all instances must also be related to the steps taken toward the internal stabilization of the economic and financial situations of the member countries."

Decision Reaffirmed

The report reaffirmed a previous decision to use the Monetary Fund's mechanism whenever the exchange rates of ERP countries needed correction.

Among the signers of yesterday's report were three new members of the National Advisory Council: ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe. Other signers were Secretaries Snyder and Marshall and Chairman William McC. Martin, jr., of the Export-Import Bank.

Special Jury Sworn In to Probe Gambling

secretly. There will be no announcement of when and where they will convene during the investigation.

Fay said he will have no public comment to make throughout the course of the inquiry.

Among the grand jurors are 14 Government employes. Four members of the jury are Negroes, although it did not appear that there was any effort made to divide the jury on a racial basis.

Roster of Panel

In addition to Halsted and Murphy, the jurors are:

Arthur D. Anderson, 46, of 324 E st. ne., Naval Gun Factory engineer.

John Andrews, 36, of 335 K st. se., a Postoffice Department driver.

Mrs. Dorothy Hamilton Ball, 45, of 743 Varnum st. nw., housewife.

Mrs. Ruth Overstreet Bidinger, 45, of 2106 Huidekoper pl. nw., housewife.

Miss Madeline Virginia Botts, 23, of 3608 20th st. ne., secretary in District Road Service Division, American Automobile Association.

Mrs. Thelma Lee Caylor, 46, of 4620 45th st. nw., secretary, Federal Security Agency.

William M. Everhart, 37, of 2612 Hamlin st. ne., Justice Department auditor.

Mrs. Jacqueline Minor Glover, 24 of 5308 7th st. nw., Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. operator.

Nathaniel Hedgman, 63, of 1130 48th pl. ne., Naval Retiring Board messenger.

Miss Anna Helfgott, 55, of 4709 9th st. nw., teacher at Beth Sholom Congregation and Talmud Torah.

Charles V. Hemm, 41, of 1433 Morse st. ne., clerk at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

John J. Hughes, 52, of 3819 W st. nw., deputy collector, Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Mrs. Selma S. Klein, 53, of 5265 Nebraska ave. nw., Army Department investigator.

Bernard W. Lyons, 27, of 1400 Longfellow st. nw., Bureau of Internal Revenue clerk.

Loye Lee Massey, 34, of 4105 Wisconsin ave. nw., Army Department clerk.

Mrs. Irene Page, 54, of 1700 U st. nw., maid.

Bjarne J. Sigurdson, 34, of 1254 Owen pl. ne., Government Printing Office clerk.

John T. Tucker, 41, of 2216 Randolph st. ne., hydraulic engineer, Federal Power Commission.

Arthur K. Vance, 37, of 120 Ridge rd. se., dental technician.

Mrs. Juanita P. Warner, 24, of 235 56th st. ne., card punch operator, Civil Service Commission.

Mrs. Mamie L. Coons, 64, of 1435 Montana ave. ne., saleswoman at the Hecht Co.

Lawyers on Hand

Selection of the grand jury began at 10:30 yesterday, and it was noted that several well-known criminal lawyers, who have defended big gamblers in past court actions, were present to watch the impaneling.

Of the venire of 100 prospective jurors qualified by the District Jury Commission to appear, 59 were present. The remainder were excused previously or were not located at addresses given.

Among those excused from jury duty were three women, who chose to exert their right to refuse to serve on the grand jury "solely on the grounds that they are women."

Others excused included two war veterans attending school under the GI Bill of Rights, two public school teachers, one man being called to active military service, two persons who said they had poor hearing and a woman with an infant child.

A brewery employe who said he has an ill mother to support, and "could not get along on the juror's daily pay of $4," was told by Justice Pine, "Everyone has to make a sacrifice sometimes in order to perform his duties as a citizen." Later, however, the man was excused when it was found there would be sufficient jurors without him.

Clerk's Plea Denied

Justice Pine refused to excuse a Government clerk who said her office informed her that when jury duty did not require a full day she would have to work the balance.

When the panel was completed, Justice Pine, a former United States attorney here, warned the members that they should immediately report "any attempts made to influence you improperly." He said Fay and his assistants would inform them of the statutes dealing with gambling, and added, "the statutes and laws are comprehensive, and in my opinion are adequate."

Today, Fay and Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray are expected to go before the grand jury to outline the gambling information they have been gathering, including data recently supplied by citizens.

Fay already has a list of 145 "bigger gamblers of Washington," indicating a long inquiry.

Among witnesses who will appear before the jury are Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and many other police officers, who have declared that Washington's gambling is controlled by groups headquartered outside the District. The grand jury has power to summon witnesses from any part of United States or its possessions.

Two Persons Indicted On Lottery Charges

Two persons were indicted by the grand jury yesterday on charges of operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. They are:

Burnie C. Love, 37, of 1208 Eastern ave. ne., arrested May 3 at 611 F st. nw., and Mattie Thomas, 36, of 30 N st. se., arrested February 10 at the N street address.

In both cases, members of the police vice squad said that undercover men were successful in making plays with the two suspects from whom marked money was recovered at the time of their arrest. Police carried warrants with them in making both arrests.

Smith Absence Delays Home Rule Action

House Rules Committee action on the Auchincloss bill for Washington home rule was deferred yesterday.

Rules Chairman Leo Allen (R., Ill.) said it was possible the bill will be brought up for a decision in an executive session today.

The Rules Committee can decide whether the bill is to go to the House floor with some chance for passage there, and how the bill is to be handled by the Huose.

Chairman Allen said action was held up yesterday because of the absence of Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), member both of the Rules Committee and of the House District Committee which voted 14 to 8 for the home rule plan.

At Smith's office, it was explained that ast week the Congressman had made arrangements to visit his farm near Warrenton, Va., yesterday. The arrangements were made, it was explained, before notice of the Rules Committee meeting was given. Representative Smith is expected back at the Capitol today.

Swift Makes 3-Point Proposal as Basis For Settlement of Meat-Packing Strike

Chicago, May 17 (AP).—Swift & Co. tonight offered Federal conciliator's three conditions as a basis for settling the two-month-old strike of 100,000 CIO United Packinghouse Workers.

The company, after a meeting with the conciliators and Gov. Luther Youngdahl of Minnesota, outlined these points:

1. Acceptance by the union of the 9-cent-an-hour wage increase put into effect May 3.

2. The union to roder striking employes to return to work as directed by the local plant superintendents.

3. Employes who were discharged for unlawful acts to have the right to process their grievances in accordance with provisions of the existing contract.

John E. Wilson, general superintendent of Swift, submitted the proposal voluntarily to Governor Youngdahl and the conciliators. He said the 24 Swift plants that were struck along with other major packers March 16 were operating.

Ralph Helstein, president of the UPWA, said "we have not received the proposal officially yet, and we will reserve comment until we do and we know all the implications."

Governor Youngdahl, whose State has been the scene of disorder that necessitated his calling out the National Guard to patrol three areas, came to Chicago today to seek an end to the Nation-wide strike.

Also involved in the dispute over wages are Cudahy, Wilson and Armour packing firms. Scores of independent packers also are strikebound.

Youngdahl said he was "confident that if the companies show the least spirit of give and take, we can settle the dispute. It should have been settled long ago." He talked first with Government Mediator Frank E. Walsh. Then Swift officials met with the Governor and conciliators.

The Governor's trip followed a request of the union's strike strategy committee for resumption of conferences with the packers and the union's negotiators.

Royal Night in Paris

Paris, May 17 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, out on the town in Paris, danced in a cabaret until the small hours this morning. It was a night off from the official routine of their visit to France. Songstress Edith Piaf and her company presented a "command performance."

U. S. Wants 'Out'

Rail Peace Negotiations Go on Today

The White House announced yesterday that labor and management representatives will resume negotiations today in the railroad wage dispute.

Officials of the three brotherhoods which called a strike that led to Government seizure of the carriers will meet with those representing the railroads at 10 a. m. (EDT) in the Hotel Statler.

They will meet, the White House said, at the suggestion of Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman "in an effort to reach an agreement under which the Government can turn back the railroads to private management."

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Steelman will not participate in the conference.

The Government seized the railroads May 10 and obtained a court order against a strike after long negotiations at the White House had failed to break a deadlock ahead of the strike deadline, which was set for May 11.

The talks will resume just one day before expiration of the injunction. Hearing will be held Wednesday before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough on whether the order should be made permanent.

Coal Talks Open Today; Operators To Resist Raises

By the Associated Press

Soft coal operators, huddling over strategy for new contract negotiations with John L. Lewis, indicated yesterday they will resist any demands for higher pay or bigger royalty payments to the Miners' Welfare Fund.

The contract negotiations open today.

Lewis and the United Mine Workers 200-man policy committee also gathered in a negotiation-eve planning session. They kept mum on heir plans.

The present contract expires June 30. However, the soft coal diggers have a short vacation coming up from June 26 to July 5, so the negotiators really have until July 5 to get together on a new contract.

Proposed Contract For A,B&W Filed

Union representatives of A. B. & W. Transit Co. employes yesterday filed a proposed new labor contract with Gov. William M. Tuck in Richmond.

The union, Division 1131 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach employes Association of America, advised the Governor it has asked a conference with the company to discuss the proposal May 21.

Chrysler Picket Fights Flare; UAW Threatens GM Strike

Detroit, May 17 (AP).—A flurry of picket line violence punctuated the six-day Chrysler strike today as the CIO United Auto Workers threatened Geneal Motors with a second postwar strike.

Gov. Kim Sigler ordered State police reinforcements into suburban Highland Park to help quell an outbreak of fist fighting, rock throwing and other incidence at a Chrysler plant. The flare-up was short lived.

The Governor acted as the United Auto Workers sought to tighten their grip on 16 strike-bound Chrysler plants and talked of plans to call out 225,000 General Motors employes within a fortnight.

Chrysler's 75,000 employes left their jobs last Wednesday after scaling down their wage demand from 30 to 17 cents an hour above the present industry-wide average of about $1.50. The company's refusal to reinstate a previous 6-cent offer sent the demand back to 30 cents.

A walkout in 90 General Motors plants across the Nation is a "very good possibility" unless a contract dispute is settled by May 28, said T. A. Johnstone, acting head of the UAW's GM department.

Negotiations with General Motors are slated to resume Tuesday.

Governor Sigler sent State police to Highland Park when Mayor Norman Patterson said his 30-man police force was inadequate to handle the disturbance. Patterson said Chrysler pickets were joined by "goon squads" from other UAW locals.

The Chrysler pickets had massed in front of a plant gate to prevent nonstriking office workers from entering. A melee followed when police tried to open the line.

Two pickets suffered head cuts, two nonstrikers were slugged and three car windshields were broken. Two persons were hospitalized for minor injuries. There were no arrests.

Later today Chrysler obtained a circuit court order requiring the UAW to show cause why "mass picketing, threats and coercion" should not be restrained at Chrysler's parts plant at Marysville, Mich.

The company claimed that only top supervisory employes were permitted to cross picket lines at this plant.

A hearing on the order was set for Thursday before Circuit Judge Shirley Stewart in Port Huron.

NLRB Rules On Speeches

in such a gathering would be tainted with coercion.

But the so-called free-speech provision of the Taft-Hartley law provides:

"The expressing of any views, argument, or opinion, or the dissemination thereof, whether in written, printed, graphic, or visual form, shall not constitute or be evidence of an unfair labor practice under any of the provisions of this act, if such expression contains no threat of reprisal or force or promise of benefit."

Complaint Dismissed

The ruling yesterday was handed down in dismissing a complaint brought by the United Stone and Allied Products Workers of America (CIO) against the Babcock & Wilcox Co., Augusta, Ga.

In January, 1946, the plant's superintendent, Carl Claus, delivered a prepared speech to four shifts of employes. The speech was made just before the board held a secret collective bargaining election among the employes.

Claus told the employes the company felt "that you don't need the CIO union at all . . . The CIO cannot help you here. In the long run, it may mean trouble for you, just like it has meant trouble for the people in Detroit, in New York and in other plants. . . ."

The union lost the election. It protested the company's action as a volation of the law. In June, 1947, NLRB Trial Examiner James R. Hemingway held that the company had violated the law, but Congress then passed the Taft-Hartley Act amending that law.

The panel that reviewed the case was composed of John M. Houston, Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray.

UPWA Will Battle Keefe Red Rider

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17 (U.P.).—The United Public Workers of America convention was told today it must draw up a program for "licking" the Keefe rider to the appropriations bill "and licking it this week."

The rider, attached to an appropriation bill introduced by Representative Frank Keefe (R., Wis.), would withhold wages of Government employes belonging to unions which have not filed anti-Communist affidavits. UPWA officers have not filed such affidavits as stipulated in the Taft-Hartley law.

Abram Flaxer, the union's president, attacked the rider, and also President Truman's loyalty order and the Mundt bill, in an address before the opening session of the UPW's second biennial convention.

"It is about time the public workers of this country stood up and fought back against these repressive measures," Flaxer said. "This convention must determine a program for licking that rider and licking it this week."

Earlier, the union's 22-man executive board, said if the rider passed the Senate, the union would fight it to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

"It was made clear," the board said, "that this rider will be attached to all appropriation bills and to all Government expenditure bills which come up for adoption prior to July 1, 1948. If this is done, such workers as miners, seamen, printers, electrical workers and all those who are engaged in the manufacture of goods under Government contract will be subject to jail unless they quit their union."

As to third parties, the board said, "whenever they have arisen, they have injected vitality, full and free of discussion and have helped make a more informed electorate."

The board supported the European Recovery Program but criticised "the supplying of arms, munitions and military personnel, in the guise of aid," to Greece and China.

Approximately 500 delegates, representing the union's 86,000 members, are attending the convention.

Grady Nominated To Economic Post

President Truman yesterday nominated the Ambassador to India, Henry F. Grady, as United States representative in the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

Grady will hold the post along with his jobs as Ambassador, and as Minister to Nepal.

The Economic Commission was established by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations March 28, 1947.

The President also nominated Ralph H. Ackerman to be Ambassador to the Dominican Republic.

Trio $30,000 Ahead in Run On Roulette

Las Vegas, Nev., May 17 (U.P.).—Hundreds of persons today jammed around three college youths who at the end of a week of bucking the roulette wheel stood $30,000 winners.

Albert Hibbs, Roy Walford and Jack Cortez stepped up their bets to $25 on each turn of the wheel and had no intention of quitting as long as they were winning.

The three started out playing zero with small bets last Monday. As their winnings grew, so did their bets until today when they jumped from $10 on each roll to $25. For the past few days they have been playing number one.

Many of the spectators watching the roulette marathon joined them in betting and frequently $50 or more was riding on each roll, costing the Pioneer Club nearly $2000 each time the number won.

The club said it had no intentions of changing the wheel on the three players unless they asked for it.

Last year they won $12,000 in Reno before a run of bad luck caused them to quit.

Berwyn School To Register Children

Registration for children entering school this fall will be held at the Berwyn Elementary School in nearby Maryland from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. Friday. Parents should bring birth and vaccination certificates.

At 1 p. m., there will be an opportunity for children whose parents cannot afford a private physician to be vaccinated and receive diphtheria immunization. These youngsters may also register at that time.

Your Scalp...a DYNAMIC
HAIR GROWER!

AVOID BALDNESS . . .
Let Hair Experts "Normalize" Your Scalp to help Produce
THICKER HAIR

YOU CAN'T STOP THRIVING HAIR GROWTH IN A NORMAL SCALP!
Nature's innate urge to grow luxurious hair is so intense that it takes a strong, continuous retardant, or infection to stop the functions of hair reproduction. When excessive hair loss indicates a laxity or sluggishness in hair-growing activity, Hair Experts analyze and rejuvenate the complete cycle of hair growth so that lost hair will be replaced naturally by strong, virile, obvious hair growth.

IS YOUR SCALP REPLACING HAIR AS FAST AS IT IS LOST?
The average normal scalp loses about 26,500 hairs per year. If your scalp is functioning normally, thick, healthy hairs will replace those lost in the normal replacement process . . . But if just one factor is out of balance, the replacement hairs will come in shorter, and weaker, and be successively replaced by still weaker hairs, until fuzz and scanty bald spots begin to show. If this condition exists over a period of time, your hair follicles will collapse shut from disuse and deadly follicle shrinkage will set in. After that it is too late. It is pathetic but true, that most bald people could have saved their hair and their looks had they acted in time . . . before follicle shrinkage was too far advanced.

HERE ARE THE DANGER SIGNALS:
If you have excessive hair in your combings, if you have short weak hairs at your frontal hairline, if there is excessive dryness, or oiliness, if your scalp is itchy, then there is some condition attacking your normal hair growth. Frankly, in most cases it is a seborrheic infection nurtured by heavy imbedded dandruff, which chokes off the follicular tubes. The new replacement hairs are successively weakened until they are no longer able to force their way through to the scalp surface.

WHAT ARE SCIENCE'S INSTRUMENTS TO CONQUER NATURE'S WEAKNESS?
Hair Experts use the most modern trichological methods in the country to combat and replace hair loss. Ultra-violet lamp therapy, exclusive formulae created in our own laboratories, intensive professional stimulation, and massage are all scientifically combined to normalize and return the scalp to healthy vigorous growth. Treatments are pleasant, and relaxing. No odorous chemicals, ointments, or greasy salves are used. Treatments are timed to suit your social, and physical requirements.

The Show Went On

We hope that no cases of pneumonia grow out of Sunday's National Celebrities Golf Tournament which The Washington Post was proud to sponsor in behalf of more recreation facilities for children. The downpour was certainly severe, but it had its pleasant aspect, for it contributed to the informality, and it was obvious that everyone had a good time, even in wet clothes. Virtually all the 5000 spectators stayed to the very end, and were rewarded by some excellent golf and the fun that the players and the officials imparted to the proceedings. Nothing seemed to dampen the good spirits of the participants.

The day's success was due to the unselfish cooperation of many persons, including the staffs of the Columbia Country Club and the Uline Arena. It is particularly gratifying, however, to note the enthusiasm with which the performers gave of themselves, receiving nothing in return except a thorough drenching—and the satisfaction of helping Washington's children. Bing Crosby was typical of the generosity with which all the participants contributed their talents. Not only did the genial Bing play in the tournament for the second successive year, he also managed to appear at the Winchester Apple Festival and to squeeze in a song and a quip on Edgar Bergen's radio program Sunday night.

Great Design

Mr. Churchill went back to Henry IV (1589-1610) for the inspiration of the movement to federate Europe, but, in fact, the author of the "great design" was Henry's great minister and mentor, the Duc de Sully. It was not till 28 years after Henry had died that Sully attributed to his late sovereign a project for welding together a European federation. Both of them were so impatient to improve French society that they were prepared to go to almost any length in order to promote a peaceful environment out of the perennial conflict over religion. The memory of both of these remarkable men is revered in French history.

An alliance rather than an association was primarily in Sully's mind—an alliance against the House of Hapsburg. Yet forms of association, intended to knit Europe together as well as to intimidate Austria, were set forth. Under the "great design" the constituent states of Europe were to be allowed representation in a general council, though there was a recognition of the inequalities of power in the provision that major powers should have four representatives and minor powers two. Force was to be used in keeping the peace through an international army. Nothing, alas, came of the scheme. Indeed, Sully offered it "as an ironical memorial on what might have been," as if in the circumstances of the day the idea itself was too far-fetched to be thought of except as an essay in Utopia.

Actually, as we have seen, Sully's project was half-utopian, half-practical. But it was the idea that caught the fancy of succeeding philosophers. Down the years the Sully memorial was taken up as the basis of a federation movement. The first thinker who approached the problem ethically was Immanuel Kant, who, though agreeing with such philosophers as Hobbes and Hegel that man was by nature selfish and base, believed that history had proved to mankind that organized states catered to self-interest. He thought that when men came to realize that rival societies or states were just as disastrous to self-interest as individual rivalry, they would federate their states. The League of Nations was greatly indebted to the principles enunciated by Kant.

Most important in the Kantian approach is the suggestion that only free peoples could associate in a true federation movement. Without liberty and equality assured to the individual, a federation, in Kant's mind, would be without meaning or substance. Kant thus had a moral idea as well as enlightened self-interest back of his project. Mr. Clarence Streit's Federal Union is the only one of the modern ideas on federation or world government that carries out the Kantian doctrine, though the British Commonwealth is a demonstration of it. "Every state for the sake of its own security," said Kant, "may and ought to demand that its neighbor should submit itself to conditions similar to those of the civil society where the right of every individual is guaranteed."

Association to secure peace and justice is what mankind needs, more than an alliance simply to defend peace. But, as in Sully's time, the realization of danger without a common defense precedes the realization of the advantage of peaceful association. We have already seen the beginnings of this approach in the Vandenberg-Lovett resolution on the regional system in Europe and the "revision" of the United Nations. All that is contemplated at present is a nexus across the Atlantic based on mutual help in defense. This could perfectly well come into being under Articles 51-54 of the U. N. Charter. Article 51 provides for collective defense, Articles 52-54 for regional arrangements. But if these were activated in tying together the nations on both sides of the Atlantic, and the organization built out of the cession of some sovereignty to a federal authority, the foundation of an organized free world rather than a mere alliance might well be in prospect. At least the community of mankind would be made visible in the way that has been envisaged all the way back to Henry IV and Sully.

Mr. Truman's Veto

In pursuit of his generally sound doctrine that the President should be master in his own house, Mr. Truman has vetoed the bill authorizing the Senate members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy to require reports from the FBI on nominees to the Atomic Energy Commission who can hold office only with the advice and consent of the Senate. The President's chief complaint is that five Senators would be permitted, under the bill, to direct the FBI to make a report. That, he fears, would be an unwarranted encroachment upon the executive branch. "The complete independence of the executive branch," he wrote in his veto message, "renders it imperative that the executive have sole authority over the officers whom he appoints."

If the bill has any constitutional weakness, it probably lies in the fact that it enables five Senators to direct the FBI to act in this particular instead of imposing that duty directly upon the FBI by command of Congress. Certainly there can be no doubt that Congress can require an executive agency to make an investigation and report its findings to Congress. The Atomic Energy Act, for example, instructs the AEC to keep the joint committee "fully and currently informed" as to its activities. To be sure, the President ought to have "sole authority" over officials in the executive branch so far as the performance of their duties is concerned, but the function of prescribing what their duties are belongs to Congress.

This is a problem which obviously requires cooperation between the President and Congress. Mr. Truman emphasizes his great responsibility in making nominations to the AEC and pledges himself to use every facility of the executive branch in uncovering facts about the appointees. He seems to forget that the Senate has an equally grave responsibility, also imposed upon it by the Constitution, to act intelligently in confirming such nominations. We do not think it is unreasonable for Congress to provide that, in meeting this obligation, the members of the Senate chiefly concerned should be able to draw upon the fact-finding facilities of the FBI. It is not a question of demanding FBI reports that are made to the President, but only of making separate reports for the benefit of the Senators who will have to recommend approval or rejection of the nominees.

It is well to remember, in dealing with questions of this sort, that, while we have a separation of executive and legislative powers, we have one government and not two. An arbitrary attitude on the part of either Congress or the President can upset the normal cooperative relationship which alone enables the American system to function satisfactorily. Congress has attempted various encroachments upon the executive, and it may be that the President feels it necessary to strike back in a narrow spirit to sustain his position. We cannot help thinking, however, that in this instance he pushes his argument too far.

Nuernberg Postscript

Among the men who directed the war crimes trials there is strong sentiment for definite establishment of a world law applicable to future aggressors and for the creation of a permanent court to make such law effective. The latest indorsement of the idea of a World Court to try war criminals comes from Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, the chief American prosecutor at the more recent Nuernberg trials. General Taylor was not, of course, acquiescing in the criticism that is frequently aimed at those trials. He considers them "a landmark in the development of international law." Apparently his chief interest now is to institutionalize the principle of punishing individuals guilty of starting an aggressive war or committing heinous crimes against humanity under the cloak of war, as a means of insuring its future acceptance.

A year and a half ago The Washington Post urged the negotiation of a war crimes convention as a logical follow-up to the Nuernberg trials and suggested that future proceedings of this sort might well be conducted by a branch of the International Court of Justice. When Francis Biddle returned from Nuernberg, where he served as the American member of the International Military Tribunal which tried the first group of Nazi war criminals, he called for the drafting of a "code of international criminal law." Previously George A. Finch, chairman of the American Bar Association's committee on the punishment of war criminals, had made a similar suggestion. Support for general application of the principle of punishing the perpetrators of aggressive war, through an international tribunal, also came from the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., consultant for the Americans handling the Nuernberg case. Last summer a committee on the development of international law recommended that the General Assembly set up a commission and instruct it to formulate a war-crimes code in harmony with the Nuernberg pattern.

Undoubtedly the trials accorded the German and Japanese war criminals will have a powerful influence upon the treatment of war criminals at the close of any future conflict that ends in a democratic victory. But that influence will be still greater if the principles laid down at Nuernberg are formalized into binding international law. At present there is no treaty committing even the four powers which conducted the Nuernberg trials to the definition of war crimes or the procedure of the trials that they followed by simple agreement. The shaping of such a convention is a logical and proper step for a commission representing the General Assembly, and that body should not be allowed to forget its responsibility in the matter.

Price Guessing

Administration spokesmen who have been warning the public of the dangers of further inflation are beginning to relax a little. The ultracautious chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers recently told the United States Chamber of Commerce convention that the "prospects of an arrest of inflation are a little brighter." And quite a few less cautious forecasters are predicting that prices will be lower at the end of 1948 than they now are.

When we appraise the possible effects on future prices of Government policies, business practices and changes in consumer demands, the reasons for the sudden soft-pedaling of the inflation theme become evident. We have been, and still are, fearful of the effect on prices of the recovery and rearmament programs. But it now appears that those fears have been exaggerated. The recovery program will not entail any expansion of exports; on the contrary, exports are expected to fall below the 1947 level. If the military situation does not take a turn for the worse, the impact of spending for the armed forces will be spread over a considerable period, and its full force will not be felt for a good many months. Trouble may lie ahead, as Dr. Nourse points out, in the form of budgetary deficits and "disturbing increases in taxation," but it is not an immediate menace. The increased inflationary pressures growing out of the reductions in income taxes will likewise be spread out—the great mass of low-income consumers having a little more money in their pay envelopes during the coming months.

Nevertheless, all these developments spell more inflation in the absence of counterbalancing factors. Are any such factors in evidence? We think there are some hopeful indications. The most potent influence in pushing up prices has been the rise in wages—both a cause and a consequence of spiraling prices. That spiral can be prevented from rising higher and higher only by the exercise of restraint on the part of labor and management. We are not at all sure that such efforts will succeed, but some unions, at any rate, have modified their wage demands while some firms are voluntarily keeping down or actually cutting prices of goods that could easily be sold at much higher prices.

Shortages still prevail for certain basic industrial goods and materials, although stocks of most consumer goods have been built up. We can get along nicely, if industries can continue to operate at full capacity; but paralyzing strikes might result in higher prices caused by supply shortages, or simply enforced deprivation resulting from loss of wages. In short, price-forecasting is a game of chance in which the honors do not always go to those who know most about price-making processes. That, no doubt, explains why Dr. Nourse coupled his qualified prediction of brighter prospects with warnings that "inflationary pressure may revive in menacing form."

International Volunteers

On Wednesday, 200 Princeton University students sent a petition to the President and to members of Congress urging, among other things, the creation of a world police force. What is distinctive and interesting about this petition is that its signers are also the signers of a pledge that they "would be willing to serve for one year in an international police force to be used by a World Government to enforce world law." Thus there is added to the assertion of a great principle the readiness to share in making it effective.

This is no empty gesture. A majority of these young men served in the armed forces of the United States during the recent war. Their zeal is for the prevention of war precisely because they know better than most of us how ruinous war is to every civilized value. How different their attitude is from that displayed a decade or more ago by college students who signed the Oxford pledge to refrain from military service of any kind! The pacifism of that day was a wholly negative, indeed a nihilistic, approach to the problems of a troubled world. In the present manifesto, there is affirmation and a demonstration of faith that the world's problems be met and overcome. The change is perhaps the most heartening omen of our times.

PRAYER OF THE HUNTED

God, I came from Thee and I was part of Thy touch and Thy sight.
I was of the tree;
I was of the night;
I was of the river and the sky.
God, I flowed from Thy hands and I wish to die
upon mine own lands.
I was of the wind and the rain;
I was of Thy faith and Thy right;
I was of Thy pain
and I am of Thy light.
God, I blew from Thy breath;
I was of Thy soul.
If they give me death,
O God, leave me whole.

Meeting With Russia

One of the worst phases of the Smith-Molotov note affair is that it is being regarded here as merely a "diplomatic blunder." What about the Russians? Is the American invitation—and response to their acceptance of it—a "diplomatic blunder" to them? Or is it now one of their most potent arguments that the United States is insincere when it professes to desire peace with the Soviet Union?

The main point of the notes is that both countries are mutually dissatisfied with the actions that have been taken. How, then, can we resolve this dissatisfaction? By further actions that are sure to be mutually unacceptable? Or by words that might, conceivably, lead to better actions?

If the United States believes that a round-table discussion would be hopeless, why did it open its door to the Russians in the first place? Just to be able to slam it in their faces?

There is still time for the Administration to reverse its decision and reextend its invitation. Right now that seems like the only way to convince a skeptical world that we really want peace with Russia.

If the United States were to include in its delegation a few of the world-known figures in the fields of science, education, literature and the church, and invite the Soviets to do the same, we might create the best possible atmosphere for amity. Until now we have our faith in the professional politicians. Why not let the humanitarians have a chance? MORRIS FRISCH.

Transit Victim

The newspaper account on April 28 of the death of William W. Shytle after being struck on the previous day by a streetcar, says nothing about what attention was or was not given to the man during the more than 15 minutes before the fire rescue squad arrived.

Although he was only slightly pinned under the guard and was obviously still alive, the motorman refused to do anything about moving the streetcar, because he said that to do so was against the law. This I know as the person responsible for borrowing an auto jack and lifting part of the weight from the victim.

Admittedly, it would have been difficult for the motorman to have moved his car backward without at the same time rubbing the victim's body slightly, but it might well have been better than to have allowed the man to remain under the car for such a long time without attention. As it was, the rescue squad pulled him out forward without any more "jacking up" of the car than had already been done—which was not much.

It is a well known fact, as the American Red Cross will verify, that shock is one of the major causes of death in accidents and that it should always be treated promptly. (While the car remained in position this could not be adequately done.) Had the man been injured to the extent of his bleeding seriously, he could easily have bled to death before the arrival of the rescue squad, because it would probably have been impossible to have stopped the flow through the use of pressure points. Secondly, a telephone call to the Police Department did not produce any evidence of a law prohibiting the moving of a streetcar after an accident.

I should certainly hate to be the recipient of the kind of lack of care that Mr. Shytle was. Isn't it time that Capital Transit uncrossed its signals regarding moving of streetcars (or buses) after an accident and gave its operators at least enough of the rudiments of first aid that they would know what should be done after an accident?

Strike Effects

It is encouraging to note that the contemplated railroad strike has been called off at least for a while. The members of the group which threatened the strike are unreasonable in their demands. They should be satisfied with the same increase in wages that has been awarded to other railroad groups. The selfish interest of any one group should not be allowed to outweigh the interests and the welfare of the country in general.

The meat packing employes' strike has worked a serious hardship upon those of us who have to eat in order to live. The resulting price of meat has gone unreasonably high and good meat is hard to get.

The auto industry workers have created a condition whereby a person of ordinary means can hardly afford an automobile, and at the present time an automobile is a necessity rather than a luxury.

The coal miners have caused the price of coal to go sky high which may in turn necessitate living in cold houses next winter, at least for some of us. The prices of coal, moreover, affect the prices of steel and other commodities which means that we have to pay dearly for most any kind of manufactured article we have to buy.

We have not yet fully recovered from the devastating effects of the last war, and even now war clouds again are looming high above the horizon. It is no time for any group to take advantage of the situation and resort to the use of the strike weapon in order to accomplish ends that are primarily selfish.

Ticket Racketeers

We have been working vigorously for the past five months on the railroad reservation racket in an endeavor to get the Interstate Commerce Commission to adopt our method of signing both ends of tickets by all passengers (Pullman and coach), to stamp out this vicious practice.

In spite of the heavy demand for freight and passenger space, it appears that the railroads are about 95 per cent in receiverships. The Interstate Commerce Commission claims that there is no black market existing—and that there are always available upper and lower berths, and coaches. This is definitely a misrepresentation and an attempt to deceive the public because our records show that every day trains are departing more than half empty, as all the tickets are being withheld by the racketeers for the highest bidders.

Our investigation further discloses that even today, off season, public must pay at least an additional $10 to get a coach seat; that tickets are sold in blocks, 30 days in advance, to the racketeers, and that the public and business suffer because they do not know where to get them even at the black-market prices.

The public may register complaints in the form of a letter or post card at the Savoy Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla., listing any difficulty in securing accommodations and how much money, if any, was paid. We do not require the name of the party to whom the money was paid. Any complaint at all would be useful to us in bringing this matter to a successful conclusion.

Egyptian Gratitude

The Egyptian attack on the new Jewish state of Israel is one of the most notorious instances of national ingratitude of our day. A few years ago, when Rommel was on Egyptian soil and approaching Cairo, an Egyptian army was conspicuous by its absence. It was a Jewish brigade, as part of the British Eighth Army, that fought to liberate Egypt from Nazi invasion.

National Health Assembly

Your excellent reporting of the National Health Assembly just concluded in Washington hardly emphasized enough the fact that the high costs of sickness are now everybody's business—laymen and physicians alike. At that meeting, over 600 representatives of the medical and allied professions, and of business, labor, farm, church, women's, veterans', cooperatives, and other groups framed a national health program.

For the first time, health insurance has been unanimously recognized as a far better system of paying sickness bills than the traditional "fees for service." The insurance principle would abolish everybody's worry about unpredictable doctor and hospital bills.

In unmistakably clear terms, the assembly declared: "Adequate medical service should be available to all without regard to race, color, creed, residence, or economic status . . ."

"The principle of contributory health insurance should be the basic method of financing medical care for the large majority of the American people in order to remove the burden of unpredictable sickness costs, and avoid the indignities of a 'means test' . . ."

All of us can also assent to other basic principles which the assembly indorsed: Supplement health insurance through tax funds where necessary; encourage voluntary health insurance plans, particularly in rural areas; remove present restrictive laws against such voluntary plans; coordinate medical care services.

As a private practitioner of more than 40 years' experience, I am gratified to note this agreement on many principles. However, on the basis of that same experience, and as chairman of a national organization of doctors and laymen, I think it important to call attention to our conviction, which many laymen and doctors at the assembly shared, that voluntary insurance plans can not be expected to cover more than a fraction of our population.

A national health insurance plan, assuring free choice of doctor, professional freedom for the doctor and decentralized administration through the maximum utilization of State and local bodies, is necessary in order to bring the benefits of health insurance to all who need it. Voluntary insurance plans could continue under national health insurance.

Credit for the success of the assembly goes to many groups: To Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, for convoking it; to the representatives of the consumer, farm and labor groups and to the American Medical Association, which was instrumental in bringing out a report as a unanimous recommendation of the medical care section. The pledge of AMA spokesmen to take part in future progress can be expected soon.

The assembly further proves that the Nation's health concerns all of us: the doctors who treat patients, who are responsible for all professional work; the people who foot the bills, responsible for financing and administering the health insurance program.

Washington Calling

Stormy Israel

NO ISSUE in many years has so confused the average American as the issue of Palestine. One obvious reason, of course, is that policy-makers in Washington have themselves appeared to be overwhelmed by confusion.

There are other reasons, too. The ordinary citizen has sensed that a deep injustice has been done to the Jews, who have seen a whole series of promises broken. But at the same time a current of conflicting propaganda has made for doubt and uncertainty.

Among the Jews in this country the divisions are deep. The terrorist acts of the Stern Gang in Palestine have alienated some sympathy for those who failed to realize that this is a tiny minority in a people struggling mightily to maintain discipline under conditions of desperate provocation.

At least a half dozen times the United States has taken positions that no one was prepared to back up. That is the primary reason why so many people feel they cannot find any reason in the welter of headlines about Palestine. The most conspicuous example, of course, was partition, which came about because of United States pressure. But when the full implications of this move were apparent, then the United States backed down, or, to put it more accurately, the little group in the State and Defense Departments that had all along opposed partition succeeded in getting it nullified.

IT IS this background that raises doubts about President Truman's sudden and dramatic move in according recognition to the new state of Israel. The move was a bold one. It should hearten the embattled Jews now defending what they have for 30 years considered their homeland.

But the decision for partition was also a bold one. If recognition is to be merely a gesture, then it can be worse than empty.

After all, the United States "recognized" Loyalist Spain all through the desperate years when that duly constituted government was being destroyed with the help of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy. Materials of war were going to Germany while an embargo kept them from the Loyalists in Spain.

The test will come in the meaning of recognition. Will the Arabs continue to have access to arms from the outside while an embargo prevents the Jews at the head of a duly constituted state from buying the materials they need in this country or elsewhere?

The very fact that one can talk of the conflict in these terms is to show how great is the peril to the peace of the world. In spite of the talk of invading Egyptian and Syrian armies, there is a comfortable assumption that the forces of the Arabs will not be too great for the forces of Israel to withstand. But that has almost too easy a sound.

THUS FAR, it is true, the Arabs have seemed so divided and so impotent that those who built them into a powerful bogey must feel more than a little foolish. But if they move with a unified and powerful force, the threat to the peace of the Near East and, in fact, to the world will be great. Those within the United Nations who have been forced to stand by while constructive policy has been sabotaged and the prestige of the U. N. dangerously and perhaps fatally weakened will then be able to say, "I told you so."

There will, however, be small satisfaction in that. An ever-spreading war will call for positive action if it is not to continue to spread and once again stir a general conflagration.

In the murky atmosphere of election-year Washington, there are all sorts of rumors about Palestine. From influential policy-makers come dark hints of pressure and the threat of exposure.

If it were possible to have a fair and honest inquiry, the public would be served. But that is quite obviously impossible. So we will continue to get a barrage of warring propaganda.

Now and then a shaft of truth cuts through the murk. Such is the Collier's article by Jorge Garcia Granados, Guatemala's delegate to the U. N. He tells of the intrigues, in which important Americans participated, to sabotage partition. It is a wretched story, full of shame and humiliation.

The only real hope is in the strength of the new state and the pioneering people who have created it. They have shown, long before Israel came into formal being, remarkable powers of resistance and endurance. Perhaps in the face of their unyielding resistance, a decent settlement will be possible, one that recognizes the rights and promises that go back for three decades.

Preventing Delinquency

May we not do a better job in preventing juvenile delinquency?

Should there not be a ban placed on the showing of movies about robberies and gangsters, especially to children? Why sell pistols and tommy guns to children, therein teaching them the use of real guns as soon as they can secure them?

Why not limit or ban the sale to juveniles of books about murder and crime?

As parents, should we not pay more attention to the activities of our children, pal with them and their friends, help develop their spiritual life by seeing that they attend the Sunday school and church services, and supervise their reading and recreational life more closely?

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Clarification In Palestine

IT IS much too early to write off the United Nations as a failure in Palestine. In fact only now, after the events of last Friday, is the Security Council, or the United States as a member of it, in a position to take the kind of action which in the American official view is required by the Charter. This action, said Ambassador Austin on February 24, "must be directed solely to the maintenance of international peace. The Council's action, in other words, is directed to keeping the peace and not to enforcing partition."

Lippmann

Action by the Security Council to keep the peace could not begin until the United Kingdom ceased to be responsible for the government of Palestine and until the state of Israel had been recognized as its legal successor in the territory defined by the General Assembly.

UP TO Friday of last week the Security Council could have acted to maintain international peace in Palestine only if Great Britain, as the legal government, had said it was the victim of aggression. Britain did not say this. Therefore, the fighting in Palestine was internal disorder, like the uprising in Bogota, and not a breach of international peace.

Even though the violence was aided and abetted by Arab governments outside of Palestine, there was no case before the Security Council as long as the British government did not choose to call upon the Security Council for help. This is a crucial point in any understanding of what has happened in Palestine and of what is now going to happen. The problem of Palestine could not come before the Security Council in the form which enables the Council to act to maintain peace until there was a government in Palestine which called upon it for help. Thus, it would have been impossible for the Security Council to take action against the external guerilla forces in Greece if on December 3, 1946, the Greek government had not requested it under Articles 34 and 35 of the Charter. If the Greek government had taken the position of the British mandatory government, that it was responsible for law and order in its territory and that it was not the victim of external aggression, the Security Council could not have taken action in Greece.

THE TERMINATION of the British Mandate and the recognition of the state of Israel have radically altered and greatly clarified the task of the Security Council. Any invasion of the territory of Israel as defined in the United Nations Resolution by the armed forces of Egypt, Syria, Iraq, or Trans-Jordan is now an unmistakable act of aggression which the Security Council is obligated to oppose.

The whole machinery of the United Nations organization can now be set in motion to arrest the aggression and to bring about a settlement of what is now, and only now, a clear cut problem of international peace.

THERE SEEMS to be little doubt that the king of Egypt has actually committed an overt and avowed act of aggression by sending his army and his bombers across the frontiers of Israel. He should be called sternly and promptly to account and ordered to desist.

There is, on the other hand, no evidence as this article is written that the king of Tran-Jordan has committed aggression. The entry of his forces into the Arab portion of Palestine is not an act of aggression since there is now no state and no government in that territory. If he intends to occupy the territory up to the frontiers of Israel, and to respect the international status of Jerusalem, he has as good a legal title as anyone to do just that.

IF HE DOES that, the prospects of a peaceable settlement—that is to say of a peace treaty—should be reasonably good. For the Kingdom of Trans-Jordan is a British satellite state. It was created by the British government, its king was set upon his throne by Britain, its government derives almost all its revenue from Britain, its army is led by British officers, it has been trained and equipped by British government, and it is bound by treaty to Great Britain.

Therefore, in arranging for a peace treaty between Israel and Trans-Jordan, Mr. Bevin, acting through his delegate on the Security Council, will be negotiating with his agents in Trans-Jordan. Mr. Bevin is, therefore, exceptionally well placed for the role of peacemaker. Since the provisional government of Israel has explicitly and unreservedly accepted the boundaries fixed by the United Nations, the problem of making peace is reduced to persuading the king of Trans-Jordan to come up to but not to cross those boundaries.

It is evident that Mr. Bevin is the man to induce the king of Trans-Jordan to do just that. For Mr. Bevin controls all the inducements. And consequently his is the main responsibility for the prevention of an international war in the Middle East.

The Speeding-Up

By Sumner Welles

Omens Of A Russian Showdown

NERVOUS TENSION is again mounting in western Europe. Molotov's success in making it appear that the Soviet Union is willing, and the United States reluctant, to negotiate a settlement is merely one phase in a cleverly executed war of nerves.

The uneasy confusion of the moment is reminiscent of the period between Munich and the outbreak of World War II.

While many correspondents report an apparent abatement, there are in reality signs of intensified Soviet activity in every part of Europe, in Asia and the Near East, and in the Americas.

The Kremlin's immediate purpose is the conversion of the Black Sea into a Russian lake. The first step toward this traditional Russian objective will be a "request" by Socialist republics. Extreme pressure is being brought to bear upon Iran to discard American cooperation and to submit to becoming a "friendly state" in the Soviet meaning of the term. Although the Turkish government is now told that the Soviet Union wants a return to "normal relations," the Black Sea program will be completed by renewed demands upon Turkey for the cession of Kars and Ardaher, and for military control of the Dardanelles.

The State Department has been insisting that pro-Russian sentiment predominates in Jewish Palestine. The exact contrary is the fact. The government of the Jewish state is in the hands of proven anti-Communists. It is by now an open secret that American volunteers are training and directing the Jewish army. But Soviet agents are making good use of the opportunities afforded by this Government's disastrous policy in the Near East to inflame social antagonism and to provoke major hostilities.

KOREA is on the verge of chaos as a result of Russian maneuvers. The authority of the national government of China steadily weakens as the control by the Communists of Manchuria and North China steadily increases.

The recent Soviet coup in Czechoslovakia was regarded here as a blunder. It was a prime factor in turning the Italians against communism. It unquestionably created profound resentment against the Soviet Union among the peoples of western Europe. But, like the treaty exacted from Finland, Moscow viewed it as an indispensable part of a program intended to expedite the Sovietization of the countries within the Russian orbit, and to facilitate the Kremlin's control of the territory occupied since 1939.

These recent instances of a speeding-up process is evidence that tends to confirm the reports now flooding certain foreign offices of western Europe which assert that the Soviet government plans to force a showdown before next autumn.

They warn that Moscow is preparing for a move in September before the European Recovery Program can have much concrete effect, and before American rearmament has made any progress. Documents have been received which purport to be detailed Russian plans for the occupation of major western cities, especially those of Scandinavia, France and Italy.

At the very moment that Molotov is telling the diplomatic representatives of Russia's satellites in eastern Europe that "there is to be no war," this torrent of alarmist reports is creating a new wave of fear in western Europe. The spirit of confidence that had grown so quickly after the Italian elections is once more on the wane.

THE RAPID enactment by the Congress of the proposals in the majority reports of its Armed Services Committees for selective service and for the other measures needed to bring about adequate rearmament would make it less probable that the Soviet government will seek to force a showdown. Had such action been taken by France and Britain before Munich, "the unnecessary war" might well have been averted. It would do much to revive confidence in the western democracies.

Molotov's announcement of his willingness to begin "a discussion and settlement of differences existing" between Russia and the United States is added proof that the Kremlin has studied the tactics so successfully employed by Hitler during the years before 1939.

It is propaganda designed to weaken western Europe's will for resistance and for unity. It is intended to delude the gullible here and in the other democracies as to the true nature of the Soviet Union's aims. It is so timed as to lessen popular support for American rearmament and persuade the Congress that passage of legislation that is essential to American security can be safely postponed until after the national elections.

Any attempt on our part to negotiate an over-all settlement before the Politburo knows that American rearmament has taken place would be a fatal mistake. The Soviet government will only conclude the kind of settlement that can make for lasting peace when it has become convinced that the strength and the tenacity of the west are equal to its own.

A negotiation now would either end in a futile compromise by appeasement or in a stalemate that would serve Moscow as a pretext for further expansion.

U. S. Treasury Advocates End Of Oleo Taxes

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United States Treasury wants to get rid of the taxes on margarine that bring the Government seven million dollars a year.

Department facilities, Undersecretary A. Lee M. Wiggins told the Senate Finance Committee yesterday, "could be more usefully devoted to the discharge of its basic responsibilities in tax collection.

"Excise taxes should be used only for revenue purposes," Wiggins said. He added that there appears to be "little, if any need for the use of these taxes for regulatory purposes."

Two-Day Hearing Begun

The committee began a two-day hearing on the bill to repeal all margarine taxes and licenses. Committee sentiment appeared to favor repeal, although many witnesses, including Senator Robert a Taft (R., Ohio), suggested that public eating houses should be required to tell their patrons they serve margarine in place of butter.

Taft suggested that each pat of margarine be imprinted. Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) asked a law requiring restaurants to carry a notice on menus that margarine was used.

Merchant Difficulties

Tyre Taylor, counsel for the National Association of Retail Grocers, said that many retailers don't sell margarine because of the taxes.

Harold C. Smith of the Wholesale Grocers Association testified: "It costs wholesale grocers $60 to $100 a month for clerical work to make out the monthly reports. The wholesalers can hardly move without placing himself in jeopardy of nine severe penalties for possible violations."

Dairy interest, opposing repeal of the tax, will testify today.

Imports Hit

Argentina Bars Outgo Of Dollars

Buenos Aires, May 17 (AP).—Bankers reported today the government-owned Central Bank of Argentina has suspended transfer of dollars and other hard currencies from the country in payment for imports.

The order, understood to have been issued Friday, will have the effect of stopping, or slowing, imports from countries dealing in United States, Portuguese, Swiss and Swedish money. It will affect imports from all the Western Hemisphere, which is in the dollar bloc.

Trade with Britain, France, Spain, Belgium, Italy and Czechoslovakia is not affected.

For some time Argentina has had a dollar shortage. The same is true of her chief clients—Britain, which eats Argentine meat and wheat; the Low Countries, which eat her grain; and Spain, which buys Argentine cotton.

The result has been a big, unsatisfied market on both sides of the Atlantic. Argentina's customers have not been able to buy all they would like because of a lack of dollars, and Argentina has been in a similar position.

The Marshall Plan is expected to give Argentina dollars indirectly by supplying them to her western European customers.

Bankers believe the new foreign exchange restrictions will be temporary.

Armless Man Passes in Test On ICC Driver Rules Change

Young Jerry Leavy picked up a water carafe, pulled the stopper, and poured water into a paper cup.

Examiner Warder Rannells of the Interstate Commerce Commission rose from his seat to watch. The eyes of every other person in the hearing room were fixed on the 22-year-old Los Angeles youth.

For Jerry is a double amputee. He lost both arms after he fell from a tree in 1940. Today he wears the latest mechanical devices as replacements for lost limbs.

"Let the record show that the demonstration was completed successfully," said Rannells, who is gathering evidence for a proposal to change the rules that forbid anyone who has lost a leg or arm to drive a truck in interstate commerce.

Opposed by Carrier

The change in ICC rules is opposed by the Specialized Motor Carriers Association of Austin, Tex., but only "as it would affect carriers of our type," E. H. Cassidy, association secretary, said.

Cassidy said his members were engaged chiefly in hauling heavy oil field equipment.

Leavy, a prosthetic device tester, said that he could do virtually anything that any other man can do.

He testified he had driven an automobile more than 100,000 miles without a mishap, adding: "Amputees are more careful drivers than many others."

Other Witnesses Offered

Similar testimony was given by Earle H. Daniel, who is a specialist in the training of amputees at New York University.

The National Association of the Physically Handicapped offered other witnesses in support of a rule change.

Paul L. Sims, instructor of amputees in auto driving at Walter Reed General Hospital, and Clyde Shreve, Washington auto dealer, told the examiner they could drive automobiles despite handicaps.

Sims drives with only his right arm. Shreve said he had driven more than a million miles since he lost his left arm 45 years ago.

Tells How to Secure A Mastery of English Quickly

An interesting new booklet offered free to men and women who want to secure a real mastery of the English language tells of a "fool-proof" method for studying English usage without attending classes. The plan, as described in this little book, has been worked out by Grenville Kleiser, who has helped thousands of students to a better command of English.

According to the publishers, this world authority uses no involved rules of grammar or rhetoric, but presents a simple, straightforward, inspiring method that secures real results in very short time. Thousands of users of this method, they say, have gained increased power to express themselves in fluent, convincing, clear-cut English and so have improved their possibilities of social and business advantages.

To acquaint more men and women with the advantages of improving their understanding of English, the publishers, Funk and Wagnalls Company, have printed full details of this speedy, pleasant method in a booklet which they will send to anyone who requests it. The address is Funk and Wagnalls Company, Dept. 258, 153 East 24th Street, New York 10, New York. A penny postcard will do. There is no charge for the booklet.

Dewey Hits Stassen Stand on Red Ban

them and what they stand for," Dewey said.

The method of outlawing the party is "Hitler's and Stalin's methods," he added.

Dewey claimed that the Communists grew in power in the countries that outlawed them.

He pointed to Italy under Mussolini, and France under the Nazis as examples of his arguments.

He said he was against any law that deprives a person of his civil liberties because of religion or because of his racial or political ideas.

Stassen's view was that the Communists used the "blessings of legality" to gain power in other countries. He said outlawing Communists would not endanger civil liberties of other persons.

Dewey said a law to outlaw communism would be useless because there "are 27 acts already" that outlaw "every conceivable form of subversion."

Stassen, in rebuttal, asked the Governor why, if there were 27 such acts, Communists in New York have not been prosecuted under them.

"Why is it," Stassen asked, "that New York, with 9 per cent of the Nation's population, has 40 per cent" of its Communists?

He claimed that in recent years only one Communist in New York has been prosecuted, and that was in a libel case involving a Communist newspaper.

Stassen said the Mundt bill would outlaw the Communist Party because the party aims at "undermining" liberties and "overthrowing" the American Government.

The bill, Stassen said, would specifically outlaw organizations directed by foreign nations and aimed at overthrowing the United States Government.

"The Communists are the threat of war," Stassen declared. He said the matter of outlawing the party was not "thought-control. The Mundt bill does not violate the Constitution, he added.

In his rebuttal, Dewey claimed that Stassen had "surrendered completely."

He said Stassen actually had given up his stand of outlawing the Communist party because of Stassen's backing of the Mundt bill, which the New York Governor said does not outlaw the party.

"Mundt himself says the bill does not outlaw the party," Dewey said. "Therefore, Stassen has surrendered."

He claimed the former Minnesota Governor actually had told a Nation-wide audience that he has changed his position on the Communist stand.

"The Mundt bill is probably harmless," Dewey said, "although I have my doubts about its constitutionality."

He characterized as a "very good provision" the part of the bill that would require Communists and Communist-front organizations to register.

"You cannot shoot an idea with a law," Dewey declared. "It's self-destructive."

Stassen, saying he thought Dewey was "sincere" in his stand against outlawing communism, declared that "I am not certain of the reasons for Mr. Henry Wallace's opposition to my position."

Stassen said he was convinced the Communist parties of the world were directed by the rulers of the Kremlin.

He claimed that Czechoslovakia had been "betrayed" by Communist "overground and underground forces, directed from Moscow."

He said the "Communists never had the support of a majority of the people" in Czechoslovakia, but had moved "under the blessings of legality" to overthrow the government.

"Free countries," Stassen said, do not have "adequate laws" to safeguard themselves from communism.

The Communist organizations, he said, "are not political parties. They are fifth columns."

Stassen said America needs "a new law to make illegal any organization, either above ground or below ground, which is directed by the rulers of a foreign power for the purpose of overthrowing the Government of the United States."

Stassen asserted that when the Communists came into power in Russia they immediately outlawed all other parties.

He pointed out they themselves had not been outlawed by the previous governments.

He said the Communists used the "blessing of legality" in Poland, Romania, Albania and Czechoslovakia and other nations before coming into power and bringing these nations into the Soviet orbit.

"These are the facts," he said. "These are the facts that are bringing the danger of a third World War."

New Drug Aids Epileptics

had been taking other drugs, showed less striking results, and Dr. Fetterman warned of the dangers of a sudden switch in medicines for epilepsy. In effect, he said the patients must be weaned away from present dosages to a combination of four to six mesantoin tablets with one to three capsules of dilantin sodium, which he called the range of ideal dosage.

Reports on Treatment

Of the 90 who were converted in the two-year study, the report stated, 33 showed successful improvement, 34 showed considerable improvement, 21 showed slight to moderate improvement, and two were termed "failures."

The drug (mesantoin) was found most valuable for grand mal epilepsy, which is manifest in coma and convulsive fits. For petit mal, marked by momentary lapses of consciousness and momentary twitchings, it was found "of little or no use," the doctors reported.

Dr. Overholser Urges Psychiatry Ethics Code

Prompt formulation of a code of ethics for the practice of psychiatry was recommended here yesterday by Dr. Winford Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Until such a code is adopted and enforced, he said, the profession is "seriously hampered" by "sensationalism," "courtroom conflict" and "unfounded claims for new procedures" in treatment of the mentally ill.

Dr. Overholser, president of the American Psychiatric Association, addressed delegates attending opening session of the association's annual meeting, which began its four-day convention at Hotel Statler yesterday.

The nearly 2500 specialists in mental ills were welcomed by a letter from President Truman, who declared the Nation "looks to experts in the field of psychiatry and other mental sciences for guidance in the evaluation of our mental health resources."

Dr. Overholser recommended that any code to be considered should strive for "sound ethical and scientific conduct" of psychiatrists, and should set "desirable" standards for the administration of institutions for the mentally ill.

He stressed also the importance to the profession of ending any arrangements in which legal boards of laymen can nullify recommendations of qualified psychiatrists.

Coincident with yesterday's activities, Capt. Colon Elroy Alford, representative of Ecuador to the Pan American Union, announced the awarding of his country's national order of "Al Merito" to Dr. Overholser for "outstanding merit and services to Ecuador and to humanity." The award was largely based on Dr. Overholser's program of postgraduate courses in psychiatry at St. Elizabeths, attended by physicians from both Central and South America.

In a critically worded resolution, the delegates yesterday called on the House of Representatives' Rules Committee to report out favorably the bill authorizing United States participation in World Health Organization. By delaying such action, said the resolution, the committee "is sterilizing" long efforts of the association and allied professions toward solving health problems international in scope.

One on the Aisle—

Elwood P. Dowd Presents 'Harvey'

By Richard L. Coe

AFTER THREE AND A HALF years "Harvey" is part of American folklore. With Frank Fay playing his great role—and what a honey of a part it is—the National has a comedy that no one will want to miss.

There is something very fitting that what may prove to be the National's final stage play should be this thoroughly enjoyable excursion into the half-world of fantasy and reality. For Mary Chase had a magical idea when she wrote this comedy of a man running away from facts and magic is the essence of theater. All the stars of several generations have played this stage of ours on a site that has been theater over a hundred years. So if the curtain must fall, it is proper that it will fall on a great part in the hands of its creator.

For Elwood P. Dowd is a great part. Elwood's search for a world removed from the petty irritants and hypocricies which make pigs of us all is something we all can understand and yearn for. His flights of imagination are riotously funny and they are silently pathetic. It took Elwood 40 years, he says, to find Harvey, the big white rabbit who has overcome not only time and space—but any objections.

As you must know (for the fame of "Harvey" to a certain extent militates against that fresh surprise which is the essence of Mary Chase's comedy), Elwood P. Dowd's fondness for drink and his sometimes invisible companion has played havoc with his sister's and her daughter's lives. The sister longs for her neighbors' respect and the daughter wants a man. When Elwood is entered in an asylum, his happiness is so much more evident than that of his legal, medical and family associates, their conclusions take an impractical, but philosophical course.

Elwood's Observations

That Miss Chase might have written a better play is no doubt true, but that she might have gotten across her delightful whimsy more effectively is doubtful. Certainly the skeleton outlines are more obvious at a second sitting than at the first; one's memory plays tricks, but there are some arid stretches to "Harvey" and some of the scenes are patently contrived.

For all that, it has taken real imagination and wit to evolve Elwood P. Dowd and his pungent observations. "I've wrestled with reality for 40 years," he remarks, "and I'm glad to say I've won out over it." When a person suggests he would be glad to see him again or dine with him, he naturally asks "When?" When someone asks him "Is there something I can do for you?" he honestly replies: "What did you have in mind?"

Then there is Elwood's careful description of his first meeting with the 6-foot-1-inch rabbit. "I saw him leaning against a lamp post when I came out and he called me by name." "Didn't you think that rather peculiar?" asks the psychiatrist. "No," smiles Elwood, "you know how it is in a small town; everybody knows everybody else."

Fay's Inspired Comedy

Fay is nothing less than brilliant as the happy lush. His darts of humor and uncanny underplaying have been widely remarked. It seemed to me last night he was inclined to reach for some of his laughs, but it remains an inspired playing of an actor's dream. And somehow one rejoices that Producer Brock Pemberton didn't bring us his classic without Fay.

In the almost equally juicy role of Sister Veta Louise is Dora Clement, who had a smaller part in the original production. Anyone playing the character created by Josephine Hull must, in the minds of those who saw Miss Hull, be at a disadvantage. For Miss Hull is comical to look at and emphasizes her tiny structure with gestures and effects that simply couldn't suit Miss Clement. While it is impossible to forget the inspired Miss Hull, I'm sure you'll enjoy Miss Clement. Her technique is toward the surface farce of Veta, not the grotesque innards.

The balance of the company is willing and able, with Fred Irving Lewis playing his original role of the chief psychiatrist. The direction of the late Antoinette Perry makes much of the author's mercurial moods and it's fitting, too, that this director's most successful assignment should be perhaps the National's last.

But it's Mary Chase's comedy invention and Fay's haunting makebelieve that make "Harvey" a play to relish.

THE CROSS ROADS Theater, as you may have noted in Sunday's paper, will be opening its twelfth consecutive summer season Wednesday night, June 16, with William McCleery's comedy, "Parlor Story." . . . With Forney Reese, an actor in many past performances, as this season's director, the Cross Roads folk will be holding casting auditions at the theater tonight and Thursday night at 7:30 . . . Other plays on the schedule include "The Bees and Flowers," "Separate Rooms," "Mr. and Mrs. North," "Soldier's Wife" and "Years Ago" . . . For further details as to plays and casting, phone WOodley 5303.

AND TODAY'S Event, of course is the opening of the Circus at 26th st. and Bennings rd. ne. . . . Only three days this year, don't forget, today, Wednesday and Thursday.

"HARVEY." Brock Pemberton presents the Pulitzer Prize comedy in three acts by Mary Chase. Settings by John Root. Directed by Antoinette Perry. At the National.

Dalstrom Held Not Intoxicated on Duty

One of three charges placed against Ivan J. Dalstrom, District fire department machinery superintendent, as the result of an auto accident in Colmar Manor, Md., on April 11 was dismissed by a department trial board yesterday.

Dalstrom

The board found Dalstrom not guilty of using intoxicants while on duty, but continued until 1:30 p. m. today its hearing of two other charges — intoxication and operating a department vehicle "at such a speed or in such manner as to cause collision, damage or accident."

The charges were placed against Dalstrom by the fire department following his arrest on a charge of drunken and reckless driving, after his department sedan crashed into another auto at the intersection of 38th ave. and Bladensburg rd. In Hyattsville Police Court, he was acquitted of drunken driving, but was fined $50 and costs on the reckless driving charge.

Dismissal of the charge of using intoxicants came on motion of Defense Counsel Paul E. Jamieson after a fire department executive officer testified Dalstrom was technically off duty after he left the department's repair shop following a Sunday morning inspection. The officer, Capt. W. H. Ronan, said the fact Dalstrom was driving a department car did not altar his opinion.

Conducting the hearing are Henry E. Wixon of the Corporation Counsel's office, chairman; Robert L. Mudd, principal assistant to the District auditor, and Deputy Chief J. A. Mayhew of the Fire Department.

Unlawful Law Practice Laid To Attorney

Richard C. Horne, jr., Washington attorney and a senior warden of historic Falls Episcopal Church, yesterday was indicted by a Fairfax County grand jury on a charge of unlawfully practicing law.

The indictment charged Horne conducted his law practice in Fairfax County without a license on May 14, 1947, and on other occasions last year.

Horne, 201 N. West st., Falls Church, told The Washington Post last night he had not known of the charge against him until a friend called after adjournment of court.

He said he helped in preparation of a case in Fairfax County Circuit Court last May involving Falls Church. He said he had cross-examined one witness and that he regarded his actions as "right and proper."

Others indicted by the Fairfax grand jury yesterday and the charges were:

Housebreaking—Lawrence E. Bailey, 35, Spring Hill, Va., two charges.
Felonious wounding—Robert L. Allen, 18, Sterling, Va.; Jack Chase, 35, Gum Springs, Va.; Dallas F. Layne, Vienna, Va., two charges.
Manslaughter—Cecil J. Davey, 34, Route 1, Clifton, Va., two charges.
Leaving the scene of an accident—George M. Coyle, 37, Harpers Ferry, W. Va.
Felonious escape (from State Road Camp No. 13 in Woodbridge, Va.)—Dallas Cope, jr., 24; Richard Dull, 20.

The grand jury exonerated Eugene T. Shafer, 38, 102 W. Fairfax st., Falls Church, who had been charged with attempted rape.

Child Star Aids Crusade

Screen Sweetheart Margaret O'Brien and Attorney General Tom Clark joined forces last night in an appeal for aid for 230 million luckless children in Europe and Asia.

Their appearance featured a program at the Department of Commerce auditorium which launched the "Crusade for Children," a campaign in which it is hoped to raise 60 million dollars nationally to feed and clothe children in war-stricken areas overseas.

Because of threatening weather, the program was switched inside from the Sylvan Theater

Little Margaret O'Brien received a tremendous ovation from the overflow crowd of more than 1000.

"I have just come back from Europe," she said, "and I want to tell you how lucky we are. In Europe and Asia there are 230 million children who need food and milk and clothing so that they can be as healthy as we are. Won't you help?"

Clark, declaring the children overseas are "innocent victims of the failure of men to bring peace on earth," said:

"Americans would rather bombard distressed peoples with bread than with bombs. We would rather feed them than fight them."

The "Crusade for Children" will benefit 26 foreign-aid agencies. It is sponsored by American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children. It is hoped to raise about one million dollars locally.

Ruptures are dangerous—see your doctor immediately. If he advises you to wear a truss, he will probably tell you to see Kloman's who are truss specialists, employing only expert fitters. We will fit you properly with a lightweight truss which has no discomforting under straps, springs or elastic and will positively not slip. It is invisible and anatomically correct.
Be sure to have the proper truss fitted correctly, as an improperly fitted truss does more harm than good. We fit the best quality trusses that modern science affords. Proper retention guaranteed, if worn as fitted and instructions followed.

IF THE MUNDT BILL IS ENACTED . . .

You may be thinking, speaking, acting, FOR THE LAST TIME without threat of prison, heavy fines or loss of citizenship

WE, who have signed this statement, believe it our duty to warn:

THAT the Mundt bill, proposed by the Un-American Activities Committee, will gag freedom of speech and institute thought control

THAT efforts to effect changes in our Government by peaceful, constitutional means may become tantamount to treason, punishable by fines, ten years imprisonment and loss of citizenship.

THAT the Attorney General, a political appointee, will be given the extraordinary power to brand and destroy organizations as "Communist" on the basis of vague standards, if he believes that some of their views or activities are similar to some of the views and activities of a "Communist political organization" or a "foreign Communist government."

THAT a political organization so branded will be required to register, file the names and addresses of all its members, and tag everything it distributes as "Communist." Its members will face imprisonment if they work for the Government, or travel abroad, or if their organization fails to register.

THAT members of a nonpolitical organization, so branded, will similarly face fine and imprisonment if their organizations fail to comply with the act.

THAT we already haxe laws making it a crime to advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, and requiring registration by agents of foreign principals, but this bill denies the accused a trial before a court. The Attorney General is made prosecutor, judge and jury.

UNDER our constitutional system, no public official may prescribe what is orthodox in politics, religion or other matters of opinion. Once such power is granted, liberty is subject to the whim of those in power, and any unorthodox opinion may be suppressed.

It is clear, therefore, that if this bill is enacted, America will have been moved a long way toward fascism.

Accordingly, we urge the Congress to REJECT the Mundt Bill.

The House is voting on this bill today. If you agree with our views please phone or wire your Congressman now. Then arrange to join us in this effort by writing Miss Elizabeth Christman, 2901 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington 8, D. C.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

WASHINGTON POST

"When exposure takes the form of official stigmatization and is attended by the imposition of severe handicaps, it amounts to suppression. And once this sort of suppression is permitted, it is bound to be applied not alone to actual Communists but to dissenters and nonconformists of every kind. The end is a suppression of liberty in the name of security."

from Editorial of Sunday, May 9, 1948

NEW YORK POST

"Are the liberals really so terrified by Congressional threats of purges that they refuse to take the leadership in opposing police state legislation, for fear that they might be labeled "slightly Red"? If so, Congressman Mundt and his fellow conspirators on the Thomas Un-American Activities Committee have already achieved their primary purpose."

from Editorial of April 29, 1948

CIO NEWS

"Our chief concern, frankly, is over the effects the measure would have on civil rights and the manner in which it could be used unfairly against labor unions and other liberal groups . . . The Attorney General—be he Tom Clark or someone who succeeds him in the future—could, through design or error, destroy or serious harm liberal organizations which have no connection with the Communist Party."

from Editorial of May 10. 1948

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE

The bill is "a threat to all organizations engaged in the effort to obtain full citizenship rights for all American citizens . . ." It "establishes a new standard for determining what is subversive. Heretofore this determination has been made by the Courts on the basis of overt acts. Under this bill, opinions, attitudes and associations may subject one to the charge of participating in subversive activities."

from Statement of May 12, 1948

AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION

"The Civil Liberties Union is opposed to all penalties on mere opinion or association. It is "Un-American" in principle. It is ineffective in practice. . . . On all grounds the measure should be opposed by those who cherish the American principles of Civil Liberties.

from Statement of April 29, 1948

NATIONAL LAWYERS GUILD

This measure can only be understood as a product of mounting hysteria in our land. In the past we had the Alien and Sedition Laws and the Palmer Raids after World War I. They are among the blackest pages in American history. If this measure is enacted, its impact will be far greater . . . while the shadow of freedom might remain, the substance would be lost."

Phils Club Giants, 7-1; Move Into 4th

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, MAY 17.—Bob Feller, Inc., has inscribed a new baseball book for the market titled "How to Pitch" and Hal Newhouser is now knee deep in the manuscript of his own tome on pitching. They could have picked a better year for their by-lines. The Big Name pitchers have been having a horrible time of it trying to win ball games this season.

POVICH

Feller has won some, and has a tolerable record of 4-and-2, but he hasn't been over-aweing the opposition thus far. In fact, after starting off with a pair of nicely pitched victories, he was belted out of the box in his next three starts.

Newhouser's record to date is pretty ragged. He's won only one ball game. That was the season's opener. Since then in four straight starts he has been blasted into early showers, and when he poked his nose into a relief job for the Tigers the other day it developed into "Losing pitcher—Newhouser."

In the National League, the top pitchers have had it rough, too. Ewell Blackwell, 22-game winner for the Reds last season, and supposedly the hottest article in the league, won his season opener like Feller and Newhouser. And like them he couldn't finish his next three starts. Brooklyn's 20-game winner of last year, Ralph Branca, didn't pitch a complete game until his fourth start of the year.

ALSO HIGHLIGHTING the evidence that it's a rough year on name pitchers is the release the other day of Tex Hughson of the Red Sox, to the Austin, Tex., club, of the Class B, Big State League. A year ago at this date, there was much debate over whether Hughson or Feller or Newhouser was the best pitcher in baseball. Then Hughson came up with arm trouble.

Hughson's arm trouble was, in fact, foretold by many a veteran baseball man familiar with the big right-hander's passion for trying out new pitches. Not content with one of the good fast balls of the American League plus one of its better curves, Hughson was attempting to throw knucklers, sliders and screwballs, and Boston catchers actually ran out of signs.

Two operations last winter failed to restore the snap to Hughson's throwing arm and the Red Sox easily obtained the necessary waivers to get him out of the big leagues and farm him to Texas where the sun will bring a cure, Hughson hopes. Clubs will gamble the waiver price on pitchers with sore arms but they shy away from pitchers with operated-on flippers.

WITH HUGHSON'S PLIGHT in mind, Manager Johnny Neun of the Reds almost blew a gasket in Florida last spring when his ace, Blackwell, announced that he was now experimenting with a new gadget called a "palm ball." It was supposed to be some kind of a modified knuckler. Anyway, Neun told him to lay off and just pitch the same kind of pitching that won him 22 games with the lowly Reds last season.

There's a report now that Feller is attempting to perfect what is, for him, a new pitch, the slider. Other pitchers have thrown it with success, but apparently Feller isn't doing it. Connie Mack was quoted the other day as saying a pitcher can win with only one good pitch—a fast ball or a curve. Feller has the best fast ball in the American League and there are some who believe that his curve ball is the league's best, too.

The slider, though, is a wonderful pitch. It's so good that batters complain about it. Dick Wakefield of the Tigers, attributes his 1948 slump to the frequency with which the pitchers are throwing the slider. "Most every pitcher is taking it up now, and it's rough," complains Wakefield. "I'd rather hit against Feller's fast ball. Anyway, Feller's curve is his best pitch."

NEWHOUSER has been the most surprisingly ineffective of the name pitchers. Or maybe it isn't so surprising. He won only 17 games with a second-place club last year, and lost 17. That may be the tip-off that Newhouser's stuff has lost some of its luster. Certainly this season he hasn't been blowing the ball past the hitters as he did in 1944-5-6.

When he's not a winning pitcher, Newhouser isn't the happiest guy to have around on a ball club. The other night when he was getting plastered by the Nats at Griffith Stadium, he didn't bother to return to the bench but walked directly to the showers. With four defeats in a row, the Newhouser temper is beginning to show.

Before he was traded from the Tigers to Boston, Catcher Birdie Tebbetts used to maintain that Newhouser was a better pitcher than Feller. "Not only that, but easier to catch," said Tebbetts. This year, one thing is certain, however. He may be easy to catch but he's also easy to hit.

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

Donnelly Allows Only Four Hits

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP).—Blix Donnelly hurled four-hit ball tonight as the Philadelphia Phillies clubbed out a 7-1 victory over the New York Giants and moved into fourth place in the National League standings before a crowd of 16,165.

The Phillies socked New York hurlers, including starter Bobo Newsom, for 10 safeties and also received help via three Giant errors.

Johnny Blatnik paced the Phils attack, cracking out three safeties to run his hitting streak to nine successive games.

Sain Stops Bums, Braves Romp, 12-3

Brooklyn, May 17 (AP).—The Boston Braves scored their fourth straight victory without a defeat over the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight, hammering five Dodger pitchers for 18 hits and a 12-3 triumph. Johnny Sain went the route for the Braves, yielding nine hits.

9.3 Dash Mark Called Phoney

San Francisco, May 17 (U.P.).—Dink Templeton, former Stanford University track coach, charged today that Mel Patton's record-breaking 9.3-seconds 100-yard dash was a phoney.

Templeton said he timed Patton at 9.5 in the Fresno, Calif., event Saturday, and that the official timers who made it 9.3 were "snap happy."

The outspoken Templeton, now a radio sportscaster, gave Patton credit for running a good race. But he pooh-poohed any idea that the Southern California speedster set the first new world's century record since 1929.

"The race didn't even look fast to me in the accepted sense," Templeton insisted, "and I can only come to the conclusion that the official timers were trigger-happy on their stop watches.

"My 9.5 couldn't have been that far off."

Just a Visit . . .

Babs Scott, Button See President

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

BARBARA ANN SCOTT and Dick Button, Olympic skating champions, paid a visit to President Truman yesterday.

Their call at the White House climaxed their weekend stay here as participants in the National Celebrities golf tournament at the Columbia Country club.

Mr. Truman congratulated Miss Scott and Button on their success and remarked that young people make fine amassadors.

The President, Miss Scott and Button exchanged autographed copies of a new book by Bill Henry titled "An Approved History of the Olympic Games."

Henry is a former sports columnist for the Los Angeles Times, now conducts a news program over CBS, and was a central figure in staging the 1932 and 1936 Olympic games.

HENRY WILL CONTRIBUTE to the Olympic fund of 1948 all proceeds from the sale of his book.

Barbara Ann's mother, Button's father and mother, Canadian Minister Thomas A. Stone and Daniel W. Bell, chairman of the District Olympic fund-raising committee, also were in the party that visited Mr. Truman.

Miss Scott, who traveled to Washington direct from her home in Ottawa on the Colonial Airlines, returned home yesterday for a well-deserved rest.

She has been making personal appearances for charity since her triumph in the Olympic Games and Button has appeared with her numerous times.

Her next public appearance will be in Philadelphia, June 3, when she will be crowned queen of the twenty-sixth annual convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Button yesterday returned to his home at Englewood, N. J. Button plans to remain an amateur and complete a college education. Miss Scott probably will turn professional soon, accepting movie and other offers.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS yesterday carried this sidebar on the National Celebrities Tournament:

Tired of Texas? Then don't pay any attention to stories on the sports pages about the second annual National Celebrities Golf Tournament.

The man who thought up the benefit affair, and who sponsors it jointly with The Washington Post, is Texan Tom Clark, the Attorney General.

The winner of the prize or Oscar in the professional class was Byron Nelson of Texas. Winner of the women's championship was Babe Didrikson Zaharias, originally from Beaumont, Tex.

In the Celebrities championship class (exclusive of players with competitive golf background) a guy named Dizzy Dean, who calls Dallas, Tex., his home, tied with Bing Crosby.

Crosby is reported to be from some State on the West Coast.

Caps Claim Seven Giants in Draft

Coach Arnold "Red" Auerbach last night announced that seven players have been claimed by the Washington Capitols in the Basketball Association of America's collegiate draft.

The players selected are: Jack Nichols, University of Washington, 6 feet 6½ inches; Leo Katkaveck, North Carolina State, 6-1, 194 pounds; Thornton Jenkins, Missouri, 6-2, 198 pounds; Al Williams, Arkansas, 6-6; Jack Langdon, Texas, 6-7; C. T. "Dixie" Parker, Louisiana Tech, 6-6, and Don Walker, Sam Houston State Teachers, 6-6.

Nats Hopefully Hurl Hudson Against Chisox

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, May 17.—The seventh-place Nats drop down in class tomorrow. They meet the eighth-place White Sox. Conditions are excellent, the Nats are hoping, for the puncture of the four-game losing streak they brought into the West.

Manager Joe Kuhel is relying on Sid Hudson tomorrow to uncurdle his sour pitching situation, at least for a day.

Hudson, however, has won only one of his four starts this season but he hasn't shared in the most recent mauling of the Washington pitchers who have been pummeled for 33 runs in their last three games.

It's a two-day series with the White Sox before the Nats move on to St. Louis in their Western swing.

The brightest item on the ball club of recent date is the hitting of Carden Gillenwater, the newly acquired outfielder from Milwaukee, who bashed out three in two games against the Red Sox. Gillenwater's fellow newcomes, Outfielder Ted Stewart, from the Yankees, has shown little power, though.

Despite the fact that Tom McBride is sitting on the bench with a .361 overage, Kuhel declares he will continue to play Gillenwater and Stewart against all kinds of pitching, "at least until I know more about them.

The White Sox have been having it even rougher than the Nats. They didn't win their fourth game of the season until yesterday when they split a double-header. They have been licked 16 times.

Last Week's 'Pick Winner' Baseball Contest Is Voided

Sunday's heavy rains, which washed out most of the baseball games on the Eastern Seaboard, also voided last week's Pick The Winner Baseball Contest.

Contest rules state that at least seven games must be played in the major leagues each Sunday for the entries to be judged.

Winners in each week's contest will be awarded a trip to the World Series and two tickets to a Nats' home game.

So, all ou baseball experts get your entries in for this week's contest. The entry blank was published in the Sunday's Washington Post sports section, together with all contest details.

Jack, Janiro Fight Put Off To Next Week

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

An insufficient advance sale and excessive rain yesterday caused the Beau Jack-Tony Janiro fight to be postponed until next Monday.

The 10-rounder was scheduled to be held last night at Griffith Stadium. Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the Liberty Atheltic Club, however, had a fleeting look at the skies and a sighing glance at his almost empty financial cupboard yesterday and requested the District Boxing Commission to spare him from a washout.

The commission reserved its decision until 2 p. m. That's when the heaviest rain of the day hit and the delay was granted.

Weigh-in at 2 p. m.

Jack and Janiro weighed in at 2 p. m. and this formality was witnessed with more than usual interest by Chick Wergeles, Jack's manager. Janiro had agreed to come in at no more than 149 pounds or lose a $2500 forfeit. He scaled 148½—8 more pounds than Jack.

Jack will remain in Washington, resuming training at 2 p. m. on Wednesday at the Liberty gym. Janiro and Trainer Fay Arcel departed for New York, where they will drill until Friday, when they once more shift to Washington.

The week's delay was granted with enthusiasm by Ahearn, but Matchmaker Gabe Menendez of the rival Turner's Arena fight club was unhappy about the whole thing.

LaMotta vs. Stribling

Menendez has a middleweight attraction between Jake LaMotta and Ken Stribling of Washington, on May 31 and was hopeful of having next week to himself to ballyhoo his show.

Cooper-Cardenas Added to 31st Show

Featherweights Jimmy Cooper of Washington, and Jose Cardenas of Mexico City, have been matched in the eight-round semiwindup to the LaMotta-Stribling fight at Griffith Stadium, May 31.

Cardenas, flashy little Mexican flailer, put an end to Cooper's streak of eight straight victories last winter at Turner's Arena, fashioning a unanimous eight-round decision.

Tickets may be purchased at Turner's Arena, 14th and W sts. nw.; Griffith Stadium, Adams Hat Store, 1329 F st. nw.; Latt's Tie Bar, 910 14th st. nw., and Billy Banks' Tie Shop, 1235 U st. nw.

Nats Send Okrie To Charlotte

The Nats have sent Leonard Okrie, rookie catcher, to their Charlotte farm club in the Tri-State League.

"We had to cut to get down to the player limit," President Clark Griffith said. "But this is a temporary move. He's a good boy, and he'll be back."

A 185-pounder who is only 23 years old, Okrie batted .314 in 79 games at Fayetteville and WPI in 24 games with Des Moines.

Tech Wins, 9-3, Gains Playoffs; Coolidge Defeats Central, 6-4

Bob Quinn Holds Wilson to 8 Hits

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Right-hander Bob Quinn pitched McKinley Tech into second place and the playoffs yesterday with an eight-hit job which throttled Wilson, 9-3, at Wilson Stadium.

The Techites reach for even greater Interhigh League heights when they tangle with pace-setting Eastern today at Eastern. In other league games today, Roosevelt plays at Western, Anacostia at Central and Coolidge at Wilson, all starting at 3:30 p. m.

With Anacostia, Coolidge and Wilson all in the running for the two still unclaimed playoff spots, the two last named games are of most importance.

Quinn literally kept things well in hand for Tech yesterday. He personally accounted for 15 of the 21 putouts by fanning 6 Wilson batters, and handling 9 assists.

Tech put the game away with a four-run outburst in the third inning. Bill Jones struck the big blow, a two-run double. Charlie Beckett's double drove the third run across, and Jeff Jackson's fly to the outfield brought in the fourth.

Colts Move Into Tie for Third Place

Six straight singles coupled with two Central errors gave Calvin Coolidge five runs in the third inning and a 6-4 victory yesterday in an Interhigh League baseball game at Central. The win was the fourth straight after two losses for Coolidge, and boosted the Colts into a third-place tie with Wilson.

Jess Houston, Jim Colliton, Stan Greenberg, Jack Brosnan, Pitcher Ed Hughes and George Ashton clubbed out the successive safeties for Coolidge. The loss was Central's fifth straight against one win.

'Skins Sign Behr of Terps

The Washington Redskins yesterday furnished further proof that they're only slightly swayed by what they read in the papers.

They signed Sammy Behr, who might rate as one of the least publicized players of last year, to a contract for 1948. He was the thirty-ninth gridman on the line for the local National Football League outfit, which expects to sign 11 more players before the start of practice August 1.

Behr, University of Maryland halfback who weighs only 165 and stands 5-10½, wasn't a regular on the Terps' 1947 team. The little speed merchant starred the year before but last season played only one game, against West Virginia.

Quite naturally he was ignored in the annual NFL player draft. But he wasn't forgotten by Redskin coaches who'd happened to see him in his one outing.

Behr is the tenth free agent the Redskins own this year. Included on the list of athletes nobody thought of drafting are such veterans as Don Avery, Jim Peebles, Sal Rosato, Hugh Taylor, Doug Turley and George Wilde. First-year men are Andy Aitken, tackle from Los Angeles City College; Roger Dughi, Randolph-Macon full back recommended by a sports writer, and Ray Whelan, center from Rochester University.

West Point, N. Y., May 17 (AP).—Clarence (Chief) Boston, an aide at Harvard University since his graduation there in 1939, was named today an assistant football coach at Army.

Boston will help fill the vacancies created by the moving of Andy Gustafson to the University of Miami and Herman Hickman to Yale as head coaches.

Navy Downs Rutgers in 10th

Annapolis, Md., May 17 (AP).—Rutgers edged out Navy today, 2 to 0, in a tightly-played baseball game that saw no scoring until the tenth inning.

In the tenth, Right Fielder Al Rubenstein rapped out a bunt for a base hit. Andy Sivess then singled. Pitcher Norman Morton sacrificed, and a single by Steve Kalapos scored Rubenstein and Sivess.

PGA Play Starts On Wednesday

St. Louis, May 17 (U.P.).—The Nation's top pros found the rolling Norwood Mills course tough going today as they played their first practice rounds in a warmup for the PGA championship which will begin Wednesday.

About half of the 128-man field practiced on the 6467-yard par 71 layout, and they reported scores ranging from 72 to 75. A high east wind was blowing over the hilly fairways, however, and most of the pros believe they could tear the links apart on a quiet day.

Lloyd Mangrum, Defending Champion Jim Ferrier, Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret were the top favorites at 4 to 1 in a published "morning line" for the tourney.

Two Borrowed Bats, a New Stance at Plate And $5000 Bonus Spell Hits for Keltner

Cleveland, May 17 (AP).—A new stance at the plate, a pair of borrowed bats and a $5000 bonus have contributed to Ken Keltner's current hitting spree.

The bats were acquired from Al Rosen, a promising rookie who failed to oust the Cleveland Indians' veteran from his third base post. The bonus came from Tribe President Bill Veeck for Keltner's 1947 performance. Ken adopted the new stance himself.

When Rosen was optioned to Kansas City he left behind a pair of bats bearing his signature.

One afternoon, in an effort to head off an impending slump, Keltner picked one up and tried it in batting practice. It felt good, it sounded good when it met the ball, but more than that, it drove two out of the park in the first six swings. So much for the bats.

Keltner has since continued at a pace that has netted a .356 average and

6000 See D. C.-Owned Horse Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 17.—The Washington-owned Free Valley showed the brand of speed that has already earned him five victories this year and ran away with the Inaugural Purse, featuring the opening-day program of the long session here. The 5-year-old, carrying the colors of Wayne Kendrick, took command at the first jump and was eased into the finish line four lengths ahead of the closest opposition.

A crowd of 6000 was on hand.

J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime was second and a half-length in advance of E. L. Miller's Belle Moose. Fourth was H. N. Warren's Annie's Dream, second choice in the betting and a former sprint queen here.

Show Bets Heavy

Free Valley paid a unique mutuel of $3.60 to win, $3.20 to place, and $3.80 to show. It was reported that some heavy show bettors—the kind who made the minus pools in Maryland—made huge wagers to show on Annie's Dream.

Despite heavy rain early this morning, the track was in good condition for the day's feature, after being slow during the early stages of the program. Free Valley was clocked in :49 4/5 for the about 4½ furlongs, a second and a fifth over the track mark shared by Annie's Dream and Flying Raid.

Jockey Jimmy Baird, who made his recognized track debut here, was aboard Free Valley. He sent the gelding away winging while Annie's Dream was being shuffled back. Busy Moose and Belle Moose were closest to the leader going into the far turn.

Threat Ended

Swinging for the stretch, Free Valley drew out and it was all over but the pay-off. Miss Prime, never far out of it, rallied and nipped Belle Moose for the place while the latter held Annie's Dream safe for the show end.

The daily double paid $125.60. Apprentice Eddie Hopkins won the first aboard W. R. Chenworth's Blind Buyer at a $16.20 mutuel while William Irvine, jr's. Fluster took the second at $9.40. Apprentice Carty Meyerhoffer, a Suitland, Md., boy, rode the first winner of his career aboard Fluster.

Government Worker Puts a Lifetime Of Fishing Into Book on Chesapeake Bay

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

THERE ARE TIMES when being an expert may become more than a little annoying.

For instance, take Washingtonian Ray Ward, an enthusiastic and expert fisherman. His knowledge became such a burden he turned author to gain some relief from serving as a one-man information bureau.

Ward, 54, is with the Labor Department. Fishing has been his life-long avocation. In Government circles, word got around that Ray was the man to call if you wanted any dope on where to fish in the Chesapeake Bay.

Finally, Ward, although a genial sort of a guy, realized he'd have to do something about getting out from under the avalanche of requests he received.

Three years ago, he was taken ill. While recuperating he worked on the first issue of a guide book packed with information he had gathered over the years.

The completed product is this year's third edition of "Salt Water Fishing Guide, Chesapeake Bay and Vicinity." It contains a listing of places to go in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina. Names of boat captains, their phone numbers, accommodations and prices help make it an invaluable book for the newcomer who wants to try the fine salt water sport just getting under way in this area.

Ward put a great deal of effort in his 72-page production which sells for only 50 cents. He hasn't quite broken even on it yet, but he says at least his phone isn't ringing as incessantly.

IN ADDITION to his long list of places to go and the people to see, Ward offers some advice that it wouldn't hurt to repeat here.

Neophytes, particularly, would do well to heed his safety tips. Ward cautions them against bay storms which whip up in a dangerously short time.

Ward writes, "Don't go too far from safe shore in a rowboat and watch for approaching storms. Don't stay out if the weather is threatening. It's a good idea to take along kapok cushions, which also are life preservers. They add to comfort and security."

Another tip concerns swimming. "If you're on a party boat," Ward warns "follow the captain's advice about swimming. Remember, there are fast and treacherous currents and tides. Beware of them."

MISCELLANY—An Associated Press report from Harrisburg, Pa., is enough to make an out-of-State trout fisherman drool . . . Pennsylvania's famed "Fisherman's Paradise," near Bellefonte, will be open May 21 through July 24. Some 40,000 visited the fenced-in area last year to catch the largest trout—brook, brown or rainbow—to be found in the State . . . The catch is that the take-home catch is limited to one fish a day—and visits are restricted to five a year . . . The really disappointing thing is that the paradise is only for those with resident licenses . . . Most hunters would be happy to be able to bag five wild squirrels in a day, but 45-year-old Tom Hopkins, of Paden, Okla., does it often . . . And Hopkins has been blind since 1919 . . . The Oklahoman hunts alone with three well-trained dogs and gets the bead on the squirrels by sound alone . . . Trout fishermen will be cheered to know that Virginia still has some 35,000 trout which will be placed in the streams to help the summer fishing . . . Held over at Montebello are 15,000; at Marion, 20,000. Most are 2 years, or older—fine, large fish.

Vaccines Held Ineffective in Halting Colds

Vaccines in use now are not effective in combating the common cold, a medical authority said here yesterday.

However, Lieut. Col. Arthur P. Long of the Army Medical Corps, assigned to the National Institute of Health, said new vaccines have proved effective in preventing influenza.

Colonel Long spoke at the opening of a five-day postgraduate course in internal medicine at Gallinger Hospital. About 100 physicians have enrolled for the course which is sponsored by the American College of Physicians.

He discussed research which has led to isolation of virus believed to cause certain types of influenza. Three types of virus are now contained in vaccines which have proved effective against influenza, he said.

But vaccines for the common cold—also believed cause of virus infection—"simply don't exist," Colonel Long declared. Present cold vaccines, he pointed out, contain bacteria but no forms of virus.

Another speaker was Dr. Norman H. Topping of the Health Institute's infectious diseases section, who last December isolated a virus which produced all the symptoms of the common cold.

Dr. Topping told the physicians that common colds will cost the American public one billion dollars in medical care and that 60 million work days will be lost.

Other speakers on the subject were Dr. Lloyd D. Felton, medical director of the public health service of the Health Institute, and Dr. Joseph E. Dunn of the Health Institute's industrial hygiene section.

Missing Man, 83, Is Found Dead

The body of an 83-year-old man, later identified as that of William S. Riley, 131 36th st. ne. was found at 10:30 a. m. yesterday besides the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Kenilworth ave. ne.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said death was due to natural causes, probably from a heart attack brought on by exertion in climbing a steep embankment to the tracks.

Ridley had been reported missing last Sunday night by a niece, Hattie M. Stanfield, with whom he lived. She said he had apparently wandered away from home.

Babies Who Travel With the Circus

RUDOLPH MATHIES, trainer of the big cats, holds Bingo and Bong, Royal Bengal tiger cubs. They are here with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus, which opens today for a three-day visit at 26th st. and Benning rd. ne.

Circus Slips Into Capital In Darkness

The show the kids have been waiting for since last year at this time didn't roll into town in the bright afternoon, as expected. So there was no free look at Gargantua the Great, or at Unos, "the man who walks on his forefinger."

Instead, the streamlined circus trains, slowed up en route from Boston for such things as feeding the animals and resting, too, was due to slip into Washington at 2 a. m.—an hour when kids are fast asleep.

Theshow, "greatest on earth," as anyone can tell you, opens at 2:15 p. m. today at 26th st. and Benning rd. ne., for a three-day stand. There will be night performances at 8:15 o'clock.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey has assembled 300 artists, including European smash-hit stars. Crowds will find the Mandos Sisters, revolving anchor thrillers aloft; Ciucciola, the midget clown bareback rider; the Alzanas, high wire sensationalists; Rudolph Mathies' Royal Bengal tigers.

Tickets are available at the Peoples drug store, 717 14th st. nw. They can also be purchased at the site.

Smithsonian Gets Rare Fossil Finds

Fossils of horses no bigger than dogs and turtles with soft shells that roamed this continent a mere 60 million years ago have been unearthed recently, the Smithsonian Instiution reported yesterday.

Smithsonian experts have been engaged in a country-wide fossil hunt in areas which soon will be flooded by vast reservoir projects. Cooperating in the project are the National Park Service, Bureau of Reclamation and Army Engineers.

"To date," Smithsonian announced, "there have been 54 such reconnaissance examinations in the Missouri drainage area alone, where several locations appear highly promising for explorations.

The discovery, which so far has given Emithsonian scientists their biggest thrill was the fossil of a large soft-shelled turtle. It was found on the Big Horn River near Shoshone, Wyo.

"Remains of these creatures found in North America in the past have been quite fragmentary," the Institution said. "This one, with a shell about 3 feet long, is in exceptionally well-preserved condition."

Soft-shelled turtles first appeared on this continent as contemporaries of the last of the dinosaurs, Smithsonian said. There are several living species, including one that frequents the Ganges River in India.

The scientists also have found fossils of "early horses, tapirs and primates merely by skimming the surface of the proposed reservoir sites."

House Gets Proposal For Bolivar Statue

Representative Marion T. Bennett (R., Mo.) yesterday introduced in the House a joint resolution to permit erecting a statue of Simon Bolivar, famed South American leader, in the District.

The statue would be the gift of Venezuela, and erected by the Simon Bolivar Memorial Foundation of Washington. It would be placed on a government-owned site to be approved by the Fine Arts Commission. The resolution was sent to the Committee on House Administration.

Arts Registry Plans For Bridge Party

The Arts and Science Registry last night launched its campaign to get kindred souls together with a bridge party at its headquarters, 1323 New Hampshire ave.

The registry plans other events such as chess, painting, hikes, dramatics, dances and music for other groups so inclined.

Registrations are accepted from 6 to 8 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at the headquarters. Staff volunteers arrange to get persons of similar interests together.

How to Hold
FALSE TEETH
More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug store.

97 Tee Off Tomorrow in Keefer Golf

Ninety-seven of the District's leading women golfers will tee off tomorrow in the 36-hole medal play Keefer Cup golf tournament at Chevy Chase Club.

The Women's District Golf Association tournament will continue through Thursday.

Last year's champion, Miss Ann Stonemetz, who shot a 94-82—176-20—156, will not compete tomorrow. Miss Stonemetz no longer lives in the District and is ineligible to take part.

Mrs. Elmer Jenkins, WDGA Class A chairman, has asked all competitors to bring their own caddies.

Mrs. Al Snider Gets $4170 Share Of Derby Money

Miami, Fla., May 17 (AP).—Mrs. Al Snider received a check for $4170 today as a share of the money her husband would have won had he ridden Citation in the Kentucky Derby.

Snider was lost on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys early in March. The famed jockey was to have ridden Calumet Farm's winner in the classic.

Eddie Arcaro rode the horse to victory. He and Owner Warren Wright shared their winnings with the pretty auburn-haired girl who declares she hasn't completely given up hope

Schoolboy Golf Play Postponed

The Scholastic Golf championship final round between Billy D. Wolfe and Dick Foster has been postponed until Wednesday at 3 p. m. on the Chevy Chase Club course.

Frank Emmet, tournament director, said yesterday that the heavy rains of the last two days had made play on the course inadvisable.

Wolfe, 13-year-old Montgomery Hills Junior High student, and Foster, Coolidge High School star, gained the finals by winning in yesterday's semifinal round at Columbia. Wolfe defeated Bob Halcombe of Anacostia, 3 and 1, and Foster downed Eugene Wolfe of Blair, 2 up.

Cardozo Takes Lead In Negro High Track

Area Olympic Fight Finals Set Tomorrow

Eight area Olympic boxing championships will be decided tomorrow at Griffith Stadium in an outdoor show sponsored jointly by the United States Olympic Committee and the D. C. AAU. The 14-bout card will commence at 8:30.

The area titlists will represent the Capital in the regional tryouts in Philadelphia, May 24-25, and the winners of this tourney will fight in the final Olympic trials in Boston, June 28-29.

The bout between Pat Thomas, Apollo Club, and Eddie Woodson, representing Police Boys Club No. 2, for the 126-pound crown is one of the best on the show.

Thomas, 1948 District AAU champ, won his prelim with ease last Saturday, outpointing Elmo (Smiley) Caldwell, Howard U. entry. Woodson came into the finals the hard way, decisioning two opponents in one night in the trial heats.

Tickets are available in The Washington Post lobby. General admission is $2.50, with ringside chairs priced at $2.50. All receipts will be donated to the United States Olympic fund.

Hungary Wins In Cup Series

Paris, May 17 (AP).—Hungary knocked France out of the running for the Davis Cup, emblematic of world tennis supremacy, today as the quarter-final bracket in European zone competition was virtually completed.

Joseph Asboth clinched the victory for Hungary when he defeated France's Robert Abdesselan, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2.

Belgium also reached the quarter-finals, eliminating Argentina, 3 to 2.

Belgium's quarter-final opponent will be Czechoslovakia, 4-1 conqueror of Brazil. Hungary's next series will be against Sweden, which completed a 5-0 sweep over Switzerland.

Meeting on Tropical Diseases Told of Sulfa Cure in Leprosy

The use of sulpha drugs in the treatment of leprosy shows promise of conquering the malady, an internationally known medical authority said here yesterday.

However, stated Dr. Robert G. Cochrane, of the Christian Medical College of Vellore, India, the cost of treatments must be reduced to reach the vast majority of victims.

He spoke at a session of the fourth International Congress on Tropical Diseases, meeting here under auspices of the State Department.

Dr. Cochrane's observation was backed up by reports of U. E. Public Health officials, who told of the use of sulpha drugs for leprosy cases in the United States.

As evidence, they reported that 37 persons were released as "arrested cases" from among approximately 370 patients at the National Leprosarium, Carville, La., last year. The previous average in past years was only eight to 10 releases.

Discovery of five new viruses in Africa was reported by Dr. K. C. Smithburn, director of the yellow fever institute at Entebbe, Uganda. He said four are members of the family of viruses causing sleeping sickness in the United States. The other is related to polio.

Delegates to the Congress also were told that malaria in the United States is now on the wane, after an increase noted here following return of overseas veterans. Dr. Justice M. Andrews of the Public Health Service, made the report.

They have that Certain Air

The polar bear and Budweiser have one thing in common . . . each grows up in the cleanest of air. Beginning in the starting cellars, where yeast is added to the brew, and on down through the fermenting, ageing and finishing cellars, ingenious filters keep the air pure. This costly precaution protects our priceless, pure-cultured yeast from micro-organisms that could mar and even ruin its all-important work. This safeguard is only one of many, many steps that makes ours the most expensive brewing process known. Every sip of Budweiser says it's worth it.

D.C. Per Capita Sales Remain First in U. S.

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Washington metropolitan area continues to lead the Nation in per capita retail sales, according to a compilation by the magazine Printer's Ink.

Per capita sales here were $1300 in 1947 against a national average of $825.

Washington area population was estimated at 1,250,500 at the end of 1947 and retail sales were put at $1,622,900,000. Nationally, retail volume was estimated at $117,724,000,000.

This area ranked eleventh in population, while dollar sales ranked ninth among the Nation's major markets.

Second to Washington in per capita sales was the Minneapolis-St. Paul area with $1265. Columbus, Ga., had per capita sales of $1265, also. Other leading areas in per capita sales, according to Printer's Ink, were:

Portland, Oreg., $1210; San Francisco-Oakland, $1250; Los Angeles, $1180; Atlanta, $1168; Kansas City, $1142; Omaha-Council Bluffs, $1125; Albany-Schenectady-Troy, $1110; Hartford-New Britain, $1040; Chicago, $1017; New York, $1015; Cincinnati, $1000.

QUARTERLY REPORT: Net income of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., for the first quarter of 1948 amounted to $297,790.30, compared with $509,479.93 last year. The 1948 result is equivalent to 69 cents a common share against $1.19 in 1947. Current assets at the end of March amounted to $10,256,298.80, against $4,043,480.01 in current liabilities.

ODD LOTS: Operations of the steel industry this week were scheduled at 95.4 per cent of capacity, highest in level in nearly two months . . . Engineering and Research Corp., of nearby Riverdale, Md., has sold its first school bus (mounted on a Chevrolet chassis) to Frederick County, Md. . . . Subject to approval of regulatory agencies, American Gas & Electric Co. has purchased all securities of the Citizens Heat, Light & Power Co. of Indiana for $1,500,000 . . . A move is afoot to present the International Petroleum Exposition, now in its fourth day, every four years instead of the usual two years . . . Men are buying 25 per cent fewer shoes today than they did 10 years ago, the National Shoe Manufacturers Association disclosed in a survey . . . The Du Pont Co. has reduced the price of capered nylon paint-brush bristles by 30 per cent.

SECURITY BONDS: An encouraging report of Security Loan bond sales during the first week of May, compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and released yesterday by Thomas J. Groom, chairman of the District Savings Bonds Division, shows Series E, F and G sales for that week were $1,698,159, of which $1,151,747 were in E's. The report pushed to $6,409,364 total sales credited to the District in the Security Loan campaign. This is 28.5 per cent of the District's campaign quota of $22,500,000.

MEETINGS: Annual election of officers and executive council of Fiduciaries Section of District Bankers Association will be tonight at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser of George Washington University will speak. . . . Allen H. Ottman, controller of American Hard Rubber Co., will address Washington Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants Wednesday night at the Lafayette Hotel. . . . James J. Quinn, investment broker, will talk tonight at a session of Washington Chapter, Society of Residential Appraisers, in Burlington Hotel.

SAVINGS & LOAN—Financial, business and educational leaders and Federal officials will be among the speakers at the fifth annual convention of the National Savings and Loan League at the Hotel Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, the week beginning next Sunday.

BOOKS CLOSED: To back up the cheerful air which enveloped Wall Street, local brokers pointed to the public reception given yesterday's sale of 500,000 shares of American Broadcasting Co. common stock at $9 a share. Dillon, Read & Co., who headed the underwriting syndicate, announced the books had been closed a short time after the initial offering. Demand from invesors for ABC stock, it was reliably learned, was exceptionally good.

EARNINGS: Eastern Air Lines, Inc., reported net profit of $1,121,000 for the first quarter this year, equal to 47 cents a common share, compared with $564,595, or 24 cents a share in same 1947 period. Other income reports follow:

New York Cotton

New York, May 17 (AP).—Cotton futures closed $1.30 a bale higher to 80 cents lower on Commission house and New Orleans selling, taking depressed prices as much as $2.00 a bale in tarly dealings, but the market rebounded sharply when mill demand and short covering later disclosed a scarcity of offerings. Traders actively liquidated nearby July against purchases of the new crop months because of the slow start of cotton exports under the ECA program. Buying in July partly attributed signing of the Japanese private credit sales agreement by SCAP later this week and would make the credit covering some 500,000 bales of cotton imperatively.

Taft Would Reduce Flood Control Fund

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday told the Senate he knew he was doing "a most unpopular and politically unwise" thing in urging a cut in funds for flood control but "sound fiscal policy demands it."

The Ohio Senator, a presidential candidate waded into a Senate battle to lop 200 million dollars from a record-breaking $708,500,000 appropriation measure for Army civil functions. This includes flood control and river and harbor projects.

The fight was touched off when Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) asked the Senate to recommit the bill with instructions to cut it by 200 million dollars, leaving only the urgent projects.

Smiling Democrats sat by having a field day while Republicans argued over the locally cherished and politically potent public works projects.

Sees Competition

This is no time, Taft insisted, to increase public works construction. The time to do that, he maintained, is during a period of depression.

Increased public construction now, said Taft, will result in competition with private industry for labor and materials and will raise costs.

Senator "Chan" Gurney (R., S. Dak.), floor manager for the measure, insisted the whole program is necessary to protect the natural resources of the Nation.

Gurney Favors 'Pork'

Referring to characterizations of the Civil Functions bill as "a stupendous pork barrel," Gurney retorted:

"I believe it is a pork barrel which will put pork chops and bacon and roast pork on millions of dinner tables all over the United States. I am in favor of that. I am in favor of any program that will help to increase our production of food and agricultural products."

Acting Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) chimed in with a dig at Taft. Why was it that public works spending had to be cut, he demanded, when the Senate could pass bills for aid to Europe, public housing and Federal aid to education? The last two are Taft-sponsored measure.

The Senate recessed without acting. It is expected to vote today on the Reed recommittal motion.

Maxie Smith Indicted As Panderer

A 51-year-old woman, alleged to have been operating a disorderly house for the last 20 years, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on eight counts of pandering.

In sworn statements to police, two girls declared that Maxie Smith (with four aliases) of 1317 Rhode Island ave. nw., took money from each of them on four occasions, after arranging for them to engage in prostitution.

The girls, Mary D. Day, 25, of 1704 Gales st. ne., and Ruth Suddath Strickland, 24, of 4046 Grant st. ne., said they had worked off and on for her for some time. Their fees ranged from $5 to $100, depending on the circumstances and person, and they averaged about $30 a night, according to the statements.

Half of the money they made was turned over to Maxie Smith, they told police. She was arrested in a raid on her apartment as a disorderly house, police said.

Other indictments, returned yesterday by the grand jury, included:

John M. Browne, 28, of 1114 4th st. ne., first degree murder. He is charged with shooting his brother-in-law, Collins R. Mason, 37, of the 4th st. address, in the head with a .22 caliber rifle during an altercation there December 14, 1947.

Lucille Belton, 29, of 649 N st. nw., manslaughter. She is charged with stabbing George Simmons, 35, of the N st. address, in the stomach with a butcher knife during an altercation there March 27. He died at Freedmen's Hospital April 10.

James I. Ivory, 42, a janitor at 3206 Wisconsin ave. nw., grand larceny. He is charged with stealing two watches, two rings and a pin, valued at $5475, from the apartment of Cylvan Mazo, of the Wisconsin ave. address.

The State Department said yesterday Dwight Griswold, chief of the American Aid mission to Greece, is expected to arrive Wednesday for conferences on aid problems.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

How one goes about it to get more Oil and more Gas

You receive more oil and gas this year because someone did a lot of thinking, getting ready and intelligent risk-taking in past years.

This is the rule of American business under the free enterprise system. Imagination first creates a business undertaking. Courage of imagination accepts the risk of loss for probable profit, and a program is put under way.

The judgment of management is that there will be a public need for oil and gas, that is to say, a market, and that these products can be sold at a fair and reasonable profit. Management thus risks its reputation; and the stockholders, their money.

The company leases land, sends out prospectors and drillers, makes provision for the acquisition of tank cars, tankers and pipelines, and builds refineries and obtains outlets, to provide for the anticipated demand. Then, if all goes well, and its judgment was sound, the products will be there to meet the public need. This result of careful planning and calculated risk-taking is sometimes attributed by critics of our American system to "luck."

Because Cities Service anticipated our current petroleum power and fuel needs some years ago – and prepared to meet them – it was able last year to break several of its all-time records — — in the production of crude oil; by refining 64 million barrels of crude of which 30 millions were gasoline; by producing and delivering in all, 320 billion cubic feet of natural gas; and by transporting 172 million barrels of petroleum.

As a result, you, the public, were able to buy $486,000,000 worth of Cities Service products last year, 40% more than in the previous year.

And the end is not yet!

Although Cities Service invested $96,000,000 in new facilities in 1947, ($555 million during the years of depression, war, and reconversion) this figure – again based on the judgment of management – has been stepped-up to $145,000,000 for 1948.

You see, we do not agree with the defeatists who tell us that America has reached maturity, that its economy is a static thing, that capitalism is through. Cities Service believes that this nation will need more oil, more gas, more petroleum products, rather than less, in the coming years.

We propose to do our part.

Cities Service

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

National Security Resources Board Loses Bid for Power

NSRB: The National Society Resources Board has lost its bid for power. The President, it's reported, has rejected a plan that it be designated a "peacetime War Production Board."

The NSRB recommended a seven-point program to the President which proposed that it be given sweeping powers on an if-and-when needed basis to ration consumer goods, freeze prices and wages, to control materials, and other wartime controls.' The plan was drawn in the main by Ferdinand Eberstadt, a New York banker and former WPB official.

In rejecting the proposal, the President, in effect, took the advice of the Commerce Department and the Budget Bureau. These agencies thought the NSRB program was too ambitious. Also, the fear was expressed that the NSRB is dominated by the military.

However, there is good reason to believe that the President will again put the Administration on record for some types of inflation controls.

PAY REPORT: A joint meeting of the Senate and House Civil Service Subcommittee on Federal pay raises is now tentatively scheduled for tomorrow. Chairman Rees of the House Committee, was out of the city yesterday. The full Senate committee is scheduled to meet today. The pay issue may be brought up for informal discussion.

Meantime, Chairman Langer says he will not modify his position for minimum raises of $1000 each.

RFC: The House has approved a 1949 budget for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which is one million dollars less than was requested. If the cut stands, the agency would be forced to fire from 350 to 400 additional employes.

But the House report on the RFC budget left the door open for the agency to seek additional administrative funds. The RFC appropriation was considered at a time when the bill extending the life of the loan agency was unsettled. At stake was the Federal National Mortgage Association. The Senate opposed its continuation in the bill. But the House won the point and the FNMA was continued.

The House slash was made on the premise was FNMA would be knocked out. The budget report conceded that "administrative expenses may require revision" if FNMA is continued. It's a good bet that RFC will seek the additional one million dollars from the Senate.

UPWA: The leadership of this left-wing CIO union will fight the move to set up a separate union of Federal workers. But in Boston last week, CIO President Philip Murray hinted that it may become necessary to recreate a Federal employe union. He's reported to have made his statement during a discussion of non-Communist affidavits before the steel workers' convention.

NOTES: The House Appropriations Committee has asked the Economic Cooperation Administration to give it a list of people and their backgrounds the agency plans to send overseas . . . Ross Colwell, a former conciliator in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, has been offered the job of labor adviser in the ECA . . . Representatives John Bell Williams (D., Miss.) and John A. Whitaker (D., Ky.) have been elected to membership in the House Civil Service Committee . . . Andrew T. Durbin, a former Federal worker who has a law office here, is a Democratic candidate for Congress in Ohio's Eighth District. The seat is now held by Representative Smith, a Republican.

STORY: A mother who is strongly opposed to renewal of the draft recently wrote Defense Secretary Forrestal:

"I have seven sins and I don't want them in the Army."

FEDERAL RESERVE: Ralph Young, associate director of the Federal Reserve's Division of Research and Statistics, is on his way to Japan to work on a plan to stabilize the Japanese currency.

INTERIOR: The House Appromations Committee is trying to devise some plan to limit the number of middle and high grade administrative employes in the Reclamation Service. As tentatively drafted, the proposed rider to the Interior appropriation bill would force Reclamation to fire several hundred middle and upper bracket employes.

NOTES: Civil Service has an exam open for poultry and veterinary coordinators for vacancies at the Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Md. . . . Local 2 of the National Federation of Federal Employes has elected these delegates to its September convention in Milwaukee: Ulrey Biller, George Duthie, Howard A. Edison, Frank J. Hallauer, Henry G. Nolda, Grace M. Picking, and Albert M. Reising . . . the Army plans to recruit 100 highly qualified men in all phases of information work. Those to be recruited will be in the Army and not civilians.

SECURITY: Senate and House conferees can be expected to strike out that provision in a Civil Service bill which would give agency heads the right to fire any employe in the interest of national security . . . AFGE: Acting President Berniece Heffner of the American Federation of Government Employes, soon will issue a statement aimed toward bringing peace in the faction-torn AFL union.

9 Officials Cite Gaps In Services To Children

School and Other Needs Stressed at 7 Neighborhood Councils' Session

Nine officials concerned with the problems of District children presented a dismal picture of that field last night.

Each pointed to some gap in Washington's services to its children—whether normal or "out of step" children—during speeches at the annual meeting of the city's seven Neighborhood Councils.

The discussion was held at Barker Hall, 17th and K sts. nw., under sponsorship of the parent body, the Council of Social Agencies, with nearly 200 persons attending.

The problem of insufficient attention to youngsters with reading handicaps was brought up by three of the speakers.

Cites Reading Ability

John Tramburg, former superintendent of the Industrial Home School and new director of the Board of Public Welfare, estimated that about 80 per cent of the children at the school cannot read beyond the ability of a fourth grade pupil. He said the District needs a new industrial home school.

Dr. Howard Long, an associate superintendent of schools, stressed the need for developing psychiatric services in the schools, particularly remedial reading clinics.

Lieut. William Murphy, chief of the Children's Bureau, traced some of the prevailing reading difficulties of children to comic books. He said he saw no harm in comic books, other than that they fixed in their readers a tendacy to read pictures and symbols rather than words.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, chief of the Woman's Bureau, emphasized the "great need" for facilities to treat prepsychotic and psychotic children. The District has virtually none, she said.

Wants Social Workers

Dr. William Stavsky, head of the District Receiving Home, said his institution could use a team of social workers, psychiatrists and psychologists to run a guidance program. He said the new home under construction would take care of the 40-odd delinquent children he has under his care but that facilities are needed for about 100 dependent children.

Mrs. Mabel Ford, representing Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, said churches should step up their recreational activities. Miss Virginia Clary, director of social work at Juvenile Court, thought the court should develop a research and statistics department.

James Geater, of the District Recreation Department, stressed the need for more public recreation facilities.

Mrs. Theresa Alexander, head of guidance and placement for schools in Divisions 10-13, pointed to a lack of personnel to carry out the program of guidance—adjusting children to the schools and schools to the children.

Citizenship Conference Draws 800

Truman Message Read; U. N. Backed; War Is Declared Not Inevitable

Citizenship—what it means and how to make it work better—held the attention of some 800 school, church, community and Government officials as the Third National Conference on Citizenship got down to business here yesterday.

The conference, sponsored by the Justice Department and the National Education Association, opened Sunday and will run through Wednesday.

At a Statler Hotel dinner last night, Dr. T. V. Smith, University of Chicago philosophy professor, declared:

"Citizenship is a state of mind, without which the Constitution or any document to which we subscribe is not worth the paper it is written on."

Today, Smith said, this American state of mind is "pitted against" the corresponding Soviet state of mind with respect to citizenship. The American concept is based, he said, "on the sacredness of accord," while the Soviet state of mind is based on discord.

In the Communist philosophy, he contended, no justice can ever come out of amity and accord.

President Truman, in a message read by Attorney General Clark at a morning session yesterday, declared that "there is no more precious possession today than United States citizenship."

Urges Unity of Purpose

"A nation is no stronger than its citizenry," the President wrote. "With many problems facing us daily in this perplexing and trying era, it is vital that we have a unity of purpose—to the end that freedom, justice, and opportunity, good will and happiness may be assured ourselves and peoples everywhere."

At a morning session, Carl B. Hyatt, director of the Attorney General's Citizenship Program, called for continued support of the United Nations.

"International good will and understanding are attainable goals," Hyatt said. "Today we must continue to give our support to the United Nations, the most ambitious attempt yet made toward lasting peace."

Delegates spent the afternoon in 27 discussion groups on the subject, "The World-Minded Citizen." William G. Carr, NEA associate secretary, paved the way for the discussion in an address that set forth the characteristics of the "world-minded citizen," as seen by leading civic and education leaders. Among these attributes, he said, are the knowledge that was is not inevitable, awareness of the "dreadful danger" in another war and the desire for "peace with liberty and justice."

4 CIO Men Protest

One note of discord emerged during yesterday's conference activities. Four CIO representatives, invited to the sessions, protested in a letter to Attorney Genreal Clark what they termed "the unrepresentative and prejudiced composition of the program."

Urging greater emphasis on "actual accomplishments in citizenship education," the four charged that the conference program was "totally lacking in representation from labor and other democratic groups whose record in the fight for progressive social legislation is second to none."

The protest was signed by Kermit Eby, research and education director; George L. P. Weaver, director of the committee to abolish discrimination; John Edelman, Washington representative of the Textile Workers Union of America, and Paul Sifton, United Automobile Workers legislative representative, all of the CIO.

Replying to the complaint, conference program director Richard B. Kennan, NEA secretary, said speakers were chosen purely for their "ability to discuss the subjects directly." He said both the CIO and AFL were asked to send delegations larger than those from most other organizations and pointed out that the CIO and AFL are represented on the Attorney General's advisory committee on citizenship.

Taxi Driver Gets 90 Days, $500 Fine In Traffic Death

Joseph P. Touma, 41, a cab driver of 4313 Kansas ave. nw., yesterday was sentenced to serve 90 days straight time and to pay a $500 fine or serve an additional 60 days for non-payment of fine on a charge of negligent homicide.

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell declared it was the hardest case he had ever had to pass sentence on because Touma is the father of five children. He declared, however, that he had to impose the sentence to punish Touma and to make his case serve as a deterrent to others. Touma was released on $1000 bond pending an appeal.

Touma was found guilty April 26 of the charge which grew out of the traffic death of Joe M. Basile, 57, of 309 Mt. Vernon pl. nw. Basile died of injuries received last year when he was struck by a cab, operated by Touma at 11th and K sts. nw.

Psychiatrist Sought to Make Driver Tests Intelligible

District traffic authorities have decided to seek psychiatric aid in their efforts to simplify questions put to applicants for driver permits.

The move was disclosed last night by Director of Vehicles and Traffic George E. Keneipp, who told the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board a revised set of questions soon will be submitted to a board of psychiatrists for approval and possible suggestions.

Keneipp said his department had received numerous complaints that questions now used in the driving examinations are "confusing" or "too complicated."

The board of psychiatrists, to be composed of members of the District Medical Society, will be asked to help reword the questions so as to be clearly understood by the average layman, Keneipp said.

He told the advisory board the Commissioners have authorized the traffic department to install as many parking meters in the District next year as necessary. He estimated as many as 3000 new meters may be installed.

In its only formal action, the advisory board appointed a four-man committee to consult with the Commissioners on means of providing for driver-training courses in the public schools. Appointed to the committee were Fred Haller, Washington I. Cleveland, Julian Brylawsky, Judge James A. Cobb and Nathan Lubar.

A report on plans for a drive to curb traffic accidents involving children was submitted by Brylawsky, chairman for the program. Brylawsky said the campaign would start June 1 with an essay contest for District school children. About 25 prizes will be awarded.

NW Neighborhood in a Dither Over Boy Missing 6½ Hours

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

LOST BOY RETURNED—Mrs. Goldie Shulman weeps with relief and tightly clasps her son, Bobby, 4, on his return yesterday. He had wandered away and was brought back by police

Four-year-old Robert Roy Shulman caused a commotion in his neighborhood yesterday when he disappeared from his home at 5214 14th st. nw. for six and a half hours.

His mother, Mrs. Goldie Shulman, put him in the yard to play about 9 a. m. A little later he was gone. Neighbors told her he had accompanied another small boy into Rock Creek Park two blocks away.

At about 11 a. m. the companion returned, minus Robert. Mrs. Shulman called her husband, Morris, a grocer. He joined his wife in searching for the boy in the park near 16th and Kennedy sts.

Meanwhile, it turned out, that Robert had returned from the park and become chummy with another 4-year-old, Michael Yakas, in the 1500 block of Gallatin st. nw.

When the two got hungry they went to Michael's home, 1508 Gallatin st.

Mrs. Yakas never had seen Rob- and questioned him. The child knew his name, but not at various times he said his father was a doctor, a lawyer, a policeman.

Mrs. Yakas telephoned police at 3:30 p. m. and Robert was returned home.

Need Cited by Both Sides In Embassy Row Eviction Fight

A court battle between the wife of a rear admiral and a former Federal Trade Commissioner for possession of a 10-room, 4-bath apartment in Embassy row continued yesterday, with both sides attempting to stress their need for the space.

The defendants are Mr. and Mrs. Houston Thompson, who have lived in the first-floor apartment at 2500 Massachusetts ave. nw. for 25 years and would like to continue to live there.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson took for granted that they needed the space, since they are fighting an eviction by the new owner, Mrs. Shannon Clark, wife of Rear Admiral Joseph J. (Jocko) Clark, assistant chief of naval operations for the air.

Mrs. Clark has stated she needed that apartment, as well as a 10-room, 4-bath apartment on the third floor, to house seven persons in the near future.

The court was told that the Thompson's own two houses at 1420 and 1426 33d st. nw., and that they had asked a real estate broker to try to rent one of the houses, which was vacant in February.

Later, Mrs. Thompson declared on the stand that her husband had a heart condition that required his avoiding stairs and living on one floor.

A letter was introduced in which Thompson told Mrs. Clark, after he learned she wanted him to move out, that his apartment was the last to get heat and hot water and was infested with Japanese water bugs. The letter pointed out, however, that the apartment rented for only $175 a month, as compared with $250 a month for the other apartments.

Mrs. Clark, who purchased the four-story apartment house in January for $200,000, has stated her family must move from their present home at 1057 South 26th rd., Arlington by June 15.

Greene Guilty Of Murder in Second Degree

Sylvester T. Greene, 37, of 412 I st. nw., yesterday was found guilty in District Court of second degree murder in the death of Frank W. Howard, 55, of 1435 9th st. nw.

Howard was found dead in his gas-filled apartment February 24. His head had been bashed in with a pinch bar. All of the jets on the gas stove were open, allegedly to make his death appear a suicide.

Justice Edward M. Curran did not set a date for sentencing. Greene faces a maximum sentence of 20 years to life.

One Parade Too Many

The Washington Post

HIS STROLL CUT SHORT—A schoolboy patrol took this goat along in their parade on Saturday, and it made him dissatisfied with his home. Yesterday he wandered away and Alvin Morgenstein, former farm boy who now owns Al's Chicken House at 629 Fourth st. nw., captured him. Now Billy's back with his owner, Ray Haskins, 14, of 318 D st. nw.

Pepco Files Request for Rate Boost

Increase Figured At 10 Cents Weekly For Average Home In Washington

The Potomac Electric Power Co., yesterday filed a request for a general rate-increase amounting to about 10 cents a week for the average Washington family.

In a 30-page brief presented to the District Public Utilities Commission, the firm blamed "the spiraling cost of fuel used in the generation of electricity" as the main cause for the requested boost.

Pointing out that this represents 50 per cent of the total operating expense, the firm's president, A. G. Neal, said the delivered cost of coal per ton has jumped from $5.25 in 1942 to $9.42 today—a rise of 79 per cent.

Ends Reduction Record

Yesterday's move ended a 28-year record of periodic rate reduction by the company.

Neal said present rates are "wholly insufficient to offset the continued increases in operating expenses." He asked the PUC to authorize about a 10 per cent increase on residential rates and a 15 per cent jump on commercial schedules effective July 1.

This would result in an added $2,200,000 from commercial consumers and $780,000 from home users, Pepco estimated. It would bring the firm's earning rate "slightly in excess of the 5½ per cent authorized by PUC, Neal said.

At present, the firm's earnings have fallen below the allowable return, running almost $500,000 short during 1947, Neal said. He said that unless "the full relief" was obtained, the firm would be 'in a very, very serious condition" in its goal of meeting all requests for service.

Near Breaking Point

Neal explained that at present the firm's facilities are "stretched almost to the breaking point" and additional construction is immediately required. He said an 86-million-dollar program is on the drawing boards for the next five years, but this necessitates the raising of substantial amounts of new capital and this cannot be done unless the company's earnings position is very materially improved to enable it to attract additional capital on desirable and reasonable terms."

Bills Provide Direct Entry To Hospital

A bill permitting seriously ill mental patients to enter St. Elizabeths Hospital directly without going through Gallinger Hospital will be introduced in the House of Representatives today.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), chairman of the House District Subcommittee on health, education and recreation, after a conference with District officials, said he will enter the bill today. He said Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) will introduce a similar measure in the Senate.

The bill, aimed at reducing the overcrowding of the Gallinger psychopathic division and expediting care, would permit a patient to "stay in one hospital instead of two" and eliminate double examinations, Dr. Winfred Overholser, St. Elizabeth's superintendent, explained. He said the shock of moving a patient from his home to one hospital is "bad enough, but two such moves are much worse."

The meeting was held in the office of Commissioner Guy Mason. Mason said he would recommend complete approval of the bill to his fellow commissioners at a meeting today. He said he felt the proposal was in the best interests of patients.

At present, persons believed to be suffering mental disorders are kept under observation in Gallinger 30 days before being moved to St. Elizabeth's. Last year one third of the 4500 patients admitted in the Gallinger divison were later sent to the other institution.

2 Accused of Pocket-Picking On Same Streetcar Are Held

Douglas Frazier, 23, of 4443 B st. se., arrested early Sunday on a streetcar in Georgetown after he allegedly attempted to pick the pockets of two passengers, was ordered held under $1000 bond for grand jury action in Municipal Court yesterday.

One of the passengers, William Sizemore, 48, of 3113 Georgia ave. nw., stated he was asleep on the streetcar, headed for Rosslyn, Va., when he felt Frazier's hand in his pocket. Frazier immediately offered him a drink, he said.

He made the return trip with Frazier, and said he saw Frazier fumble in the pocket of another passenger, Melvin O. Jockson of 5523 Bell pl. nw., who later reported $4.70 missing, police said.

Arrested at the same time, on the same streetcar, for the same offense was Berry Palmore, 39, who gave his address as 1507 Marion st. nw. He, too, was held under $1000 bond for grand jury action after Willie Pendergast, 40, of 519 L st. nw., also a passenger, declared he had been robbed of $1. In addition, Palmore was sentenced to serve 60 days on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, a paring knife.

In another pickpocket case yesterday, Charles Wright, alias Charles White, 47, of Baltimore, was ordered held under $2000 bond for a Municipal Court hearing May 27.

Policeman Richard Fisher of the Ninth Precinct testified he saw Wright running from a streetcar loading platform at 8th and H sts. ne., while he was off duty Saturday night. He gave chase over backyard fences, and finally caught Wright, and brought him back to the platform, where Bernard Grade, 62, of 638 5th st. ne., declared he had been robbed of $54.

During the hearing, Judge Walter J. Casey was informed that Wright is wanted as a fugitive from Raleigh, N. C., where he was serving a three-year term for robbery.

Phone Operators Here Accept New 3-Year Contract

Agreement Without Pay Boost Called Model to Avert National Strikes

Some 3000 telephone operators here signed a new 3-year labor contract with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., last night—with no immediate pay increases.

The new agreement with Traffic Division 50 of the Communications Workers of America (Ind.) is the first to be concluded in the Bell System this year. It came only a few hours before the midnight expiration of the old contract.

CWA President Joseph A. Beirne said "the terms of Division 50's settlement can serve as a basis for settlement of other CWA contracts and prevent the possibility of a strike in the industry."

50 Contracts Pending

He said about 50 contracts with CWA were under negotiation throughout the country, covering about 217,000 of the 230,000 telephone workers represented by his independent union. The workers are principally operators.

In the national telephone picture, involving CIO long-lines workers, President Truman was reported last night to be planning to invoke Taft-Hartley Act emergency machinery to avert a threatened strike.

High Administration officials said the President will create a act-finding board to look into the national dispute, possibly in the next 48 hours. Wage talks between the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the American Union of Telephone Workers collapsed last week.

Order Prepared

The Justice Department already has prepared an executive order declaring the situation to be a national emergency, it was learned. President Truman's signature is expected "momentarily," it was said.

In the local settlement, Union President Mrs. Mary Gannon said the new contract provides for two wage reopenings during its life with provisions for cancellation if no agreement is reached on wages during either of the reopenings.

She said the contract also gives the workers more liberal termination pay, prohibits changes in the pension plan while the contract is in force, and improves grievance procedure and a "holiday eve differential" clause.

F. G. Macarow, vice president and general manager of the company, in announcing the agreement, added: "The bargaining was almost continuous during the past few days in an endeavor by both sides to reach an agreement before the expiration of the old contract. The old contract would have expired tonight as a result of the union having given notice of termination."

Retirement Plan Favored By Council

Approval for Takoma Park city employes to participate in the Maryland retirement system was voted last night by Mayor Oliver W. Youngblood and the Takoma Park town council.

The meeting was the last public session before newly elected town officials take office on June 7.

The council asked the board of trustees of the Maryland retirement system to include the employes at its earliest possible date."

The action followed the recommenation of Councilman John C. Post, the town's incoming mayor. Inclusion of Takoma Park employes under the State retirement system was one of the campaign pledges of the Home Rule Ticket headed by Post in recent town elections.

Twenty-nine employes will be affected under the system expected to begin July 1. The city will contribute $2151 to begin the system, which amounts will be reduced by July 1, 1949, when the percentage to be taken out of employes salaries will be approved.

The council last night also voted to purchase an 85-foot aerial ladder truck at a cost of $33,750 for the municipal fire department. The bid was granted to the Seagrave Corp. but delivery is not expected before 18 months.

Following complaints of residents on Holly ave. the council prohibited use of the playfield on Hodges lane and Holly ave., without a special city permit, for all persons over 14 years of age.

The protest resulted from use of the field by Washingtonians for harball games.

Arlington League Fights Hatch Act Change, Is Charge

Arlington's Better Government League is trying to block Hatch Act changes which would permit Federal workers to participate in county politics, it was charged yesterday.

Harrison Mann, chairman of the Arlington Democratic Executive Committee, said the League seeks nonpartisan elections instead of the Hatch Act amendments to eliminate Republican and Democratic Parties from elections and leave the League a "clear field."

A public hearing on the proposed Hatch Act changes is slated for 2 p. m. Wednesday in the hearing room of the Tariff Commission Building, 8th and F sts. nw., under sponsorship of the Civil Service Commission.

New Building Sought for Old Age Setup

A bill to authorize a new $9,500,000 building in or near Washington for the Federal Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance was recommended to the House yesterday by its Public Works Committee.

The bureau is now centered in a waterfront building in Baltimore, Md., which Federal officials said was expensive to operate, noisy, dirty, and filled with vermin.

A public works committee report urging approval of the bill cited the bureau as the largest insurance operation in the world, with 90 million accounts and a surplus of more than eight billion dollars. Money for the building would come from the insurance trust fund, but officials estimated that it would pay for itself in 16 years, by eliminating expensive features of the present setup.

These expenses include $500,000 annual rent, $283,000 from paying night differential wages to employes of the night shift, and $300,000 in extra supervisory expenses resulting from the setup, or a total close to a million a year.

Waitress Shot In Left Arm While Cleaning Rifle

Miss Harriet Howard, 22, of 5400 7th st. nw., a waitress, shot herself in the left arm early yesterday while cleaning her .22 caliber rifle, according to police.

Miss Howard, whose condition was described as "good" at Emergency Hospital last night, was alone in her apartment when police reached her. They found gun cleaning equipment and fishing tackle in her kitchen.

Police said she had been fishing Sunday at Chain Bridge and had taken her rifle with her to get some shooting practice.

Honor for Dr. Warfield

More than 200 former internes are expected to attend the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Association of Former Internes of Freedmen's Hospital, set for June 1 to 3.

An oil painting of Dr. William A. Warfield, for 35 years surgeon-in-chief of the hospital, will be unveiled and hung in the foyer of the institution.

Boy Fishing Lands Sockful of Watches

Police yesterday were trying to locate the owners of nine watches fished from the Potomac Sunday by Charles Tripplett, 13, of 1302 6th st. sw.

The boy got a "bite" while fishing with a hook and string from the dock at Maine ave. and P st. sw. He was disgusted when he saw his catch was only a bedraggled old stocking.

He noted, however, that the stocking was knotted at the top. Loosening the knot he found the watches inside the stocking. He later turned over the watches to police.

One watch was immediately identified as belonging to Mrs. Carolyn Stover, of 2180 16th st. nw. Her name was engraved on the watch which was stolen from her home October 28, 1947.

Not a Police Dog

A dog that chases motorcycles but leaves cars alone was the central figure in a case yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

The dog, owned by E. T. Schuler, an analyst, who lives at 108 E. Raymond ave., Alexandria, had the bad taste Saturday to chase and nip Police Motorcycle Officer Charles Baber. Charges against Schuler was allowing a dog to roam unmuzzled, based on a city ordinance which became effective last Saturday.

Judge James R. Duncan, who owns two dogs himself, continued the case until May 25 with the advice that Schuler hire an expert to break the dog of the bad habit.

Fined as Drunken Driver

A 39-year-old man yesterday was given a 30-day jail sentence and fined $100 in Arlington County Court on a charge of driving while drunk.

He was listed as John Francis Miles, 1313 North 20th st., Arlington, who was arrested Sunday while driving on Lee hwy. near N. Highland st.

Policeman B. E. Keyes said Miles was barely able to stand without assistance when arrested and that liquor was found in the car. Miles said he had been drinking prior to his arrest, but was not drunk. He filed an appeal from the decision to Circuit Court.

Postlude

Dett Oratorio Given Fine Treatment

On the fifth anniversary of its founding, the Washington Community Chorus sang Nathaniel Dett's exciting oratorio, "The Ordering of Moses."

The concert was given in the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church before an audience which more than filled the church. Under the leadership of Warner Lawson, who has led the chorus since its inception, the singing of Dett's powerful narrative together with excerpts from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was thrilling.

The chorus makes a tremendous effect with their full passages, while quieter moments are brightened by the live tone infused into all their work. Their diction is clear and unaffected, adding to the drama of the music they voice. Alma Montgomery and John Hoskins were infallible pianists throughout.

This chorus will always be a particularly moving group for this reporter to hear because its membership includes singers of all races and creeds. If music is a universal language, as it is so often called, it deserves more such devoted, generous-hearted interpreters.

Vocal soloists who added mightily to the total effect of the evening were Nancy Fisher, Louise Burge, Chauncey Brown, and Arthur Davis. Their assignments in the Dett oratorio were extremely taxing, but, except for the lowest notes in the baritone solos, they were handled with ease.

Alexandria Deacon To Be Ordained Here

Two deacons of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond will be ordained to the priesthood Saturday at 8 a. m. in ceremonies at St. Matthew's Cathedral. Archbishop Patrick O'Boyle will officiate.

They are the Rev. John T. Cilinski, 402 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, and the Rev. Walter W. Herbert of Richmond.

Father Julius Cilinski, brother of one of the men to be ordained, will assist his brother in celebrating the first High Mass in his home parish, St. Mary's in Alexandria, on Sunday.

Model Train Contest Winner

The Washington Post

GETS SECOND PLACE—Theodore O. Stark of 1719 No. Troy st., Arlington, Va., who modeled two miniature railroad locomotives and placed next to first with them in a Nation-wide contest, and his sons, Randolph (left to right), Theodore, jr., and Jimmy. When he was their age, Stark said, he dreamed of being a locomotive engineer. He did become a civil engineer

McNayr to Stay At His Post in Montgomery

Montgomery County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr is expected to inform the county commissioners today that he intends to remain at his $7500-a-year post.

McNayr, it was learned, has had under consideration the offer of a $10,000-a-year job with the Port of New York Authority, but has decided against it.

McNayr's decision probably will meet a favorable reception on the part of the commissioners for he has the support of three of them, a majority. The McNayr supporters are Commissioners Brooke Johns, Oliver W. Youngblood and Charles H. Jamison.

Anti-McNayr in their attitude are Commissioners Wesley I. Sauter and George Esworthy. But they propose no ouster.

"I would like to see him leave," said Sauter, "but if I proposed such a motion I would be outvoted."

Elks to Hear Hershey

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service records and wartime Selective Service chief, will address the Elks Luncheon Club Wednesday at 12:15 p. m. at the Elks' Clubhouse, 919 H st. nw. His subject: "Facts Facing All Americans."

Dr. Bradfield, Pharmacist, Dead at 77

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Dr. Robert L. Bradfield, 77, a Vienna, Va., pharmacist for 25 years, who died Sunday of coronary thrombosis at the home of his niece, Mrs. John Archer, Falls Church, Va.

A native of Fauquier County, Va., Dr. Bradfield moved to Vienna more than a quarter of a century ago. He remained there until his retirement late in 1945.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Effie Menefee, Norfolk, Va., and two brothers, Dr. W. H. Bradfield, Middleburg, Va., and Clarence H. Bradfield, Upper Montclair, N. J. Another brother, Dr. J. B. Bradfield, Washington, died in 1942.

Services will be at 2 p. m. at Pearson's Funeral Home in Falls Church. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Lady Hartington

London May 17 (U.P.).—The body of Kathleen Lady Hartington, who was killed in an airplane crash in France, will be brought to London tomorrow by her father, Joseph P. Kennedy, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain.

Lady Hartington will be buried in Devonshire near the grave of her husband, the Marquis of Hartington, who was killed in the war while serving in the Royal Air Force.

A requiem mass will be said at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Lady Hartington was killed last Thursday when a private plane carrying Earl Fitzwilliam of England and two crew members plunged into a mountain. All perished.

Everett Smith, VA Engineer, Is Dead at 62

Everett Clerc Smith, civil engineer with the Veterans' Administration, died at the Navy Medical Center Sunday after a three-month illness.

Mr. Smith, who lived at 108 Northbrook la., Bethesda, was special assistant to F. H. Dryden, in charge of Veterans' Administration construction, supply and real estate.

Mr. Smith was also chairman of Veterans' Administration hospital design review board.

He was born November 7, 1885, in Ravenswood, W. Va. He received his degree in civil engineering from West Virginia University and worked on the Panama Canal from 1910 to 1916. He was in the Corps of Engineers during World War I.

At one time he was deputy State administrator and chief engineer in the Philadelphia regional office of WPA. He has been with Veterans' Administration since August, 1946.

He is survived by a son, Robert, of Charlestown, W. Va., and two daughters, Harriet of Charleston and Mrs. C. B. Cochran of Pittsburgh.

Services and burial will be held in Ravenswood Wednesday afternoon.

Police Excuse Briton Who Parked Wrong

An Englishman who parked his car headed the wrong way because he was accustomed to left-hand driving at home was excused by District police from paying a parking fine.

Robert T. Bridge, 61, 421 Shepherd st. nw., explained at the Tenth Precinct that he had been in the country only a short time.

Bridge was among 110 persons who had tickets adjusted by the police department last week. Eight motorists used their diplomatic immunity to have their tickets cancelled.

An Alcoholic Beverage Control Board inspector, Albert Cayton of 2948 Macomb st. nw., was excused on a parking ticket received while on official business, but given a warning for a "no parking at any time" violation.

Those who exercised diplomatic immunity were:

Snif F. Conterso, Mexican Embassy, no parking at any time; J. F. Rigby, Indian Embassy, parked too close to corner; A. H. Tange, Australian Delegate, no parking at any time; Henry Faustin, French Embassy, no parking 7 to 9:30; Alexandru Lazareanu, Romanian Legation, no parking at any time; Frank A. Feliz, Dominican Republic Legation, no parking at any time; Paul F. Blanc, French Embassy, no parking 4 to 6:30; and Agnes R. Patterson, British Embassy, parked too far from curb.

Motorman Found Not Guilty in Woman's Death

Floyd T. Cashwell, Capital Transit street car operator, was acquitted of manslaughter yesterday in the death of Mrs. Nellie Louk, 59, of 3310 Perry st., Mt. Rainier Md.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie, in Hyattsville Police Court, held that Cashwell, who lives at 2105 4th st., ne., was not guilty of negligence in connection with the woman's death. Mt. Rainier Town Policeman Daniel Manuel told the court that Mrs. Louk either stepped or fell from a loading platform across from her home at Rhode Island ave. and 34th st., and into the path of the streetcar.

Judge Bowie imposed fines of $10 each on charges of reckless driving and speeding on Harvey T. Quimby, 47, of 325 Naglee rd., Silver Spring, who had been arrested by Takoma Park Policeman Frank Bell. When Quimby objected, Judge Bowie told the defendant, "You may be able to bulldoze some judges but not me."

Hero-maker

Sergt. York's Pastor Dies; Said 'Pray'

Jamestown, Tenn., May 17 (U.P.). The Rev. R. C. Pile, who told a young World War I conscientious objector named Alvin C. York to "go up to the mountain and pray it out," has died in his beloved Tennessee Hills, it was disclosed today.

The 70-year-old minister died 10 days ago, and was buried at the Old Wolf River Methodist Church. News comes slowly out of the hills, whence Sergeant York marched off to glory.

In his famous advice to the young mountaineer, Mr. Pile told York that if he was satisfied the Lord was willing for him to go to war, the church would be satisfied, too.

York finally decided to fight, and later won the salute of Gen. John J. Pershing as "America's outstanding soldier of the war."

Casper C. Rothgeb

Luray, Va., May 17.—Funeral services were held at the Leaksville Christian Church today by the Rev. R. E. Newton, for Casper C. Rothgeb, 84, resident of the Mill Creek section, Page County.

Night-time

No need to navigate those stairs at night to answer the telephone. A convenient extension keeps it within easy reach.

Daytime

An extension telephone saves you time and steps and trouble. And it may prevent you from missing important calls.

Work-time

The busy housewife can appreciate the value of an extension telephone. Whether she's upstairs or downstairs, the telephone is never more than a few steps away.

Play-time

For all its many advantages, an extension telephone costs only a few cents a day. Why not call our Business Office for further information?

Why You Can Get an Extension Telephone while some folks are still waiting for telephone service

Nobody is waiting for telephone service because of a lack of telephone instruments. It is the need for additional cable and central office equipment that is temporarily holding us back. We'll be able to fill new orders for service as rapidly as those facilities can be enlarged. It's a big job, but we're working hard to complete it. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

Pen Women Give Achievement Awards

By Genevieve Reynolds

APPROXIMATELY 1000 delegates to the National League of American Pen Women's biennial convention, which opened with registration and business sessions yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel, buckled down to an 18-hour schedule of award breakfasts, luncheons, dinners and receptions. Hundreds of successful writers, who have sold their works, passed along first hand tips to their sister leaguers.

During the luncheon, Lula Grace Erdman, winner last year of Red Book's $10,000 novel award for her tome, "The Years of the Locust," told how she called in junior high school students to criticize her books for juveniles. "You have to do more than remove big words," she advised. "You have to capture the feeling of your youthful audience." Miss Erdman, member of the Kansas City Branch, is the author of two successful juvenile books, "Separate Star," and "Fair Is the Morning."

Several members of the District of Columbia Branch walked home with prizes and awards after yesterday's judging. Mattie Tyler Richards and Anne Darlington tied for first place in the drama contest for one-act comedies. Virginia Armistead Nelson, also of the District Branch, won third place in the full-length drama contest.

First prize in the Alma Robison Highbee branch achievement award of $25 went to the Kansas City (Mo.) branch of which Violette Hembling Williams is president.

Other blue ribbon awards given at the achievement award dinners last night in conclave headquarters were: Seattle (Wash.) branch, for the Northwest region; Sonoma County branch, California, for the Southwest region; Minnesota branch for the North Central region; Corpus Christi branch, Texas, for the South Central region; Gulf Coast of Missippippi branch, for the Southern region; Western New York branch at Buffalo for the North Atlantic region; District of Columbia branch for the South Atlantic region; Columbus branch, Ohio, for the Midwest region, and Worchester (Mass.) branch for the New England region.

One of the highlights of last night's gatherings was a dramatic one act play, "The Affairs of Oscar," put on by the Washington Workshop Production Group under the direction of Mary-Averett Seelye, plus another one act play, "The Intellectual Ladies" by Moliere.

Winners in the juvenile contest, announced during the juvenile program, presided over by Ethel M. Baker, National chairman of juveniles and Eloise Lownsberry Clancy, biennial chairman of juveniles, included: first prize, Faith Yingling Knoop; second, Winifred Bell, in the national league's award for an unpublished juvenile novel.

To Alma K. Reck went the Anobel Armour Award for the best juvenile picture book. For best unpublished juvenile short story Gertrude McDaniel received the Emily K. Hax award. Grace Hedge took the National League of American Pen Women award.

An afternoon reception was held for Mrs. Alma Robison Highbee, national president. Mrs. Cloyd Heck (Dorothy Betts) Marvin, wife of the president of George Washington University, chairmanned the reception committee.

Serving as hostesses for the drama and achievement dinner were several members of the local branch, including Mrs. Mary E. Downey, Mrs. Lillian C. B. McMayer, Mrs. Nelle Van D. Smith, Mrs. Mattie L. Jarrott and Mrs. Kay Fleck.

Greatest excitement of the conclave will come today when national officers will be elected. Dr. Margaret Sebree of the Chevy Chase branch is running against Helen Matthews Lashmutt of the Carroll County branch for the presidency.

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin of the District branch, is in the race for the vice presidency, and Margueretta Campbell, also of the local branch, is up for corresponding secretary. Sarah Jenkins Olmstead of the Alexandria branch is up for reelection as treasurer. Mattie L. Smith Jarrott, another District branch member, has been nominated for registrar.

Two Alexandria (Va.) branch women in the national race are Lenora Kent Kiefer for librarian, and Olive Scott Benkelman for auditor.

First Lady Eats Iowa Ham, Wears Nebraska Roses at Lunch

THE FIRST LADY lunched on Iowa hickory smoked ham and wore a corsage of Nebraska roses yesterday. It all happened when she appeared as guest of honor at the Seventy-sixth Club's annual fete in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Franzenberg, jr., of Conrad, Iowa, flew the hams to Washington especially for the occasion. Mrs. Carl Curtis, wife of the Nebraska Representative, had the flowers air-shipped from her home State, for Mrs. Truman and several officers of the club, including Mrs. Karl LeCompte, president.

Formal speech making was discarded for informal get acquainted chats for clubs members and their guests. Only program was musical selections by the scarlet-coated Marine Band.

Guests at the head table, in addition to Mrs. Truman, included Mrs. LeCompte, who presided; Mrs. Paul Kilday, of Texas, vice president of the club; Mr. and Mrs. Franzenburg, Mrs. Fred Bradley, wife of the late Representative from Michigan, Mrs. William E. Hess of Ohio; Mrs. John W. Gwynne, wife of the Iowa Representative, and Mrs. Albert Carter of California, "mother" of the individual Congressional Clubs, including the 76th, which is composed of wives of the Nation's lawmakers who entered Congress during the 76th session.

Senatorial wives present at the luncheon were Mrs. Sheridan Downey of California, Mrs. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, and Mrs. Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho. Among the some 100 wives of Representatives and their guests were Mrs. John L. McMillan of South Carolina, who brought along her aunt, Mrs. Spofford English of Chattanooga; Mrs. J. Harry McGregor of Ohio; Mrs. Clifford Davis of Tennessee; Mrs. Lansdale C. Saccer of Maryland, Mrs. Carl Anderson of Minnesota and Mrs. Jack Z. Anderson of California.

Smith Opposes Outlawing Communists

Dr. S. Stephenson Smith, author, lecture and professor at New York City College, yesterday expressed strong opposition to outlawing Communists in this country, in a luncheon address at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

"To outlaw the Communists," he explained," would be to play into their hands. Party members would have to go underground and become martyrs."

"Real threat in the United States is when the Communists take over unions and guilds," he continued.

The speaker said that the tactics used by the House Un-American Activities Committee appeared to be "subconsciously" those used by the Reds.

Dr. Smith described the party organization of the Communists and warned that while the party members may be few in this country—he estimated about 60,000—they can become a real menace if not watched carefully. "It doesn't take many Communists to start trouble and confusion," he declared.

"They come early and stay late. Also, they have become masters at parliamentary manipulation."

He said that the Communists here are doing their best to create political and economic confusion, especially the latter. One of their chief techniques is to pull a strike for political reasons and pretend to strike for better working conditions and higher wages, Dr. Smith said.

Candidates To Attend Ball

Advance ticket sales indicate that the Victory Ball of the League of Republican Women will go down in history as one of the gayest gatherings in the Nation's Capital. The ball will be held the evening of Monday, May 24, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Some of the men being discussed as Republican candidates for President of the United States will be at the fete. Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenburg will attend, as well as Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft and Speaker of the House Joseph Martin. They will assist Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, president of the District League of Republican Women, in receiving.

The ball will get under way at 9:30 p. m., and a buffet supper will be served from 11 o'clock until long after midnight.

Norwegian Colony Holds Dinner Dance On Constitution Day

In celebration of their Constitution Day, members of the Norwegian colony in Washington attended a dinner dance last evening at the Hamilton Hotel. The dinner was sponsored by the Norwegian Society of Washington, and the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, was there to make the principal after-dinner speech.

The Norwegian violinist, Gunnar Knudsen, played a selected program of Norwegian music. Among the Senators and Congressmen who attended the fete were Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Senator and Mrs. Alexander Wiley, Senator and Mrs. Edward J. Thye, Representative Harold Knutson, Representative and Mrs. August H. Anderson, Representative Henry M. Jackson, Representative and Mrs. J. Leroy Johnson, Representative and Mrs. Donald L. O'Toole, Representative and Mrs. Thor C. Hollefson, Representative Harold C. Hagen, who acted as toastmaster, and Mrs. Hagen.

For a Summer Evening . . .

Cool, crisp and sparkling white is this novel costume, designed for those "little evenings" when a small dinner party is in order or you have a dance date on a starlight roof. The redingote is of picola cotton, the collar and mid-arm cuffs with Irish lace. It is worn over a white organdy petticoat made with three ruffled tiers. Under $40. To be shown today by the Hecht Co., at the May fashion show during the luncheon hour at Congressional Country Club

Diplomats, Officials to Hear Jean Dickenson Sing at Benefit

When Jean Dickenson, Metropolitan Opera and radio star, comes out on the stage at Constitution Hall next Monday evening, May 24, she will be welcomed by a brilliant audience of diplomats, high-ranking Government officials, members of Congress, social and civic leaders.

Among the boxholders for this benefit performance are the Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet, the Ambassador of Burma and Mme. U So Nyun, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, the Ambassador of the Netherlands and Mme. van Kleffens, the Ambassador of Yugoslavia, Sava N. Kosanovic; Gen. and Mrs. Carl F. Spaatz, Gen. and Mrs. Carl R. Bolton, Representative and Mrs. John McCormack, Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge, Representative Katharine St. George, Representative and Mrs. Herbert A. Meyer, Representative and Mrs. Gordon

The concert is being given under the auspices of the Gold Star Wives of America, Inc., an organization of widows of men who gave their lives in the last war. Mrs. E. Hamilton Dutcher, jr., of Washington, is the recently elected national president. She and the members of her group are raising a national fund to provide medical care and hospitalization for the more than 155,000 little children left fatherless by the war. Mothers of these children receive small monthly Government compensation, but when sickness and emergencies arise there is no provision for their care.

Tickets for the benefit may be obtained at the Snow Agency, 1108 G st. nw.

McLean Rococo Treasures Went to Millionaire Texans, Washington Housewives

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AN OLD auction hand, this department ferreted out some odd facts at Friendship, and now that the sale of Mrs. Evalyn McLean's possessions is over we'll jot them down. Everyone wondered who bought the monster palace vases, Meissen ewers, clock-and-candelabra sets, Chinese temple bowls three feet high and four feet across. We guessed Hollywood stars. But no, the movie capital's gone expensively simple. Versailles and Potsdam rococo has found new appreciation with the USA's newest monied group—Texas oil multimillionaires, who snapped up these expensive mountains of porcelain for their Dallas and Houston chateaux.

Who bought other outsize McLean furnishings? A jumbo gilt throne chair, its frame heavy with gilt cherubs, was bid in by a Baltimore antique dealer. "I do a bit of interior decoration," he explained. "So I'll clean it up and use it in a hotel lobby."

A Washington housewife snagged a huge red velvet sofa for $175. "It's my only bid," she said proudly. "Of course I'll have to rearrange my house a bit to get it in."

Crystal, porcelain, brought peak prices. Coalport plates, despite chips and cracks, went for $300 to $400 a dozen. Why? Many of Europe's famous porcelain manufacturies were knocked out during the war. Plates such as these may never be made again. So dealers bought them up, sure of a handsome profit. All in all, china and porcelains, including Mrs. McLean's overwhelming collection of china animals, brought around $40,000. Her dogs, cats, pigs and so on sold high for purely sentimental reasons. On the other end of the scale, air-conditioning units worth several hundred dollars, went for $30 and $40; outside furniture, fountains, equally low.

The reason? Buyers were afraid the air-conditioning might not work, the fountains not squirt.

Arranging the Auction

THE auction's mechanics were interesting. It took the Meredith Galleries' staff, working literally night and day, from April 1 to May 8 to arrange the sale items. Fifteen men and three girls were brought from the New York office, housed in Friendship, fed at a cost to Messrs. Delehanty and Sidney Solon, the actual auctioneer, of $2000. (A special cook was imported from New York.) The cellar, stacked high with crates, boxes of silver, had to be unpacked, the contents cleaned, sorted, furniture reglued, before the catalogue could be made up. Furniture, chosen for Washington saleability, was brought down from the McLean Bar Harbor house (most of it arrived too late for catalogue inclusion).

Relations and friends of Mrs. McLean retained about $15,000 of her better possessions. Rumors to the contrary, nothing except a few small china animals were stolen. And, if the auction crew had not been installed at Friendship, the whole house might have gone up in flames. The night before the exhibition opened a defective wire set fire to a wooden beam, burned through floor and carpet, was extinguished only after a hole was chopped in the living room ceiling.

The Community Chest, incidentally, profited to the tune of $5000 to $6000 from the $1 admission to the sale exhibition. More than 3000 items were sold at the rate of a hundred an hour. The total, which can only be published by the executors, is nicely up in six figures. The auctioneers get a legal 20 per cent for their efforts and pay their own expenses.

John to Paul to West Coast

THIS STORY is titled: Sidelights on the Railroad Strike, or the Hoffman-Steelman telegram. The first day Assistant to the President John Steelman worked on the impending railroad strike, he lunched with ECA Director Paul Hoffman. Around dessert Hoffman pulled out a telegram. Dispatched from the West Coast, the message read: "This strike absolutely cannot be. I suggest you stop it."

"I've prepared a reply," Hoffman said to Steelman. "Here it is: 'Telegram received. Strike stopped as per your suggestion.' Just tip me off, John, when I can send it."

Steelman and Hoffman parted. Then followed days and nights of exhausting negotiations. The country's railroad system prepared to telescope, citizens advanced traveling dates to beat the strike deadline. The negotiations, stubbornly fought, ended in Government seizure and finally a restraining order signed by Judge Goldsborough. Steelman and his cohorts struggled on. Next step was a meeting of the union committee. A vote was taken and a report submitted to him.

The President's assistant immediately notified his boss, then Secretaries Forrestal and Royall, whose forces were running the seized railroads, that the strike was over. Without catching breath, Steelman picked up the receiver, called Hoffman.

"Hello, Paul this is John." His tired voice was scarcely audible. "Go ahead and send that telegram!"

King Peter Takes Queen Sightseeing

In contrast to his first visit to Washington in the early days of World War II, Yugoslavia's shy, mild mannered former King Peter is having a quiet week in town.

No official parties fill the docket of this young man who slipped into town quietly on Sunday, accompanied by Queen Alexandra. What parties are planned in their honor will be small ones, given by friends and former associates who now reside here.

This afternoon the couple will receive friends and members of the press at a cocktail party from 6 to 8 o'clock in their suite at the Shoreham Hotel.

Yesterday they spent a day of sightseeing which began with a tour of Washington Cathedral and a visit to the tomb of President Wilson. The city and its sites are familiar to King Peter, but this is the first visit here of his Queen and he is anxious that she not miss anything.

At a press conference yesterday King Peter said he probably will visit President Truman sometime during his stay. He also expects to confer with State Department officials and exiled Yugoslav leaders.

During the conference, King Peter said he hoped some day to return to his former realm, now under Communist domination. "It may take many years," he said. "I don't know. There are many plans, many possibilities."

Thrift Shop Board Reelects Mrs. Groner

At the annual meeting of the Thrift Shop yesterday, Mrs. Lawrence Groner was reelected chairman of the board. The meeting was held in the ballroom of the Sulgrave Club.

It was reported at the meeting that more than $22,000 has been distributed among the six partner organizations which operate the Thrift Shop and which provide shelter and medical care for Washington children.

Tribute was paid yesterday to the late Mrs. John R. Williams, who guided the destinies of the Thrift Shop over a period of many years.

Officers reelected at the meeting were Mrs. William North Sturtevant, vice chairman; Mrs. Benjamin B. Cain, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Clement Watson, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Frederick R. Solger, corresponding secretary; L. B. Pendleton, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Gilpin Ervin, finance chairman, and Mrs. George W. Petticord, jr., assistant finance chairman.

Representativts of the six partner organizations chosen were Mrs. John F. Sweeney and Mrs. Lynn O. de Lashmutt, Child Welfare Board; Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann and Mrs. Samuel Spencer, Children's Hospital; Mrs. John Murray Begg and Mrs. Hugh Stevens 3rd., Children's Country Home; Mrs. Barry Mohun and Mrs. Donald McKew, Prenatal Clinic of Columbia Hospital; Mrs. Thomas H. Shepard, jr., and Mrs. Daniel Partridge, the Junior League, and Mrs. Franklin H. Ellis and Miss Christine Owen, St. John's Orphanage.

At a meeting of the Thrift Shop Board last week, Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, founder of the shop, was named one of the honorary chairmen, the other being the former chairman, Mrs. Reeve Lewis.

Girl Whose Parents Are Divorced Is Planning June Wedding, Wants Father to Give Her Away; Should His Second Wife Attend the Nuptials?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am at a loss to answer a question that has been put to me by my brother's second wife.

Ellen married Tom eight years ago, two months after he had got a Reno divorce from his first wife Bessie. Bessie and Tom had been married 14 years, had two children and seemed to be very much in love, hence when they parted it was a shock to us.

Ellen, a single girl, belonged to their social crowd, and Bessie felt later that Tom and Ellen were having an affair before the divorce.

After the divorce, Bessie and the children remained in the same town where they've always lived, while Tom and Ellen moved to another town as soon as they were married. We are fond of them all and on cordial terms with both households.

Tom provides for the children's support and also pays alimony to Bessie, per order of the court to which Bessie appealed the case after the Reno divorce. He has kept in touch with the children, taking them out on Sundays occasionally, and now the daughter, Beth, is to be married in June.

Family Is Fond Of Second Wife

THE WEDDING is to be a large church affair in her home town, with Tom paying all expenses and giving the bride away. The question is whether Ellen should attend the wedding and reception.

Inasmuch as Tom is paying all expenses of the occasion and is happily married to Ellen, I feel she should be present and my mother (who favors Ellen more than Bessie) says absolutely that she should go. Tom says the same, but Ellen feels hesitant, as she thinks it might create tension and spoil the wedding for Beth.

As to that, I feel Bessie would keenly resent her presence, thus possibly making an awkward situation for Ellen, since most of the guests will be folks who knew them in the years of the first marriage, and their sympathies are likely to be with Bessie.

What is the correct or sensible solution? Please answer soon.

J. W.

Don't Be Skeleton At the Festivities

DEAR J. W.: Even if Bessie held no grudge against Ellen, and could be counted on to show her every courtesy as a guest at Beth's wedding, still in my opinion Ellen would be a skeleton at the feast and therefore shouldn't attend.

This is to be Beth's show, in which her parents, out of consideration for her, will wish to appear at ease as they make their ceremonial contributions to the occasion; and in view of past history, it will be difficult enough for Tom and Bessie to rise gracefully to the ordeal, without Ellen present to intensify self-consciousness as they go through their paces before a watchful assemblage.

The family's loyalty to Ellen is a fine thing; but her reluctance to attend the wedding is equally commendable. A woman of fine sensibilities couldn't feel otherwise, and those who stoutly champion the idea that, as Tom's beloved wife, she has full right to be present would be doing her a great disservice if they induce her to go ahead.

Best Manufacture Other Engagement

WERE SHE to put in an appearance in such circumstances, a critical community would certainly infer that she was guilty of brazen bad taste; and moreover, the day would be one of slow torture for her and ineffable discomfort for Tom, as old acquaintances groped stiffly in embarrassment to "hit the right note" or "stand up for Bessie" in the situation. This would be true even if Bessie herself were impeccably hospitable, as I said before.

Thus the sensible solution is for Ellen to obey her hunch and let Tom go alone; and as it happens, this is also the "correct" solution, the one that obtains in polite society when a twice-married man has a social duty of the sort to perform in his first wife's bailiwick.

Incidentally, it would be thoughtful of Ellen to manufacture legitimate business for herself out-of-town the day of the wedding, say an errant of mercy on behalf of a relative, a medical check-up with a specialist or whatnot, so that if bumblers at the wedding ask Tom, "Where's Ellen?" he will have a poised factual answer to give.

How to Plan Surprise Party

My brother and I are planning to entertain with a surprise party soon in honor of our parents' twentieth wedding anniversary, which also happens to be the anniversary of my father's thirtieth year in the practice of medicine and the twelveth birthday of a younger brother. We have a 5-room apartment and plan to invite about 50 guests. Can you give us some suggestions for punch to serve (my parents serve alcoholic beverages on occasion to their friends), easy ways of serving, and possible entertainment. We have a piano and several friends are musical. The party will be given in the evening.

G. I. B.

As you probably know, the twentieth is the china wedding anniversary. You might, therefore, have a Chinese theme for the party. Invitations could be made of small white folders pasted inside smaller or larger ones of red paper. Chinese symbols in white ink could decorate the outside. The invitation could be written in red ink inside. Be sure to mention that the party is a surprise one so that guests won't let the cat out of the bag. The Chinese theme could also be carried out in decorating the house and in serving refreshments.

From time to time, during the evening, friends could entertain with musical numbers. Arrange for this with them in advance. Some of the music could carry out the Chinese theme. If there's a quartette, they might sing songs of your father's college days, including the alma mater of his medical school and other appropriate numbers.

Refreshments could be arranged, buffet-style, either on the dining room table or on a large side table in another room. Chinese bowls, if you have them or can borrow them, could be filled with flowers for decorating the table, and small Chinese art objects could be used as well. Gaily-colored crepe paper could also be used. Young friends who assist with serving could dress in Chinese costumes, if available. Refreshments could include trays of small sandwiches of various kinds (these can be purchased from a caterer if you wish), nuts, candies, and almond cookies.

If you have both adults and children at the party, it might be best to serve a nonalcoholic punch for everyone. An easy-to-make kind is half pineapple juice and half ginger ale. A recipe for a more complicated type of fruit punch follows. Rum could be added to this, if you want a "spiked" punch. This recipe makes seven quarts, or 50 servings of one half cup each.

2 cups pineapple juice
2 cups sugar
1 cup boiling water
3½ quarts cold water
1 cup hot tea
¾ cup lemon juice
2 cups orange juice
1 quart ginger ale

Mix sugar and water and boil 5 minutes. Add freshly made tea and when mixture is cold, add fruit juices. Let stand at least 30 minutes. Add cold water and ginger ale just before serving. Add a cup of Maraschino cherries just before serving, if desired.

I have a heavy crepe blouse (a very nice one) that was a hideous green color. I used color remover which only made big blotches of light and dark green. Then I soaked it in bleach which made it a yellow but just enough green to spoil it. Is there anything I can use to finish removing the green or to turn it white?

C. M.

The fact that the color removing process left spots of light and dark suggests that you did not use enough remover solution. There should be enough to cover the article completely without crowding it in the utensil. If you repeat the process, using enough solution so that it will have contact with each spot of the fabric, you may be able to whiten the blouse entirely. However, if you previously used chlorine bleach on it, you may have damaged the fibers of the crepe beyond salvaging.

Young Man Pens Lines to "Our America"

Douglas Talbott of 6404 A st., Maryland Park, Md., is a sophomore at Maryland Park High School. He's 15 years old, talented—and shy.

For some time now, Doug has been writing poetry. But he doesn't get it printed because—well, he's just too bashful to submit it to anybody.

One of Doug's pals tells me that the other night Poet Talbott was out with a girl friend, Jeanne Blake, and he got to thinking how nice it was to be growing up to a free man's inheritance.

So he wrote the beautiful lines which follow. They're so inspiring that, for once, we're going to make room for something longer than a quatrain:

This is our America—
The cities, the hills, the plain.
The shining light of democracy
That burns in freedom's name.

This is our America—
A country with a heart;
The Nation that no mortal man
Can ever tear apart.

This is our America—
It belongs to you and me.
So let's all work and play and fight
To keep it strong and free.

This is what we've lived for;
America, you're great!
That's the way your people feel
In each and every State.

This is our America—
Let's pray this every day:
God save our America!
God bless our U. S. A.

HOBBY LOBBY

Washington's best known philatelist, William M. Stuart of 2124 I st. nw., has a bone to pick with Attorney General Tom Clark. He says:

"Mr. Clark's campaign against juvenile delinquency is a fine undertaking, but there seems to be too much emphasis on sports, to the exclusion of other activities.

"Yet there must be millions of boys whose interests run to stamp collecting, coin collecting, singing, dramatics, musical instruments, woodworking and allied manual arts, and a host of other hobbies."

Right. And when I made inquiry as to why these other hobbies weren't being plugged, here's the answer I got.

"The Justice Department has a great variety of projects under way. But the public seldom hears about them because the sports writers have been the most cooperative in getting pieces into the newspapers."

NATURE NOTES

Mrs. Averil Eubank of 313 S. Wayne st., Arlington, Va., passes along a friendly tip to parents.

Mrs. Eubank's 5-year-old son recently brought home a cocoon, so that he could "watch it change into a butterfly."

After several days of waiting, the family awoke the other morning to discover that the great day had finally arrived.

The room was full of praying mantises—"jillions of them," as Mrs. Eubank puts it—on the walls, on the ceiling, all over the floor, and as far as the eye could reach.

The only solution was to haul out the vacuum cleaner (complete with all those newfangled attachments) and get to work.

To save other parents the trouble of going through the same experience, Mrs. Eubank passes her story along to anybody else who is toying with the thought of "watching the cocoon change into a butterfly."

MISCELLANY

Mrs. P. D. Mott of 418 E. Glendale ave., Alexandria, Va., has a 10-year-old niece, Patricia, who got a little bit mixed up in her words the other day, and almost turned a skating party into a partisan gathering. Asked what time the rink opened, Patricia replied: "My uncle says the doors open to Republicans at 7 o'clock." . . . Good luck to J. Denis Sartain, program director of WBUZ-FM, which holds its formal opening tomorrow. Denny is a former WINX newsman. . . . S. G. Reitman and M. Blumberg of 4410 14th st. nw. want to know why local dairies don't "date" their milk, as is done in some places. . . . Minnie L. Goodwin of 805 C st. sw. says that she heard the dragging-the-horse-off-Kosciuszko-street story 35 years ago, except that it was supposed to have happened to a rookie patrolling Washington's Massachusetts ave. The rookie is now among the top brass of the Metropolitan Police Department, and to him Minnie says: "C'mon now, why don't you 'fess up?" . . . The American Jewish Congress will hold a "Warsaw Ghetto Memorial Meeting" in the Press Club Auditorium tonight (8:15, free, principal speaker, Senator Pepper).

NEW YORK.—On May 22, Steeplechase Park in Coney Island will start its fifty-second year of operation. Frank Tilyou, the founder's son, has spent $100,000 in new rides for the amusement park . . . "Wouldn't it have been cheaper for you to import some sideshows of freaks and entertainers?" he was asked yesterday . . . "Fifty years ago P. T. Barnum made the same suggestion to my father," replied Tilyou. "My father's answer set the pattern to which we still adhere: 'Never hire anything that can talk back or eat.'"

Three members of the cast of "Allegro" participated in a radio quiz show last week. One of the questions asked was "How long is the Panama Canal?" . . . While the first two experts were making their estimates, the third one stepped outside, phoned the Panama Information Bureau, and was told that the canal is 47 miles long . . . He rushed back to his seat among the experts and answered: "47 miles" . . . "Wrong," said the quizmaster. "The Information Please Almanac says it's 50 miles long."

Robert Magidoff, who was ousted by the Soviet for "spying," told the Overseas Press Club members that he wrote a letter to Izvestia denying the spying charge. He distributed copies to all the American correspondents, and carried a copy in his pocket. . . . Izvestia never printed the letter. The censors refused to allow the correspondents to transmit it, and when Magidoff left Russia, the officials took his copy . . . as far as Russia's newspaper readers are concerned, therefore, Magidoff "never replied."

Last night a Broadway stagestar, waiting for a cab under the canopy at Cardi's—the building owned by the Shuberts—dropped a quarter. Despite the pouring rain, he searched for the coin. "It's only a quarter," he was reminded. . . . "If I leave it here," the star replied, "it might be just my luck to have Lee Shubert find it in the morning."

Royall for Segregation to Limit

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal and Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall had a secret session with the Senate Armed Services Committee the other day at which Royall stated that he would resign before ordering segregation abolished in the Army.

Forrestal

This significant incident took place after Southern Senators mutinied against the draft bill and demanded a guarantee that white inductees would not be forced to serve with Negroes.

Immediately a four-bell alarm was put through to Secretary of Defense Forrestal. He hurried up to Capitol Hill, bringing with him as a reinforcement Secretary Royall, a native of North Carolina.

Forrestal explained to Senators that any amendment protecting the right of an inductee to serve exclusively with members of his own race would be "unworkable from an administrative point of view."

Senator Russell of Georgia, however, brushed this aside. Picking up a copy of the President's civil rights message, Russell read:

"During the recent war and in the years since its close we have made much progress toward equality of opportunity in our armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin. I (Truman) have instructed the Secretary of Defense to take steps to have the remaining instances of discrimination in the armed services eliminated as rapidly as possible."

Royall to Rescue

Forrestal mumbled that there was no cause for alarm. Whereupon Royall interceded: "I don't believe that was in the mind of the President. If such a provision is put into operation, I will no longer be Secretary of the Army."

When the debate reached the voting point, Oregon's Senator Wayne Morse protested against taking the roll call in secret.

So the results of the vote was announced, 7 to 4, against the segregation amendment, but not how each Senator voted. However, here is the secret roll call: Hill of Alabama, Byrd of Virginia, Maybank of South Carolina voted "present" on the final bill, but with Russell for the amendment. Gurney of South Dakota, Wilson of Iowa, Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Morse of Oregon and Baldwin of Connecticut voted against segregation. Gurney also held the proxy of Wyoming's Robertson. Bridges stayed away, and Kilgore of West Virginia was absent.

GOP Economy

Nebraska's economy-preaching Senator Kenneth Wherry sent off 93 political telegrams the other day, and charged them to the United States Government whose funds he is always slashing.

Wherry wired at Government expense to 93 Republican county chairmen in Nebraska as follows: Pittsburgh, who is Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania, uncorked the following barbed comments:

"Please convey my sincere greeting to your Republican county convention and regret I cannot join you . . . Your session is vital for it fixes the grass-roots pattern for success we can confidently anticipate if everyone does his share in behalf of our common goal."

When political opponents exposed what he had done, Wherry hurriedly paid up the bill, claimed the Western Union operator had made a mistake.

Change att White House

Reminiscing with friends recently, Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh, who is Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania, uncorked the following barbed comments:

"Back in the days when I used to call on Franklin Roosevelt, he always made a point of asking me: 'How are things going in Pennsylvania? What are they saying about me?'.

"FDR always wanted to know the score, especially about any trends in public opinion. But Harry Truman, while I admire his honesty and sincerity, never asks us questions like that. It isn't that he isn't interested, but he depends too much on a little clique of White House advisers who tell him what's going on in the country. And more often than not he gets bum advice.

"When the Democratic National Committee had its last meeting in Washington, we expected Chairman Howard McGrath to invite us to get our problems off our chests when we called on the President. We thought that would be the first order of business, as it used to be in the old days. But neither McGrath nor the President made a move to ask us. Finally, some of us spoke up on our own.

"Yes, there's a big change at the White House," concluded Mayor Lawrence, "and I doubt that it's helping the party."

My only one

It is not merely what you say . . . Or even what you do . . . But something more that makes me think . . . The world and all of you . . . There is a certain way you smile . . . Each time you look at me . . . That thrills my heart to know that I . . . Am in your company . . . There is a softness in your voice . . . And in your gentle touch . . . And there are other reasons why . . . I love you very much . . . But when I try to figure out . . . Exactly why I do . . . I only seem to understand . . . That I belong to you . . . I only know that all the stars . . . The moonlight and the sun . . . Are beautiful to me because . . . You are my only one.
